Ga. "Governors" Are Denied Funds

Atlanta Bank Says It Won't Honor Checks

Independent Court Action Is Planned

ATLANTA, Jan. 23 (AP)—The Fulton National Bank of Atlanta announced tonight it would refuse to honor checks drawn by either claimant of Georgia's disputed governorship. The bank said it would begin independent court action to settle the controversy.

The bank's announcement came only a few hours after State Treasurer George B. Hamilton disclosed that conflicting claims over the governorship had tied up state revenues and all operations of the state Highway Department.

The bank said: "In view of the confusion which exists throughout the state as to the governorship of Georgia, this bank has instructed its attorneys to file court procedures for instructions as to the proper person to control the account of the executive department of Georgia."

The terse statement said until a court ruling was obtained "it is not the purpose of this bank to recognize either of the contending parties as entitled to control this account." The bank added that a $50 check upon the executive department account had been cashed earlier today "through error, without the knowledge or approval of any officer of the bank."

Form Of Litigation Unnamed

In effect, the bank's action prevents Lt.-Gov. M. E. Thompson from drawing any funds for operation of his "governor's" office, although $97,000 was turned over to him by retiring Gov. Ellis Arnall. Herman Talmadge, the other claimant, also is without funds.

The bank did not say what form its litigation would take, but financial sources said it probably would be a petition for a declaratory judgment, as permitted under Georgia law. This would be filed in Fulton Superior (circuit) Court in Atlanta, and could be heard in 20 days.

Treasurer Hamilton disclosed that a legal snarl over bonding of two appointees of Herman Talmadge—the Legislature's choice as governor — prevented disbursal of funds to the highway and revenue departments, or acceptance of tax collections from the Revenue commissioner.

Talmadge said the developments took him by surprise, and withheld comment. However, he issued a statement castigating the Atlanta Journal for allegedly sponsoring protest meetings, and called upon "the good, white people of Georgia" to rally to his support. In a news conference, he said he "could have 25,000 persons demonstrating on the front lawn of the Capiol," but insisted he abhorred "mob demonstrations."

Talmadge's Accusation Dismissed

Wright Bryan, editor of the Atlanta Journal, dismissed Talmadge's accusation, saying: "The Journal's only connection with mass meetings has been to report them. That it will continue to do."

Operation of the highway and revenue departments was not immediately affected, but fiscal officials said a prolonged tieup would cripple them and quickly affect other state departments.

Hamilton, in answer to newsmen's questions, said he was unable to deal with Sims Garrett, Talmadge's highway disbursing officer, because he lacked Senate confirmation and thus could not be bonded. Garrett's name was among appointments which the Senate declined yesterday to consider.

Thompson has appointed a rival highway department administration. Hamilton also said he was unable to deal with Talmadge's revenue commissioner, Charles Redwine, until

Harold Smith, World Bank Vice President, Dies Suddenly At 48

HAROLD D. SMITH . . . His death leaves World Bank directorate without presiding officer.

Resigned As Budget Director Last June

CULPEPER, Va., Jan. 23 (AP) — Harold D. Smith, vice president of the World Bank and former director of the United States Budget Bureau, died suddenly of a heart attack today at his farmhouse here. He was 48 years old.

Dr. Paul Dickens, Washington, the Smith family physician, said that Smith was stricken suddenly and was dead before medical aid could reach him.

Mrs. Smith, who was in Washington at the time, was reported distraught at the death of her husband on their farm here.

Smith resigned as director of the Budget Bureau last June to become vice president of the new $7,670,000,000 international bank under Eugene Meyer as president.

When Meyer stepped out, Smith also offered his resignation in December but consented to remain until a successor to Meyer was selected.

Treated For Heart Condition

Smith had undergone treatment for a heart condition a year or so ago when he was budget director.

Smith quit his government post to accept the international bank position because of its tax free salary of $22,500 a year, compared with the $10,000, less taxes, which the government paid. He wrote President Truman that he could not have continued as budget director in any case "without reducing certain fixed charges which I have regarded for many years as important to the security of my family."

Smith joined the Budget Bureau in 1939 after service as director of Michigan's state budget. He was born in Lawrence, Kans., June 6, 1898.

Emilli G. Collado, United States member of the World Bank's board of executive directors, said the information was "terrible news—I know the bank's directors and staff will be shocked and grieved at the unexpected death of Mr. Smith."

Presided Over Directorate

The death left the directorate—12 members from as many nations — without a presiding officer. Smith has served in that capacity since Meyer's resignation on December 18. It was presumed that Collado, representing the country with the greatest voting power, would fill the role temporarily, but this was for the directors to decide

The directors have been "actively considering" possible candidates for the presidency, a bank spokesman said recently. Smith resigned in order to give the new president a free hand in choosing his own vice president, the spokesman said, and there was "no reason to believe" he would not have continued to serve if invited to do so by the new chief executive.

Search Renewed For 17-Year-Old Girl's Kidnaper

Alice Dean Devine Clears Ex-Convict

LODI, Cali., Jan. 23 (AP)—Police acknowledged they were back where they started today after their "No. 1 suspect" was exonerated at an out-of-the-way back road rendezvous last night of the abduction of 17-year-old Alice Dean Devine, daughter of a wealthy vineyardist.

In the glare of automobile headlights, dark-haired Alice Dean confronted Earl Shelton, one-time convict and now operator of a San Francisco modeling studio, and declared:

"This is not the man."

Shelton voluntarily went to Lodi to clear himself after being "positively identified" from his photograph by a Sacramento police officer as the man Alice Dean said

Man Exonerated In Kidnaping To Sue For "False Arrest"

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23 (AP) — J. W. (Jake) Ehrlich, prominent San Francisco attorney, announced tonight he would file suit against the Edward Devine family of Lodi for damages for the "false arrest" of Earl Shelton who, Ehrlich said, was held for nearly 12 hours as the "No. 1 suspect" in the kidnaping of Alice Dean Devine.

Shelton, operator of a San Francisco modeling studio, was exonerated by the 17-year-old Miss Devine herself early today after she viewed him in the glare of automobile headlights on a road near Lodi.

Ehrlich said his first action would be to obtain a court order to take depositions from Miss Devine and any others concerned. The order, he said, would direct Miss Devine to come to San Francisco to tell her story of the kidnaping.

Laraine Day Granted "Reprieve" By Judge

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23 (AP)—Actress Laraine Day has been granted more time to try to untangle the marital snarl caused by her marriage to Leo Durocher the day after she was granted a divorce from Ray Hendricks, airport executive.

Superior Judge George A. Dockweiler withheld issuance of an order he announced yesterday which would require Miss Day to show cause why the interlocutory divorce decree granted her here Monday should not be set aside.

This, the court said, was to give new attorneys Miss Day is employing an opportunity to confer with her. Furthermore, Judge Dockweiler said he planned to discuss with Fred N. Howser, state attorney general, "this problem of morals and law."

Helicopter Crashes Into Antarctic Ocean

Aboard the Philippine Sea is Adm. Richard E. Byrd, commandant of the Navy's Antarctic expedition.

Rear Adm. Richard H. Cruzen, commanding the expedition's task force, announced the crash. He had no other details.

The craft presumably was of the two-seater type such as was lost from the Pine Island in the eastern task group on Sunday. Its occupants also were rescued. A PBM Mariner seaplane from the Pine Island crashed in the Antractic ice December 30. Three of its crew were killed and six were rescued.

Pleads Innocent

DES MOINES, Jan. 23 (AP)—Mrs. Opal Dixon, 35-year-old brunette, pleaded innocent today to bank robbery charges filed against her for yesterday's $2,950 holdup of the Des Moines Bank and Trust Company.

Australia Asks Full Share In Pact-Making

LONDON, Jan. 23. (AP)—Soviet Russia opposed new demands of smaller nations for a full share in treaty making today with the declaration that the major powers "paid in blood" for the right to draft the peace treaties with Germany and Austria, an American informant said tonight.

The informant said that Feodor T. Gousev, the Soviet delegate at the four-power Deputy Foreign Ministers' Council, asserted the Russian view during a sharp exchange with Col. W. R. Hodgson, of Australia, who demanded full participation by all active belligerents in the deputies' deliberations.

American and Australian sources said Hodgson also asked that the Council of Foreign Ministers enlarge the Potsdam agreement at their Moscow meeting in March to give the smaller powers an "active part" in control of Germany. The proposal, which Hodgson did not elaborate in detail, brought no immediate big power comment.

Small Nations Present Views

The small nations have been invited to present their views to the deputies, who are making recommendations to be submitted to their chieftains for the Moscow meeting. There is no specific provision in instructions to the deputies to give the smaller countries an equal share in the deliberations.

Gousev said major decisions were left to the big powers during the war—a procedure he described as "necessary to achieve victory." The same procedure was essential in establishing peace, he said.

Hoped-For Cooperation From GOP Congress Is In Effect, Truman Says

Allis-Chalmers Offer To Settle Strike Rejected

DETROIT, Jan. 23 (AP)—Company proposals to settle the 271-day-old Allis-Chalmers strike in West Allis, Wis., were rejected as "inadequate" today by the CIO United Auto Workers.

Expressing confidence the union would win a bargaining election at the Wisconsin plant Sunday, the UAW-CIO policy committee listed two reasons for "unanimously" turning down the latest offer "in its present form."

First, the committee said, the offer "as it now stands would only be given to such workers as the company selects" and "no incentive workers would receive an increase in take-home pay."

Secondly, the committee's statement continued, the company "offered absolutely nothing new on the remaining key issues in dispute." These principally are union security and greivance procedure.

The proposals, termed "final" by the company, were drawn up Tuesday in a management-union conference at the home of Rev. Ensworth Reisner, pastor of Milwaukee's First Methodist Church.

The union has been demanding a 25-cent hourly increase. In plant notices the company, a farm equip-

Rent Control Issue Is Up To Lawmakers

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. (AP)—President Truman today declared that his hoped-for cooperation from the GOP Congress is a fact.

In that vein, he disclosed:

1. He is leaving entirely up to Congress the question of continuing rent control beyond its present June 30 expiration date, although he thinks we ought to hold the line on rents. The matter of possible increases in the rent ceilings similarly is one for Congress rather than OPA, he believes.

2. He has a Republican under consideration for a vacancy on the Federal Communications Commission. The prospective nominee is Miss Marion Martin, formerly assistant chairman of the Republican National Committee and head of its women's division.

Took No Part In Senate Row

3. He took no part in the row over continuing the Special Senate War Investigating Committee which he headed as a senator. The continuance, favored by Republicans and fought by Democrats, was voted yesterday. Mr. Truman commented that it was a matter for the Senate itself to decide.

These remarks, at a chatty news conference, were in reply to questions which followed one as to "the status" of cooperation between the President and Congress. Mr. Truman responded that the cooperation is in effect, and is working right along.

On politics—Ailing Robert E. Hannegan has returned looking fine and Mr. Truman urged him, first thing when he saw him, to stay on both as Postmaster General and Democratic National Chairman. He hopes Hannegan will, but the latter withheld any commitment pending further consultation with physicians.

Happy Over Ford Price Cut

On prices—Mr. Truman was very happy at the action of the Ford Motor Company in reducing prices. He hopes a lot of other people will do so too.

The final question dealt with the President's attendance last night at the National Theater here, where pickets were protesting the management's refusal to admit negroes. Mr. Truman said he did not know the theater was being picketed, that he had been wanting to see "Blossom Time" for 20 years, and he just went to see it.

Three Firemen Killed In Minneapolis Blaze

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 23 (AP) — Three firemen were killed tonight when fire and a series of explosions rocked the showrooms and garage of the Hull-Dobbs Motor Company at the height of the rush hour along this main Minneapolis traffic artery.

Firemen at the scene identified three bodies taken from the basement of the garage, plummeted to the lower floor when the showroom floor collapsed.

Firemen said a fourt fireman had been taken to General Hospital in serious condition. Six others were also under treatment there for smoke inhalation and bruises suffered when the floor collapsed, attendants said. None of the six was in serious condition, the hospital reported.

PICTURE CENSORS BAN "THE OUTLAW" FROM MD. SCREENS

BALTIMORE, Jan. 23 (AP)—"The Outlaw," starring Jane Russell, was banned from Maryland screens today by the Board of Motion Picture Censors which contended it "places womanhood on a low level," "exploits the physical," and "the entire impact of the picture is bad."

"It contains many scenes that are indecent and immoral, that tend to debase or corrupt morals and incite to crime, so interspersed throughout its length that we find it impracticable to delete them and still preserve the continuity of the picture," the board said.

"By way of explanation only: x x x The bandit hero makes a choice as against another claimant between a horse and the woman involved, the degrading implication being that a woman can be placed on an animal level to be casually traded like a horse."

Marshall, Chief Executive Review Foreign Issues

State Department Post Given Peurifoy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP) — Secretary of State Marshall reviewed major foreign issues with President Truman today and made his first appointment to a top position in the State Department.

Marshall named John E. Peurifoy, a veteran of nine years administrative work in the department, acting assistant secretary of state. Peurifoy replaces Donald Russell, who resigned with Secretary Byrnes.

Peurifoy's appointment later may be made permanent and on his shoulders will fall direct responsibility for any reorganization of the department which Marshall may undertake.

Mr. Truman told his news conference Marshall has a free hand in the State Department for any reorganization.

He also said Marshall has asked top-ranking personnel to stay on but it was unclear whether this meant all the assistant secretaries.

It included Undersecretaries Dean Acheson and William L. Clayton.

But some uncertainrty was felt among diplomats over the status of the assistant secretaries — Spruille Braden, in charge of Latin American affairs; Willard Thorpe, handling economic affairs under Clayton, and William Benton, director of public information.

Mr. Truman said he had discussed with Marshall the dispute between Braden and the American ambassador to Argentina, George Messersmith. Messersmith has been highly critical of Braden's "tough" policies toward the Peron regime.

Mr. Truman gave no details of his meeting with Marshall other than to say that they talked about China, South America, Germany, Palestine and other matters around the world.

The president also covered these other points:

1. He has not discussed with Marshall whether the secretary personally will attend the Moscow meeting of Foreign Ministers on the German and Austrian peace settlements beginning March 10.

2. He discussed with Gov. Jesus Pinero, of Puerto Rico, today the economic situation of the island and the question of aid will be taken up at tomorrow's Cabinet meeting.

3. He declined to say what subjects he expects to discuss with President Aleman, of Mexico, when the latter comes to Washington next spring. That, Mr. Truman made clear, depends on what the Mexican President wants to discuss.

Ex-Legislator Declares He'll Be Vindicated

Three Others Will Be Arraigned Today

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—A federal grand jury today indicted former Rep. Andrew J. May and three officials of the Garsson munitions combine on charges that they "conspired and agreed together to defraud the United States."

Indicted with the wartime head of the House Military Committee were these three men from whom, the jury said, May "did agree to receive" $53,634.07 for services rendered:

Henry M. Garsson. He was described by Army officers in a Senate inquiry last summer as "the brains" of the combine, which received more than $78,000,000 in war contracts.

Murray W. Garsson. A brother of Henry, his salary as a director of the Erie Basin Metal Products Company, one of 19 firms in the combine, was shown by government records to have been $161,666.

Joseph F. Freeman. He was Washington office manager of the combine and, according to a stenographer-witness in the Senate inquiry, kept in frequent contact with May.

The Garssons and Freeman are scheduled to be arraigned before Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws in district court at 10 a. m. EST tomorrow morning.

Boards Train At Huntington

There was no immediate indication when May might appear before the court, although he boarded a train at Huntington, W. Va., tonight for Washington.

Bench warrants for the four men had been handed Chief Deputy United States Marshal C. Michael Kearny during the day.

Attorney General Clark, in announcing the indictments, said conviction could carry fines up to $10,000 and imprisonment for as long as two years.

He said the law further provides that any person convicted under it shall "thereafter be incapable of holding any office of honor, trust or profit under the government of the United States."

May said today at his Prestonsburg, Ky., home:

"I am not guilty, I have done nothing wrong, and have not violated any law. I will appear in court and ask for a speedy trial, at which I will completely vindicate myself."

At Chicago, the Garssons were not available for comment. However, their attorney, Charles J. Margiotti, said at Pittsburgh that the trial will vindicate them. He added:

"It will also present to the country the record of the outstanding achievement of themselves and the corporations with which they were associated in the production of vital war material that contributed so much to our victory."

May was defeated for re-election last fall after serving 16 years in the House. His doctors reported he suffered a heart attack last July. He is 71 years old.

May never denied helping the Garssons—he said every congressman did the same thing—but he denied he ever got any money or favors from them. He said he was only trying to help the war effort.

Grand Judy Sees Differently

The grand jury saw differently. It spoke of "his personal pecuniary interest in the success" of the combine.

On this point, the indictment said the accused had conspired together to defraud the United States of its right to have the duties of the military chairman performed "free from unlawful impairment, obstruction, corruption, partiality, improper influence, bias, dishonesty and fraud."

The grand jury, as did the Senate War Investigating Committee,

Bill Lowering Voting Age To 18 Is Offered Assembly

Senate Okays Measure To Allow Maryland To Try Virginians For Illegal Oystering

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 23 (AP) — Ballots for 18-year-olds were advocated in the Maryland General Assembly today.

Four members of Baltimore City's First District delegation offered a bill for submission of an amendment in 1948 which would lower the Free State's voting age from 21 years.

The measure was one of 33 which went into the House of Delegates during a day which saw the House pass its first bills of the 1947 session.

Thirteen measures went through without dissenting vote. Most of them were local bills or minor proposals of the legislative Council.

One House-approved bill inserts in the law a provision for punishing street car operators who operate their cars while intoxicated. They are not now included and the measure is a result of a case in Baltimore where a street car operator went free after being charged.

Another would require reports on automobile accidents of more than $50 damage within 48 hours. The law now requires an immediate report.

The 18-year-old voting proposal went into the House under the sponsorship of Delegates Duffy, Bertorelli, Silk and Milanicz, all Baltimore First District Democrats.

It was sent to the Committee on Constitutional amendments.

The administration moved to carry out a Democratic campaign promise by offering a constitutional amendment for restoration of Baltimore City control over its police department.

Introduced by Speaker Sybert and Delegates Buffington (D-Balto. 3rd), Bandiere (D-Balto. 5th) and Melnicove (D-Balto. 4th), the bills calls for a referendum at the May election for Mayor of Baltimore.

The House held one of its longest meetings, remaining in session more than an hour and a half but the Senate meeting was brief.

The major activity in the Senate was a sudden vote on its bill to allow Maryland to prosecute Virginians accused of illegal oystering in the Potomac River.

The measure had gone back to committee for a hearing, requested by a Virginia delegation, but when the delegation did not appear, the measure was recalled and unanimously sent to the House.

It would circumvent a 1785 pact

Student Nurse, Reported Missing, Found In Toledo; Suffered Amnesia

TOLEDO, O., Jan. 23 (AP)—Jean Frances Foss, 23-year-old student nurse from Dover-Foxcroft, Maine, reported missing from Baltimore's University Hospital, was found tonight in Toledo's State Hospital suffering from amnesia.

Dr. Joseph Duty, state hospital superintendent, said the girl identified herself as soon as she recovered, apparently from a temporary attack of amnesia. He said she regained her memory shortly after being admitted to the hospital.

Dr. Duty said he would contact University Hospital authorities in Baltimore to determine whether officials there would arrange for her return.

The girl was brought here from Fremont, O., where she was unconscious for 24 hours in Memorial Hospital, after being removed from a bus en route from Akron, O., to Toledo.

Jerry Welch, Akron, who was driving the bus to Toledo, told Deputy Sheriff Ted Paul, of Sandus-

"Compulsory Techniques" In Labor Legislation Opposed By Senators

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Two Senators urged the Senate Labor Committee today to steer clear of "compulsory techniques" in legislation to curb union activities.

The plea came from Sens. Ball (R-Minn) and Murray (D-Mont) as the committee opened hearings on 13 bills, all designed to remedy labor strife, but differing widely in how to go about it.

Murray, declaring that "we cannot mix statesmanship with hysteria," urged the committee to go slow in studying the problem, and added:

"In our eagerness to achieve full production, we should not overlook the danger of seeking a short term victory through compulsory techniques and losing the long-term objectives of the preservation of freedom and democracy."

Ball told the crowded hearing room that "the sound and liberal solution of this problem of paralyzing industrial strife is not to delegate vast arbitrary powers to the executive branch of the government to deal with crises."

The right way to go about it, Ball said, is to "correct in the law, applying equally to all, the underlying causes that breed the crisis."

Both Ball and Murray spoke in support of legislation they have introduced.

Ball dealt with a bill, sponsored also by Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) and Smith (R-NJ), which would set up a new federal mediation board and outlaw serious strikes for 60 days. It also would wipe out what its authors term union "abuses."

Murray urged adoption of a Senate resolution which he and eight other Democratic Senators introduced. In line with recommendation by President Truman, it would create a 20-man "temporary labor relations committee" to investigate labor-industry relations.

Dr. Joseph Duty, state hospital superintendent, said the girl identified herself as soon as she recovered, apparently from a temporary attack of amnesia. He said she regained her memory shortly after being admitted to the hospital.

Dr. Duty said he would contact University Hospital authorities in Baltimore to determine whether officials there would arrange for her return.

The girl was brought here from Fremont, O., where she was unconscious for 24 hours in Memorial Hospital, after being removed from a bus en route from Akron, O., to Toledo.

Jerry Welch, Akron, who was driving the bus to Toledo, told Deputy Sheriff Ted Paul, of Sandus-

Helicopter Crashes Into Antarctic Ocean

Aboard the Philippine Sea is Adm. Richard E. Byrd, commandant of the Navy's Antarctic expedition.

Rear Adm. Richard H. Cruzen, commanding the expedition's task force, announced the crash. He had no other details.

The craft presumably was of the two-seater type such as was lost from the Pine Island in the eastern task group on Sunday. Its occupants also were rescued. A PBM Mariner seaplane from the Pine Island crashed in the Antractic ice December 30. Three of its crew were killed and six were rescued.

Russia Opposes Smaller Nations' Treaty Demands

Australia Asks Full Share In Pact-Making

LONDON, Jan. 23. (AP)—Soviet Russia opposed new demands of smaller nations for a full share in treaty making today with the declaration that the major powers "paid in blood" for the right to draft the peace treaties with Germany and Austria, an American informant said tonight.

The informant said that Feodor T. Gousev, the Soviet delegate at the four-power Deputy Foreign Ministers' Council, asserted the Russian view during a sharp exchange with Col. W. R. Hodgson, of Australia, who demanded full participation by all active belligerents in the deputies' deliberations.

American and Australian sources said Hodgson also asked that the Council of Foreign Ministers enlarge the Potsdam agreement at their Moscow meeting in March to give the smaller powers an "active part" in control of Germany. The proposal, which Hodgson did not elaborate in detail, brought no immediate big power comment.

Small Nations Present Views

The small nations have been invited to present their views to the deputies, who are making recommendations to be submitted to their chieftains for the Moscow meeting. There is no specific provision in instructions to the deputies to give the smaller countries an equal share in the deliberations.

Gousev said major decisions were left to the big powers during the war—a procedure he described as "necessary to achieve victory." The same procedure was essential in establishing peace, he said.

Hoped-For Cooperation From GOP Congress Is In Effect, Truman Says

Allis-Chalmers Offer To Settle Strike Rejected

DETROIT, Jan. 23 (AP)—Company proposals to settle the 271-day-old Allis-Chalmers strike in West Allis, Wis., were rejected as "inadequate" today by the CIO United Auto Workers.

Expressing confidence the union would win a bargaining election at the Wisconsin plant Sunday, the UAW-CIO policy committee listed two reasons for "unanimously" turning down the latest offer "in its present form."

First, the committee said, the offer "as it now stands would only be given to such workers as the company selects" and "no incentive workers would receive an increase in take-home pay."

Secondly, the committee's statement continued, the company "offered absolutely nothing new on the remaining key issues in dispute." These principally are union security and greivance procedure.

The proposals, termed "final" by the company, were drawn up Tuesday in a management-union conference at the home of Rev. Ensworth Reisner, pastor of Milwaukee's First Methodist Church.

The union has been demanding a 25-cent hourly increase. In plant notices the company, a farm equip-

Rent Control Issue Is Up To Lawmakers

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. (AP)—President Truman today declared that his hoped-for cooperation from the GOP Congress is a fact.

In that vein, he disclosed:

1. He is leaving entirely up to Congress the question of continuing rent control beyond its present June 30 expiration date, although he thinks we ought to hold the line on rents. The matter of possible increases in the rent ceilings similarly is one for Congress rather than OPA, he believes.

2. He has a Republican under consideration for a vacancy on the Federal Communications Commission. The prospective nominee is Miss Marion Martin, formerly assistant chairman of the Republican National Committee and head of its women's division.

Took No Part In Senate Row

3. He took no part in the row over continuing the Special Senate War Investigating Committee which he headed as a senator. The continuance, favored by Republicans and fought by Democrats, was voted yesterday. Mr. Truman commented that it was a matter for the Senate itself to decide.

These remarks, at a chatty news conference, were in reply to questions which followed one as to "the status" of cooperation between the President and Congress. Mr. Truman responded that the cooperation is in effect, and is working right along.

On politics—Ailing Robert E. Hannegan has returned looking fine and Mr. Truman urged him, first thing when he saw him, to stay on both as Postmaster General and Democratic National Chairman. He hopes Hannegan will, but the latter withheld any commitment pending further consultation with physicians.

Happy Over Ford Price Cut

On prices—Mr. Truman was very happy at the action of the Ford Motor Company in reducing prices. He hopes a lot of other people will do so too.

The final question dealt with the President's attendance last night at the National Theater here, where pickets were protesting the management's refusal to admit negroes. Mr. Truman said he did not know the theater was being picketed, that he had been wanting to see "Blossom Time" for 20 years, and he just went to see it.

Three Firemen Killed In Minneapolis Blaze

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 23 (AP) — Three firemen were killed tonight when fire and a series of explosions rocked the showrooms and garage of the Hull-Dobbs Motor Company at the height of the rush hour along this main Minneapolis traffic artery.

Firemen at the scene identified three bodies taken from the basement of the garage, plummeted to the lower floor when the showroom floor collapsed.

Firemen said a fourt fireman had been taken to General Hospital in serious condition. Six others were also under treatment there for smoke inhalation and bruises suffered when the floor collapsed, attendants said. None of the six was in serious condition, the hospital reported.

Bill Lowering Voting Age To 18 Is Offered Assembly

Senate Okays Measure To Allow Maryland To Try Virginians For Illegal Oystering

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 23 (AP) — Ballots for 18-year-olds were advocated in the Maryland General Assembly today.

Four members of Baltimore City's First District delegation offered a bill for submission of an amendment in 1948 which would lower the Free State's voting age from 21 years.

The measure was one of 33 which went into the House of Delegates during a day which saw the House pass its first bills of the 1947 session.

Thirteen measures went through without dissenting vote. Most of them were local bills or minor proposals of the legislative Council.

One House-approved bill inserts in the law a provision for punishing street car operators who operate their cars while intoxicated. They are not now included and the measure is a result of a case in Baltimore where a street car operator went free after being charged.

Another would require reports on automobile accidents of more than $50 damage within 48 hours. The law now requires an immediate report.

The 18-year-old voting proposal went into the House under the sponsorship of Delegates Duffy, Bertorelli, Silk and Milanicz, all Baltimore First District Democrats.

It was sent to the Committee on Constitutional amendments.

The administration moved to carry out a Democratic campaign promise by offering a constitutional amendment for restoration of Baltimore City control over its police department.

Introduced by Speaker Sybert and Delegates Buffington (D-Balto. 3rd), Bandiere (D-Balto. 5th) and Melnicove (D-Balto. 4th), the bills calls for a referendum at the May election for Mayor of Baltimore.

The House held one of its longest meetings, remaining in session more than an hour and a half but the Senate meeting was brief.

The major activity in the Senate was a sudden vote on its bill to allow Maryland to prosecute Virginians accused of illegal oystering in the Potomac River.

The measure had gone back to committee for a hearing, requested by a Virginia delegation, but when the delegation did not appear, the measure was recalled and unanimously sent to the House.

It would circumvent a 1785 pact

PICTURE CENSORS BAN "THE OUTLAW" FROM MD. SCREENS

BALTIMORE, Jan. 23 (AP)—"The Outlaw," starring Jane Russell, was banned from Maryland screens today by the Board of Motion Picture Censors which contended it "places womanhood on a low level," "exploits the physical," and "the entire impact of the picture is bad."

"It contains many scenes that are indecent and immoral, that tend to debase or corrupt morals and incite to crime, so interspersed throughout its length that we find it impracticable to delete them and still preserve the continuity of the picture," the board said.

"By way of explanation only: x x x The bandit hero makes a choice as against another claimant between a horse and the woman involved, the degrading implication being that a woman can be placed on an animal level to be casually traded like a horse."

Marshall, Chief Executive Review Foreign Issues

State Department Post Given Peurifoy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP) — Secretary of State Marshall reviewed major foreign issues with President Truman today and made his first appointment to a top position in the State Department.

Marshall named John E. Peurifoy, a veteran of nine years administrative work in the department, acting assistant secretary of state. Peurifoy replaces Donald Russell, who resigned with Secretary Byrnes.

Peurifoy's appointment later may be made permanent and on his shoulders will fall direct responsibility for any reorganization of the department which Marshall may undertake.

Mr. Truman told his news conference Marshall has a free hand in the State Department for any reorganization.

He also said Marshall has asked top-ranking personnel to stay on but it was unclear whether this meant all the assistant secretaries.

It included Undersecretaries Dean Acheson and William L. Clayton.

But some uncertainty was felt among diplomats over the status of the assistant secretaries — Spruille Braden, in charge of Latin American affairs; Willard Thorpe, handling economic affairs under Clayton, and William Benton, director of public information.

Mr. Truman said he had discussed with Marshall the dispute between Braden and the American ambassador to Argentina, George Messersmith. Messersmith has been highly critical of Braden's "tough" policies toward the Peron regime.

Mr. Truman gave no details of his meeting with Marshall other than to say that they talked about China, South America, Germany, Palestine and other matters around the world.

The president also covered these other points:

1. He has not discussed with Marshall whether the secretary personally will attend the Moscow meeting of Foreign Ministers on the German and Austrian peace settlements beginning March 10.

2. He discussed with Gov. Jesus Pinero, of Puerto Rico, today the economic situation of the island and the question of aid will be taken up at tomorrow's Cabinet meeting.

3. He declined to say what subjects he expects to discuss with President Aleman, of Mexico, when the latter comes to Washington next spring. That, Mr. Truman made clear, depends on what the Mexican President wants to discuss.

Ex-Legislator Declares He'll Be Vindicated

Three Others Will Be Arraigned Today

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—A federal grand jury today indicted former Rep. Andrew J. May and three officials of the Garsson munitions combine on charges that they "conspired and agreed together to defraud the United States."

Indicted with the wartime head of the House Military Committee were these three men from whom, the jury said, May "did agree to receive" $53,634.07 for services rendered:

Henry M. Garsson. He was described by Army officers in a Senate inquiry last summer as "the brains" of the combine, which received more than $78,000,000 in war contracts.

Murray W. Garsson. A brother of Henry, his salary as a director of the Erie Basin Metal Products Company, one of 19 firms in the combine, was shown by government records to have been $161,666.

Joseph F. Freeman. He was Washington office manager of the combine and, according to a stenographer-witness in the Senate inquiry, kept in frequent contact with May.

The Garssons and Freeman are scheduled to be arraigned before Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws in district court at 10 a. m. EST tomorrow morning.

Boards Train At Huntington

There was no immediate indication when May might appear before the court, although he boarded a train at Huntington, W. Va., tonight for Washington.

Bench warrants for the four men had been handed Chief Deputy United States Marshal C. Michael Kearny during the day.

Attorney General Clark, in announcing the indictments, said conviction could carry fines up to $10,000 and imprisonment for as long as two years.

He said the law further provides that any person convicted under it shall "thereafter be incapable of holding any office of honor, trust or profit under the government of the United States."

May said today at his Prestonsburg, Ky., home:

"I am not guilty. I have done nothing wrong, and have not violated any law. I will appear in court and ask for a speedy trial, at which I will completely vindicate myself."

At Chicago, the Garssons were not available for comment. However, their attorney, Charles J. Margiotti, said at Pittsburgh that the trial will vindicate them. He added:

"It will also present to the country the record of the outstanding achievement of themselves and the corporations with which they were associated in the production of vital war material that contributed so much to our victory."

May was defeated for re-election last fall after serving 16 years in the House. His doctors reported he suffered a heart attack last July. He is 71 years old.

May never denied helping the Garssons—he said every congressman did the same thing—but he denied he ever got any money or favors from them. He said he was only trying to help the war effort.

Grand Judy Sees Differently

The grand jury saw differently. It spoke of "his personal pecuniary interest in the success" of the combine.

On this point, the indictment said the accused had conspired together to defraud the United States of its right to have the duties of the military chairman performed "free from unlawful impairment, obstruction, corruption, partiality, improper influence, bias, dishonesty and fraud."

The grand jury, as did the Senate War Investigating Committee,

"Compulsory Techniques" In Labor Legislation Opposed By Senators

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Two Senators urged the Senate Labor Committee today to steer clear of "compulsory techniques" in legislation to curb union activities.

The plea came from Sens. Ball (R-Minn) and Murray (D-Mont) as the committee opened hearings on 13 bills, all designed to remedy labor strife, but differing widely in how to go about it.

Murray, declaring that "we cannot mix statesmanship with hysteria," urged the committee to go slow in studying the problem, and added:

"In our eagerness to achieve full production, we should not overlook the danger of seeking a short term victory through compulsory techniques and losing the long-term objectives of the preservation of freedom and democracy."

Ball told the crowded hearing room that "the sound and liberal solution of this problem of paralyzing industrial strife is not to delegate vast arbitrary powers to the executive branch of the government to deal with crises."

The right way to go about it, Ball said, is to "correct in the law, applying equally to all, the underlying causes that breed the crisis."

Both Ball and Murray spoke in support of legislation they have introduced.

Ball dealt with a bill, sponsored also by Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) and Smith (R-NJ), which would set up a new federal mediation board and outlaw serious strikes for 60 days. It also would wipe out what its authors term union "abuses."

Murray urged adoption of a Senate resolution which he and eight other Democratic Senators introduced. In line with recommendation by President Truman, it would create a 20-man "temporary labor relations committee" to investigate labor-industry relations.

Move To Dismiss "Trifling" Portal Claims Is Made

Government Files Brief With Picard

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—The government, facing the loss of huge sums in tax rebates under portal pay claims, stepped into the key case today with an argument that claims should not be paid for mere "trifles" of time.

The Justice Department filed a brief with Federal Judge Frank A. Picard asking dismissal of claims of the Mt. Clemens (Mich.) Pottery Company workers on the grounds that, as the record now stands, they are "trifling."

However, it also suggested that further evidence should be taken to see whether there is more substance to the claims.

Moves To Draw Line

The Mt. Clemens case is the one which led to the now famous Supreme Court decision that workers are entitled to pay for all time "controlled" by the employer—not just that spent in productive labor. It set off the current series of suits for claims totalling more than $4,000,000,000. Some of these make claims for time spent changing clothes, washing up, etc.

The Justice Department's move today does not challenge the principle of the high court's decision. It simply heads toward drawing a line somewhere between what "controlled" time, other than labor, should be paid for and what is too insignificant to warrant attention under the wage-hour law.

On both sides of Congress, meanwhile, the portal suits claimed close attention.

Picard Termed "Pro-Labor"

Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R-NJ), of the House Committee on Unamerican Activities, told the House that the man who "concocted" the idea of the suits and the lawyer who filed the Mt. Clemens case "both have long records of Communist affiliation." He named them, respectively, as Ben Riskin, former research director for the CIO union of mine, mill and smelter workers, and Edward Lamb, Toledo, O.

The Senate Judiciary Subcommittee considering bills to outlaw the suits received a transcript of remarks which Judge Picard made in another portal pay case involving the Chrysler Corporation. On the basis of these remarks, a Chrysler attorney, Theodore R. Iserman, told the subcommittee that the judge was "strictly pro-labor."

Last year 2,500,000 beds were provided by the Salvation army for needy men, women and children in the United States.

No Trace Found Of Jail Breakers

JESSUP, Md., Jan. 23 (AP)—Four slightly-built prisoners sawed a bar over a dining room window and squeezed through a space seven and a quarter inches wide to escape from the Maryland House of Correction early today.

State and Anne Arundel county police reported a dozen hours later their widespread search had developed no trace of the quartet.

Warden J. L. Wright said the men, all from Baltimore, were members of a 93-man detail wakened at 4 a. m. to prepare the 7:30 breakfast for other inmates.

He said a lever plus the cold weather must have enabled the men to saw the bar at the bottom and snap it off at the top. Usually the bars are considered impregnable, he said.

The escape was discovered about 6 a. m.

Wright said the four were wearing regulation blue dungarees and are not considered dangerous.

The men were identified as Allen Chenowith, 41, who had served four months on a two-year-sentence on a sex perversion conviction; Aldine Carroll, 27, who had served three months of an 18-month sentence for burglary; Joseph Heagett, 18, who had served two years on a three-year burglary sentence plus a two-year term for escaping from the state prison farm near Hagerstown, and Edwin W. Elliott, 17, who had served one year on a two-year sentence for larceny.

said that the British and the United States supported Australia's request. American sources, however, did not report complete United States support.

Backing up his demand, in which Brazil, Canada and South Africa have concurred, Hodgson told the deputies that Australia mustered 700,000 effective military personnel in the war, or 17 per cent of her population between the ages of 18 and 45. He said this percentage was higher than that of any other belligerent.

Allies Ban Hapsburg Dynasty

The four-power Deputy Foreign Ministers Council has agreed to write into the Austrain peace treaty a permanent veto on any future claim of the once mighty Hapsburg dynasty to the non-existent Austrian throne, an American informant also said.

The informant said the ban had not been discussed in detail, but it would apply presumably to any aspirant to the crown.

In other developments today the deputies received a Greek demand for "the highest possible level" in reparations payments from Germany to be delivered "in the shortest possible time."

"She appeared to have fallen asleep shortly after we left Akron," Welch told the deputy, "and I thought nothing about it until I tried to rouse her when we reached Fremont."

After the woman was unconscious in Fremont for almost 24 hours she was brought here for shock treatment at the state hospital where physicians earlier said she could not recall her name or where she lived.

Authorities at Baltimore's University Hospital reported to police late today that the girl had been missing since Tuesday afternoon.

The hospital said extensive efforts had failed to locate the dark-haired girl, scheduled to graduate in June.

Police immediately transmitted a description on the 11-state police teletype system.

McKellar Seeks To Connect Clapp With Communists

Nominee For TVA Post Stands Firm

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP) — Sen. McKellar (D-Tenn) sought today to show that Gordon R. Clapp, President Truman's nominee for chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, was linked with a "Communist front organization."

But Clapp, who has emphatically denied he is a Communist, stood on a previous statement that he is an American without political affiliation.

The Senator, long a critic of the way TVA is run, questioned Clapp at a hearing on his nomination before the Senate Public Works Committee.

The Senator showed committee members photostatic copies of records of the House unAmerican Activities Committee which he said listed Clapp as a sponsor in 1940 of a meeting of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare in Chattanooga, Tenn.

Saying the conference was a "Communist-front organization," McKellar asked Clapp if he attended the meeting.

"I may have been listed as a sponsor," answered the nominee, "but I don't believe I attended the meeting."

Clapp added "if I didn't attend the meeting, it was not because I had any hesitation about doing so." He said he had "great admiration" for the leadership of Dr. Frank Graham, head of the conference and president of the University of North Carolina.

Clapp Is Recommended

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP) — Civic, veterans, womens, farm and labor organization leaders of Decatur, Ala., today telegraphed Sen. Revercomb (R-WVa), chairman of the Senate Public Works Committee:

"Will you let the people counsel with your committee?

"We respectfully ask that you recommend Gordon R. Clapp nomination as director of Tennessee Valley Authority. The people in the valley want him on the basis of his personal integrity and capable performance and his understanding of valley efforts and problems."

Gen. Geiger, Top Marine Corps Leader, Succumbs

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Roy S. Geiger, one-time enlisted man who became a top Marine Corps leader, died today at the age of 61, eight days before his formal retirement.

A native of Middleburg, Fla., he died at the Bethesda (Md.) Naval Hospital from inflammation of the veins and pulmonary complications.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Eunice Renshaw Geiger, Rosemond, Pensacola, Fla.; a son, Roy S. Geiger, who is in the Army at Fort Sill, Okla.; and a daughter, Mrs. Robert J. Jackson, Pensacola.

Funeral service will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 p. m. E.S.T. at the Army's Fort Myer chapel with burial afterward in the nearby Arlington National Cemetery.

Anderson Admits Truman Cut Fund

WASHINGTON, Jan, 23 (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Anderson reluctantly acknowledged at a Senate hearing today that President Truman lopped $100,000,000 off the $300,000,000 asked by his department for farm benefit payments in the next fiscal year.

Two midwest Senators assured Anderson, however, that they are willing to spend $1,000,000,000 or more if necessary to maintain farm income at a fair level.

"Even if it costs a billion it would be a cheap price," said Sen. Young (R-ND).

Sen. Lucos (D-Ill) said he agreed with Young because "if agriculture goes down, everything goes with it."

Lucas said Congress should keep this in mind in planning to slash government outlays and cut income taxes.

Testifying before the new Senate Agriculture Committee, Anderson had answered questions on how much the existing price-support program for farm products would cost the taxpayers. This program, started in wartime, is due to run until the end of 1948. It is distinct from the farm benefit payments, which are made to farmers for carrying out soil conservation program.

Anderson told the lawmakers that if employment and buying power remain at high levels, the price-support program might range from $150,000,000 to $300,000,000 next year.

But, he said, if general economic conditions drop, the figure might rise to $1,000,000,000 or more. It was then that Young and Lucas made their remarks about being willing to spend that much.

Winchester Gets Slaying Suspect

WINCHESTER, Va., Jan. 23 (AP)—Deputy Sheriff Robert Dehaven, of Frederick county, and two Virginia state troopers arrived here at 9:30 o'clock tonight from New York with George Richard Ridgewell, 19, wanted here on a charge of murder in the strangulation death of Austin Currie, Grosse Pointe, Mich.

Sheriff Dehaven, who was accompanied on the trip from New York by Sgt. F. L. Woolf and State Trooper C. A. Seale, said that Ridgewell, who admitted to Federal Bureau of Investigation agents following his arrest at New York Wednesday night his part in the strangulation of Currie, had "very little to say" on the return trip to Virginia. He was turned over to the Virginia authorities by the United States commissioner at New York.

Dehaven said that it was unlikely that Ridgewell would be arraigned for a hearing until William Charles Hall, another ex-sailor, under indictment on a charge of murder in the slaying of Currie, also is returned here. Hall, who was arrested Saturday night at Los Angeles, Calif., is still being detained on the coast and the time of his arrival here has not been determined.

Cold Air Mass Is Beating Hasty Retreat

[By The Associated Press]

January displayed the softer side of its fickle nature Thursday, sending temperatures shooting upward from the Rocky Mountains to the Appalachians.

The warm air from the Southwest followed a short lived sub-zero wave that had brought the season's coldest weather to parts of the Midwest.

The cold air mass was moving swiftly out over the Atlantic and above normal temperatures were forecast for Friday in most Eastern Seaboard states.

Both Houses adjourned until 11 a. m. tomorrow, with an early weekend adjournment scheduled.

Among the House bills sent in was one by Buffington which would give Maryland income taxpayers credit for sums paid to the federal government in income taxes.

The bill would provide that, along with some other exemptions, the full amount of federal taxes, could be deducted before making a computation of the state payment.

Delegate Beckwith (D-Balto. county) sponsored a measure which would grant tax relief to war veterans and their widows. If a veteran or his widow can show that income is less than $1,200 a year, a tax exemption up to $3,000 on property valuation would be granted under terms of the measure.

In the House a bill to create a nine-member Maryland Water Pollution Control Commission got out on the floor but Chairman Clark (D-Harford), of the Agriculture and Natural Resources Committee, said it was a mistake.

The measure would create a group to co-ordinate the work of all agencies having anything to do with Pollution control.

Clark said it became mixed up in some games and fish bills reported favorably by the committee, but that a hearing scheduled for Tuesday would be held.

Air Safety Funds Cut 20 Per Cent, Committee Told

$21,619,000 Trimmed From CAA's Request

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. (AP)—A Budget Bureau slash of nearly 20 per cent in the 1948 federal funds for promoting safe civilian flying was uncovered by the House Commerce Committee today in its inquiry into airplane crashes.

The figures were furnished by T. P. Wright, Civil Aeronautics Administrator. They were part of an elaborate review of the agency's operations during which Wright hailed American civilian flying as the world's safest and disclosed plans for expanding aerial navigation aids.

$113,890,000 Was Requested

His table showed that CAA asked the Budget Bureau—the administration agency which passes on departmental requests for funds—for a total of $113,890,000 to finance its 1948 fiscal year program of maintaining and operating navigation facilities and enforcing safety rules.

Subject to later action by Congress, the Budget Bureau cut the requested funds to $92,271,000, for a $21,619,000 reduction. The table showed cuts ranging as high as 72 per cent in some of CAA's requests since 1941.

Wright offered his figures, he said, without criticism of the Budget Bureau's action. At the same time, he emphasized that past experience had demonstrated that the financial requirements, as originally presented, "have proved to be very real."

Stage Set For Tug-O-War

The appropriations review came as some members—among them Chairman Wolverton (R-NJ)—raised the possibility that insufficient funds may have handicapped the work of the federal agencies charged with promoting civilian air safety.

It also set the stage for a possible tug-o-war between the economy-bent Appropriations Committee and the Commerce Committee. Members of the latter group have emphasized the need of swift utilization of wartime developed navigation aids by the nation's civilian air network.

abducted her by a ruse Monday evening, and who, she said, held her prisoner overnight at a tourist camp while seeking $10,000 ransom.

2 A. M. Rendezvous

Before returning to San Francisco, Shelton said:

"It is only human to be mistaken in the identification of a photograph. My own bitterness is against the few guys who made the identification positive."

The 2 a. m. rendezvous, on a back road near Lodi, was arranged by two Lodi policemen. Among those present were the girl's mother and her father, J. Edward Devine.

Devine shook Shelton's hand afterwards.

"I'm glad for you that it turned out this way," he said.

The exoneration of Shelton left police without any leads.

"We have no other suspects," said Lodi Police Chief Millard L. Fore. "We are back where we started."

The subject of an all-points police bulletin was a smooth-appearing, well-dressed middle-aged man, identified as E. W. Stiles, who was suspected of the abduction while allegedly posing as a representative of a national magazine in search of a story and photographs of a "typical American high school girl."

Forced Into Auto

Using the name of Giles in Lodi, he arranged with the Dean family to have their daughter's picture taken at a Lodi studio.

Alice Dean told police that after the photographs were taken, the man forced her into a car with a gun and a knife, drove her to a tourist camp near Sacramento and held her prisoner during the night.

Meanwhile, a purported note and telephone call to the father demanded $10,000 ransom. The following day, however, Alice Dean said her captor departed and she escaped.

went into the stories that May put pressure on War Department officials to give business to the Garssons.

It charged that the defendants conspired to defraud the United States of its rights to have its officers "free to transact the official business of the United States unhindered, unhampered, unobstructed and unimpaired by the exertion upon them of dishonest, corrupt, unlawful, improper and undue pressure and influence."

It charged further that "it was a part of said conspiracy" that the Garssons and Freeman "would corruptly give and pay money and other valuable considerations to Andrew J. Move To Dismiss "Trifling" Portal Claims Is Made

Government Files Brief With Picard

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—The government, facing the loss of huge sums in tax rebates under portal pay claims, stepped into the key case today with an argument that claims should not be paid for mere "trifles" of time.

The Justice Department filed a brief with Federal Judge Frank A. Picard asking dismissal of claims of the Mt. Clemens (Mich.) Pottery Company workers on the grounds that, as the record now stands, they are "trifling."

However, it also suggested that further evidence should be taken to see whether there is more substance to the claims.

Moves To Draw Line

The Mt. Clemens case is the one which led to the now famous Supreme Court decision that workers are entitled to pay for all time "controlled" by the employer—not just that spent in productive labor. It set off the current series of suits for claims totalling more than $4,000,000,000. Some of these make claims for time spent changing clothes, washing up, etc.

The Justice Department's move today does not challenge the principle of the high court's decision. It simply heads toward drawing a line somewhere between what "controlled" time, other than labor, should be paid for and what is too insignificant to warrant attention under the wage-hour law.

On both sides of Congress, meanwhile, the portal suits claimed close attention.

Picard Termed "Pro-Labor"

Chairman J. Parnell Thomas (R-NJ), of the House Committee on Unamerican Activities, told the House that the man who "concocted" the idea of the suits and the lawyer who filed the Mt. Clemens case "both have long records of Communist affiliation." He named them, respectively, as Ben Riskin, former research director for the CIO union of mine, mill and smelter workers, and Edward Lamb, Toledo, O.

The Senate Judiciary Subcommittee considering bills to outlaw the suits received a transcript of remarks which Judge Picard made in another portal pay case involving the Chrysler Corporation. On the basis of these remarks, a Chrysler attorney, Theodore R. Iserman, told the subcommittee that the judge was "strictly pro-labor."

Last year 2,500,000 beds were provided by the Salvation army for needy men, women and children in the United States.

No Trace Found Of Jail Breakers

JESSUP, Md., Jan. 23 (AP)—Four slightly-built prisoners sawed a bar over a dining room window and squeezed through a space seven and a quarter inches wide to escape from the Maryland House of Correction early today.

State and Anne Arundel county police reported a dozen hours later their widespread search had developed no trace of the quartet.

Warden J. L. Wright said the men, all from Baltimore, were members of a 93-man detail wakened at 4 a. m. to prepare the 7:30 breakfast for other inmates.

He said a lever plus the cold weather must have enabled the men to saw the bar at the bottom and snap it off at the top. Usually the bars are considered impregnable, he said.

The escape was discovered about 6 a. m.

Wright said the four were wearing regulation blue dungarees and are not considered dangerous.

The men were identified as Allen Chenowith, 41, who had served four months on a two-year-sentence on a sex perversion conviction; Aldine Carroll, 27, who had served three months of an 18-month sentence for burglary; Joseph Heagett, 18, who had served two years on a three-year burglary sentence plus a two-year term for escaping from the state prison farm near Hagerstown, and Edwin W. Elliott, 17, who had served one year on a two-year sentence for larceny.

said that the British and the United States supported Australia's request. American sources, however, did not report complete United States support.

Backing up his demand, in which Brazil, Canada and South Africa have concurred, Hodgson told the deputies that Australia mustered 700,000 effective military personnel in the war, or 17 per cent of her population between the ages of 18 and 45. He said this percentage was higher than that of any other belligerent.

Allies Ban Hapsburg Dynasty

The four-power Deputy Foreign Ministers Council has agreed to write into the Austrain peace treaty a permanent veto on any future claim of the once mighty Hapsburg dynasty to the non-existent Austrian throne, an American informant also said.

The informant said the ban had not been discussed in detail, but it would apply presumably to any aspirant to the crown.

In other developments today the deputies received a Greek demand for "the highest possible level" in reparations payments from Germany to be delivered "in the shortest possible time."

ky county, that he believed the woman had left the bus for a few minutes during a rest stop at Akron. He did not say where she had boarded the bus.

"She appeared to have fallen asleep shortly after we left Akron," Welch told the deputy, "and I thought nothing about it until I tried to rouse her when we reached Fremont."

After the woman was unconscious in Fremont for almost 24 hours she was brought here for shock treatment at the state hospital where physicians earlier said she could not recall her name or where she lived.

Authorities at Baltimore's University Hospital reported to police late today that the girl had been missing since Tuesday afternoon.

The hospital said extensive efforts had failed to locate the dark-haired girl, scheduled to graduate in June.

Police immediately transmitted a description on the 11-state police teletype system.

McKellar Seeks To Connect Clapp With Communists

Nominee For TVA Post Stands Firm

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP) — Sen. McKellar (D-Tenn) sought today to show that Gordon R. Clapp, President Truman's nominee for chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, was linked with a "Communist front organization."

But Clapp, who has emphatically denied he is a Communist, stood on a previous statement that he is an American without political affiliation.

The Senator, long a critic of the way TVA is run, questioned Clapp at a hearing on his nomination before the Senate Public Works Committee.

The Senator showed committee members photostatic copies of records of the House unAmerican Activities Committee which he said listed Clapp as a sponsor in 1940 of a meeting of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare in Chattanooga, Tenn.

Saying the conference was a "Communist-front organization," McKellar asked Clapp if he attended the meeting.

"I may have been listed as a sponsor," answered the nominee, "but I don't believe I attended the meeting."

Clapp added "if I didn't attend the meeting, it was not because I had any hesitation about doing so." He said he had "great admiration" for the leadership of Dr. Frank Graham, head of the conference and president of the University of North Carolina.

Clapp Is Recommended

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP) — Civic, veterans, womens, farm and labor organization leaders of Decatur, Ala., today telegraphed Sen. Revercomb (R-WVa), chairman of the Senate Public Works Committee:

"Will you let the people counsel with your committee?

"We respectfully ask that you recommend Gordon R. Clapp nomination as director of Tennessee Valley Authority. The people in the valley want him on the basis of his personal integrity and capable performance and his understanding of valley efforts and problems."

Gen. Geiger, Top Marine Corps Leader, Succumbs

A native of Middleburg, Fla., he died at the Bethesda (Md.) Naval Hospital from inflammation of the veins and pulmonary complications.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Eunice Renshaw Geiger, Rosemond, Pensacola, Fla.; a son, Roy S. Geiger, who is in the Army at Fort Sill, Okla.; and a daughter, Mrs. Robert J. Jackson, Pensacola.

Funeral service will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 p. m. E.S.T. at the Army's Fort Myer chapel with burial afterward in the nearby Arlington National Cemetery.

Anderson Admits Truman Cut Fund

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Anderson reluctantly acknowledged at a Senate hearing today that President Truman lopped $100,000,000 off the $300,000,000 asked by his department for farm benefit payments in the next fiscal year.

Two midwest Senators assured Anderson, however, that they are willing to spend $1,000,000,000 or more if necessary to maintain farm income at a fair level.

"Even if it costs a billion it would be a cheap price," said Sen. Young (R-ND).

Sen. Lucas (D-Ill) said he agreed with Young because "if agriculture goes down, everything goes with it."

Lucas said Congress should keep this in mind in planning to slash government outlays and cut income taxes.

Testifying before the new Senate Agriculture Committee, Anderson had answered questions on how much the existing price-support program for farm products would cost the taxpayers. This program, started in wartime, is due to run until the end of 1948. It is distinct from the farm benefit payments, which are made to farmers for carrying out soil conservation program.

Anderson told the lawmakers that if employment and buying power remain at high levels, the price-support program might range from $150,000,000 to $300,000,000 next year.

But, he said, if general economic conditions drop, the figure might rise to $1,000,000,000 or more. It was then that Young and Lucas made their remarks about being willing to spend that much.

Winchester Gets Slaying Suspect

WINCHESTER, Va., Jan. 23 (AP)—Deputy Sheriff Robert Dehaven, of Frederick county, and two Virginia state troopers arrived here at 9:30 o'clock tonight from New York with George Richard Ridgewell, 19, wanted here on a charge of murder in the strangulation death of Austin Currie, Grosse Pointe, Mich.

Sheriff Dehaven, who was accompanied on the trip from New York by Sgt. F. L. Woolf and State Trooper C. A. Seale, said that Ridgewell, who admitted to Federal Bureau of Investigation agents following his arrest at New York Wednesday night his part in the strangulation of Currie, had "very little to say" on the return trip to Virginia. He was turned over to the Virginia authorities by the United States commissioner at New York.

Dehaven said that it was unlikely that Ridgewell would be arraigned for a hearing until William Charles Hall, another ex-sailor, under indictment on a charge of murder in the slaying of Currie, also is returned here. Hall, who was arrested Saturday night at Los Angeles, Calif., is still being detained on the coast and the time of his arrival here has not been determined.

Cold Air Mass Is Beating Hasty Retreat

[By The Associated Press]

January displayed the softer side of its fickle nature Thursday, sending temperatures shooting upward from the Rocky Mountains to the Appalachians.

The warm air from the Southwest followed a short lived sub-zero wave that had brought the season's coldest weather to parts of the Midwest.

The cold air mass was moving swiftly out over the Atlantic and above normal temperatures were forecast for Friday in most Eastern Seaboard states.

Bill Lowering

whereby Virginia courts try Virginians arrested for violations.

Both Houses adjourned until 11 a. m. tomorrow, with an early weekend adjournment scheduled.

Among the House bills sent in was one by Buffington which would give Maryland income taxpayers credit for sums paid to the federal government in income taxes.

The bill would provide that, along with some other exemptions, the full amount of federal taxes, could be deducted before making a computation of the state payment.

Delegate Beckwith (D-Balto. county) sponsored a measure which would grant tax relief to war veterans and their widows. If a veteran or his widow can show that income is less than $1,200 a year, a tax exemption up to $3,000 on property valuation would be granted under terms of the measure.

In the House a bill to create a nine-member Maryland Water Pollution Control Commission got out on the floor but Chairman Clark (D-Harford), of the Agriculture and Natural Resources Committee, said it was a mistake.

The measure would create a group to co-ordinate the work of all agencies having anything to do with Pollution control.

Clark said it became mixed up in some games and fish bills reported favorably by the committee, but that a hearing scheduled for Tuesday would be held.

Air Safety Funds Cut 20 Per Cent, Committee Told

$21,619,000 Trimmed From CAA's Request

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23. (AP)—A Budget Bureau slash of nearly 20 per cent in the 1948 federal funds for promoting safe civilian flying was uncovered by the House Commerce Committee today in its inquiry into airplane crashes.

The figures were furnished by T. P. Wright, Civil Aeronautics Administrator. They were part of an elaborate review of the agency's operations during which Wright hailed American civilian flying as the world's safest and disclosed plans for expanding aerial navigation aids.

$113,890,000 Was Requested

His table showed that CAA asked the Budget Bureau—the administration agency which passes on departmental requests for funds—for a total of $113,890,000 to finance its 1948 fiscal year program of maintaining and operating navigation facilities and enforcing safety rules.

Subject to later action by Congress, the Budget Bureau cut the requested funds to $92,271,000, for a $21,619,000 reduction. The table showed cuts ranging as high as 72 per cent in some of CAA's requests since 1941.

Wright offered his figures, he said, without criticism of the Budget Bureau's action. At the same time, he emphasized that past experience had demonstrated that the financial requirements, as originally presented, "have proved to be very real."

Stage Set For Tug-O-War

The appropriations review came as some members—among them Chairman Wolverton (R-NJ)—raised the possibility that insufficient funds may have handicapped the work of the federal agencies charged with promoting civilian air safety.

It also set the stage for a possible tug-o-war between the economy-bent Appropriations Committee and the Commerce Committee. Members of the latter group have emphasized the need of swift utilization of wartime developed navigation aids by the nation's civilian air network.

Search Renewed

abducted her by a ruse Monday evening, and who, she said, held her prisoner overnight at a tourist camp while seeking $10,000 ransom.

2 A. M. Rendezvous

Before returning to San Francisco, Shelton said:

"It is only human to be mistaken in the identification of a photograph. My own bitterness is against the few guys who made the identification positive."

The 2 a. m. rendezvous, on a back road near Lodi, was arranged by two Lodi policemen. Among those present were the girl's mother and her father, J. Edward Devine.

Devine shook Shelton's hand afterwards.

"I'm glad for you that it turned out this way," he said.

The exoneration of Shelton left police without any leads.

"We have no other suspects," said Lodi Police Chief Millard L. Fore. "We are back where we started."

The subject of an all-points police bulletin was a smooth-appearing, well-dressed middle-aged man, identified as E. W. Stiles, who was suspected of the abduction while allegedly posing as a representative of a national magazine in search of a story and photographs of a "typical American high school girl."

Forced Into Auto

Using the name of Giles in Lodi, he arranged with the Dean family to have their daughter's picture taken at a Lodi studio.

Alice Dean told police that after the photographs were taken, the man forced her into a car with a gun and a knife, drove her to a tourist camp near Sacramento and held her prisoner during the night.

Meanwhile, a purported note and telephone call to the father demanded $10,000 ransom. The following day, however, Alice Dean said her captor departed and she escaped.

It charged that the defendants conspired to defraud the United States of its rights to have its officers "free to transact the official business of the United States unhindered, unhampered, unobstructed and unimpaired by the exertion upon them of dishonest, corrupt, unlawful, improper and undue pressure and influence."

County Legislators Demand Their Pound Of Flesh

For the first time, as long as can be remembered, the news columns of this publication are to be boycotted by members of the legislative delegation from the county in which this newspaper is published. By that action the constituents of the delegation are to be deprived of information on proposed legislation having a direct bearing on their welfare.

This is all occasioned by the adoption of a resolution by members of the Allegany County delegation to the Maryland General Assembly, and the Senator from this county: "To furnish no more news to the Cumberland papers until such time as they are furnished with a copy or copies of the papers so they may read the same."

It should be pointed out that the Cumberland News, the Cumberland Evening Times and the Cumberland Sunday Times found it necessary, because of the newsprint shortage during the war, to discontinue the practice of furnishing free copies of these newspapers to public officials, and city and county governing bodies. The newsprint shortage is continuing, and the policy regarding free copies of the papers has, as a result, had to be maintained.

It should further be pointed out that that policy has not been applied solely to city and county officials, and departments, but to employes of the Times & Alleganian Company, publishers of the three Cumberland papers, as well, and when either or all of the three newspapers are delivered to the homes of employes they pay the same subscription rate as do their neighbors and other subscribers. We cite this merely to show there has been no attempt by the publishers of the Cumberland papers to discriminate in their policy, and we see no reason why an exception should be made in the case of the Allegany county delegation to the General Assembly.

If the Allegany county delegation could be successful in keeping from the public the nature of bills submitted to them by various officials and departments of government within the county; or those drafted or proposed by the delegates themselves, it is entirely possible that legislation its constituents would neither condone nor desire could be "slipped" through the legislature, to become laws, without the people of the county being given the opportunity to oppose or urge, as the case might be, with the result that the first knowledge they would have that such laws are on the statute books would come when enforcements of them would be attempted.

The people of Allegany county want to know what their delegation, and those holding offices of trust in the county, are proposing in the way of measures to govern them. The people of the county, we feel sure, insist that such matters as come before the delegation be open and above board, and they will expect to be kept informed through the Cumberland newspapers, the action of the Allegany county delegation to the contrary notwithstanding.

We should think the legislators would consider it one of their major desires to keep those they have been elected to serve fully informed on legislation proposed or contemplated, and would appreciate the facilities a newspaper offers, and which are at all times at their disposal, through which such service might be rendered.

But it would appear that the delegation considers the receiving of the newspapers, gratis, paramount to everything else, and being denied this, will endeavor to prevent the newspapers of their home county from securing information of vital import to the people.

It is needless to say we will not submit to the ultimatum by deviating from our policy. At the same time we will make certain our readers are not deprived of news, to which they are rightly entitled, that develops within the delegation at Annapolis. Of this our readers can be assured.

The quaint suggestion that man might have made greater progress if he had not been so well equipped for sitting down is now advanced by an economist.

Movie Reciprocity

Sir Stafford Cripps, the Laborite president of the British Board of Trade, in a speech the other day touched on a subject that is a source of constant irritation to the British. This is the fact that the English market is swamped with motion pictures made in Hollywood, while only a handful of British-made films are shown on this side of the Atlantic. American films drain $100,000,000 from Britain's slim dollar balance, he said.

If Hollywood doesn't send better pictures to the British market and unless British films receive reciprocal distribution in the United States, Sir Stafford warned, Britain may restrict film imports. What innovation British movie houses would adopt to attract customers in that event he didn't reveal.

There are various reasons for the conditions of which Britishers complain which they might as well be frank enough to recognize. If their country is flooded with Hollywood-made films it is because the British public likes these motion pictures and the output of the American film industry is far greater than that of the British studios. Under these circumstances it would hardly be fair to insist that one British film be shown in the United States for every American film imported into England.

Before British films can become popular in American cinema palaces, it will be necessary that the British film industry turn out a product that will appeal to American audiences.

When industry, with the atomic threat in mind, goes underground, will suits be filed for trapdoor to trapdoor pay?

One For The Record

Butter got the spotlight as OPA died last Fall. Prices shot up to a dollar a pound. Alarmed advocates of price-fixing predicted it would go to five dollars.

The prevailing price of butter in Cumberland now is in the neighborhood of 70 cents. The OPA ceiling price was 67 cents plus a 17-cent Government subsidy, a total of 84 cents a pound.

The current price, six months after the end of OPA, is thus about 10 cents less than the OPA ceiling (plus subsidy) and roughly $4.29 less than the alarmists predicted.

And—you can buy butter.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

RESEARCH ON MALARIA REMEDIES

WORLD WAR II focused attention on malaria because many of our soldiers and sailors were sent into highly infested areas. The catastrophe also stimulated research for, while quinine and atabrin control the disease, they are not curative. Thus numerous compounds were produced in an attempt to find a better remedy.

Malaria is transmitted from one individual to another thru the bite of an infected Anopheles mosquite. Its spread, therefore, depends upon two variables—the insect and the patient. Since it is difficult to eradicate the parasite in victims, our best means of fighting the disorder has been thru screening, DDT, and oiling or drying the breeding places of the insect.

Prior to hostilities much had been done along this line but, with the return of our veterans, there was a growing fear that the balance would again be upset, giving the malady a chance to flourish—perhaps worse than before. To counteract the possibility, the medical departments in the armed services made every effort to treat their cases adequately before release. Apparently the plan worked, for there has been no serious outbreak.

Many service men still suffer relapses. They develop headache, diffuse aches and pains, and now and then nausea and abdominal discomfort. Then comes a sudden rise in temperature associated with chills and weakness. By treating each bout with proper doses of quinine and atabrin, discomfort subsides quickly. But in a certain percentage, in spite of everything, another episode within three weeks or months is likely to arise. As time goes by the attacks become less frequent and ultimately the disease burns itself out and cure is established.

There are various types of malaria and some are handled more easily than others. During the last few years several reports have appeared on new preparations to drive the parasites from their hiding places in the body. Of these, pentaquine (SN 13,276) and chloroquine (SN 7,618, are promising.

Most and his colleagues studied the effect of chloroquine, comparing it with atabrin and quinine on a large number of men who had acquired the vivax infection while on duty in the Pacific or Mediterranean theaters. It was discovered that the new preparation acted much more quickly than the old in controlling fever and other symptoms and in causing the parasites to disappear from the blood. The treatment period was shorter, fewer reacations ensued, and there were no disturbing manifestations as frequently followed the administration of the quinine. Relapses did occur, however, but when compared with the other compounds, the proportion was less. Furthermore, a longer interval elapsed. For example, chills and fever reappeared 120 days after the drugs were administered in 85 per cent of the patients taking quinine; in 50 per cent of the atabrin group; but in only 16 per cent of the chloroquine subjects. This is encouraging.

Loeb used pentaquine but found that the substance was toxic and therefore of limited value. When utilized alone, the results were not startling but if combined with quinine, complete elimination of the disease took place in 16 of 17 patients. In addition, there has been no return of symptoms in 35 who received the mixture during their third attack. Whether the chemical will prove practical is not easy to say now inasmuch as reactions are common if employed for a long time. For this reason it cannot be prescribed day after day to prevent the ailment or suppress symptoms.

Research is continuing. It is highly possible that eventually malaria will join the ranks of typhoid, plague, and smallpox as potential rather than actual trouble-makers.

REPLY

One which cannot be slipped back because of adhesions caused by pressure or inflammation. A strangulated hernia which can no longer be reduced safely, except by operation, also falls into this category.

IRIS INFECTION

REPLY

Probably not, since removal of the cause is the most essential part of the treatment.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

A recent press item says that the movie, "California" depicts the bitter fight waged by that young republic to be admitted as the 31st state of the Union. Actually, it was imperative that California be admitted as quickly as possible. The other states had 2,000,000 buckets filled with smog and needed a place to dump it. (For the benefit of the 47 other states, "smog" is nothing but dew).

They also wanted a territory where they could exile their wild drivers. Then without California, Santa Anita might have ended up just another crap game.

And then the people who were planning on making movies needed a spot near the ocean in case they had to make a getaway. Of course, they had to find a state big enough to house Sydney Greenstreet, California and Texas tossed for it. And Texas won .

And California's a great help to comedians. What would we do without towns like Cucamonga, Azusa and Anaheim?

Georgia Big Business Pulls For Talmadge; Republicans Pick Interesting Sergeant-At-Arms; Congressmen Use Sergeant-At-Arms As Bank

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22. — Not many of them will admit it, but it was the powerful backstage support given Herman Talmadge by Georgia big business that really boosted him up the steps of the state capitol.

One Georgia businessman franker than the rest is genial Chip Robert, ex-treasurer of the Democratic National Committee and engineer for some of the biggest Army-Navy construction jobs. Chip candidly admits that he pulled all the wires possible to put the cracker dictator on the throne of Georgia.

Chip is not so frank, however, about one hitherto undisclosed brush he had with retiring Gov. Ellis Arnall which may shed light on his love for Talmadge.

Some time ago, Gov. Arnall called at the White House and invited Presdient Truman to visit Georgia, the second home of Franklin Roosevelt. Truman tentatively accepted, though plans were left indefinite.

Shortly thereafter, Chip Robert went to the White House and also invited Truman to come to Georgia. And, unlike Arnall, who had said little to the press, Chip gave out a detailed statement of his plans for entertaining the President of the United States.

Arnall Calls Robert

Back in Atlanta, Gov. Arnall read Chip's ornate entertainment schedule in the morning paper. Immediately he picked up the telephone and called Mr. Robert.

"Chip," said the Governor, "I see you have invited the President to come to Georgia. That's fine. I also note that you've arranged for him to have breakfast at the Driving Club, a luncheon at the City Club, and a reception at the Atlanta Biltmore. That's fine, too. We Georgians are hospitable.

"But I think you should also know that at the same time you're inviting Mr. Truman to breakfast at the Driving Club, I'm inviting him to breakfast at the Governor's mansion. And at the same time you say he's going to be lunching at the City Club, I'm inviting him to lunch with me. And at the time you're inviting him to a reception at the Atlanta Biltmore, I'm inviting him to Warm Springs.

"And" concluded Arnall, "the President is going to have to choose between Chip Robert and the Governor of Georgia."

Mr. Robert immediately dropped his plans for entertaining President Truman. Instead, he began laying plans to put Talmadge in the Governor's mansion.

GOP Pot Vs. Democratic Kettle

If there is one spot in black Republican Pennsylvania that really needs cleaning up, it is Delaware County—run by the notorious McClure machine, a bunch of gamblers, bootleggers, and petty chiselers.

And if there is one spot in Washington that really needs cleaning up, it is the Sergeant-at-Arms office in the House of Representatives, presided over for 15 years by a genial democratic race-track fan and oil speculator, who left behind a shortage of over $125,000.

Yet of all places, and with the entire USA to pick from, the Republicans went to graft-ridden Delaware County, Pennsylvania (former home of this columnist), to pick the man entrusted with cleaning up the Democratic Sergeant-at-Arms mess.

The new Republican Sergeant-at-Arms, William Russell, was former treasurer of Delaware County, placed in that office by the famous McClure machine. The McClure machine has placed some other interesting people in positions of public trust, and here are some of them:

Wm. J. McClurg, who served nine months in jail for gambling, now sealer of weights and measures of the City of Chester; Hubert J. Ryan, sentenced to one year and a day in a Federal rum conspiracy, now meat inspector of Chester; Albert J. Reading, sentenced to 18 months suspended sentence and three years probation in a rum conspiracy, now deputy sheriff; Harry G. Tillman, sentenced to one year and a day and fined $3,000 in a rum conspiracy, now deputy sheriff.

Then there is John J. McClure himself, boss of the county, who was sentenced to 18 months in jail and fined $10,000 in a rum conspiracy while serving as state senator, but who got his jail sentence dropped when the prohibition act was repealed.

GOP Shortage Trouble

It was as a part of this machine that new Sergeant-at-Arms William Russell served as Delaware County treasurer from 1936 through 1939, later being brought to Washington by Congressman Wolfenden for a minor job in the Sergeant-at-Arms' office.

Having served as a GOP member of the Sergeant-at-Arms office under the Democrats, William Russell, according to that sacred shibboleth, seniority, stood in line to become the new Republican Sergeant-at-Arms. And Pennsylvania Congressmen, ever zealous to garner patronage for their state, hastened to put him in.

In fact they were in such a hurry and so zealous that they hushed up one interesting fact in Mr. Russell's past career—his row with the Aronomink Swimming Pool Club at Drexel Hill, whose books, at the time Russell was treasurer, showed a shortage of $6,000. Feeling against Mr. Russell among other club members was high. They even resorted to a court order to make him bring back their books.

Finally, the club got its money, thanks to Russell's ambition to be Sergeant-at-Arms. For, just 10 days before Congress opened, Congressman Richard Simpson of Huntingdon, Pa., required Russell to get a letter from the club showing that the money had been paid. Incidentally, he admonished Russell to keep the whole matter quiet.

Where Russell suddenly got the $6,000 to pay the club is his secret. In this connection, it is interesting to note that, a few years before, he had lost his house through inability to pay interest on the mortgage. Get the $6,000 he did, however, and is now comfortably ensconced as Sergeant-at-Arms of the new House of Representatives with a salary of $12,000.

Congressmen's Bank

Meanwhile, because the Sergeant-at-Arms office remains closed, many Congressmen are up against it financially. With heavy campaign expenses and low exchequers they had been looking forward to dropping in on the Sergeant-at-Arms for an advance on their first pay check. But his window is closed.

This borrowing from the Sergeant-at-Arms is a time-honored custom and accounts in part for the $125,000 shortage under retired Kenneth Romney. The genial Democrat operated a bank for members of the House of Representatives, in effect, loaning the advance salaries of prosperous Congressmen to the less prosperous.

Romney had notes drawn on the "National Bank of Washington," an institution which never existed, and charged his borrowers an overall interest rate of 14 per cent. It was a bonanza deal and would have netted him more than his $12,000 salary had not some of the checks bounced.

One $10,000 check signed by John H. Smith, ex-Congressman from Florida, was found by probers never to have been presented to a bank. Romney apparently knew it was no good, so never tried to cash it.

Incidentally, the shortages extended back to the Republican days between 1925 and 1930, so Sergeant-at-Arms trouble apparently is an ancient evil enjoyed by both parties. It will now be interesting to see how new incumbent Russell, trained in the malodorous politics of Delaware County, Pa., handles his important office.

16,167,856 Federal Employes One Reason For U. S. Budget

By SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL

According to figures given to Congressman Buffett of Nebraska, by the Library of Congress, the total number on the federal payroll on June 30 last, was 16,167,856! This does not include those drawing unemployment compensation. This may help to explain a Presidential budget which will cost the average family $1,000 in taxes this coming year. Mr. Truman does not see any possibility of reducing it. Do you?

Senator Byrd says, "We haven't scratched the surface on the opportunity for retrenchment in every single agency of government." A three-star general says a billion or two could be saved on national defense if we unify the Army and Navy, as President Truman recommends. This one saving would amount to $30. to $60 per family.

"Portal to Portal" Commentary

It is some commentary on the irresponsible action of the majority of the Supreme Court of the United States in the "portal to portal" cases, that their decision has turned the stomachs of fifteen A. F. of L. unions, with 1,600,000 members. Mr. John P. Frey, President of the A. F. of L. Metal Trades Council, says that these billions of dollars of law suits let loose by the Supreme Court are "a definite violation of the good faith and integrity of collective bargaining. . . . Our trade unions have no assets more valuable than their agreements with employers, and the integrity which is involved.

Well said, Mr. Frey. If there were more like you, this country would be better off.

In view of the tremendous amount of taxes which would be lost by the Treasury if the "portal to portal" suits are upheld, Senators Wiley of Wisconsin and Capehart of Indiana say Congress cannot hope to reduce taxes until these stale claims are outlawed.

I note with anguish the "labor pains" of the socialist government of Great Britain. Having "nationalized" transportation, it now has a transport strike on its hands and has called out the troops. The truck drivers who work for the government don't like the soldiers who work for the government. They call the soldiers "black legs." Well, if a Labor government doesn't please labor, maybe our domestic Attlees will have trouble bamboozling American working men on the virtues of a socialistic government on this side of the Atlantic.

A Wallace Example

We have invited ourselves in on the control of the Dardenelles which has been a bone of contention between Russia and the British Empire for two centuries.

We have taken sides with Britain and against Russia, Russia retorts in pleasant tones by demanding the internationalization of the Panama and Suez Canals!

Perhaps this is what ex-Vice President Wallace means when he says Russia wants to meet us halfway! Would we ever agree to remove our own defenses from the Canal which we built and which ties together our Atlantic and Pacific seaboards?

A Federal Court has just ruled that if a member of one union which has a collective bargaining contract prefers another union and asks others to join him, the first union can expel him and the company must fire him from his job. Will he now join in the chorus, when he hears the beautiful words, "Sweet land of Liberty, of thee I sing?"

Republicans Show Solidarity In First Big Test Vote In Senate

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—Considering the narrow majority by which the Republican control the Senate, the roll call by which the Truman-Mead War Investigating Committee was continued was a significant test of Republican solidarity on both sides of the aisle.

With the defection of Senators Morse of Oregon, Aiken of Vermont, Tobey of New Hampshire and Cooper of Kentucky, on the first test vote, the Republicans nevertheless kept the remainder of their number in line while the Democrats held tightly their party following with only one exception—Senator O'Daniel of Texas. Late, on the final vote, and Republican Senators Tobey and Langer voted against their party.

To the outside world it may be surprising to find all the Democrats but one voting against an investigation of what happened to war contracts and war funds and the Republicans, with only a few exceptions, voting to continue the inquiry. But the truth is that both sides, despite what was said in the dabate, felt it was a party matter. The vote puts the Democrats in the position of wanting to conceal and the Republicans in the position of wanting to expose. Politically, the Democrats maneuvered themselves into a very unfortunate position. Usually even political minorities hesitate to vote against investigations of broad public interest.

Public Opinion Important

Under the circumstances, it is nevertheless far more disquieting to the Republicans to find their majority not too secure whereas the minority party will be encouraged that such harmony prevailed.

The incident may have far-reaching repercussions. If the Republicans in the Senate are unable to inquire into what the New Deal did with public money and the Democratic minority is able to squelch any inquiries by getting aid from insurgent Republicans, the job will naturally fall to the House of Representatives, where the Republicans have better control and perhaps better party discipline.

It is true the War Investigating Committee will be continued for only a year and will have to ask the Senate for further authority a year hence, but if the revelations in the next twelve months produce a public opinion which demands continuance of the inquiry there will be less opposition next time than there was this week.

The Democrats, of course, had a good alibi in their vote against continuing the Special Investigating Committee. They argued that they were not against the investigation itself but wanted it done by the regular committee on armed services or else by the regular committee on expenditures.

It so happens that the Republican senators who are most intimate with the work of the Truman-Mead Committee in the past and who have already familiarized themselves with the thread of the testimony would not head up either of the regular committees to which the Democrats wanted the investigation assigned.

Regular Committees Busy

Regular committees are much too busy with routine work. Had the special committee in this instance been voted down, it seems likely that little more would have been heard of the many followed clues which the Special Committee has had in mind pursuing.

When tens of billions of dollars of the public money are spent in war contracts and when large discretionary funds are at the disposal of public officials, it is disheartening to see members of the Senate trying by indirection to sidetrack such an inquiry. Many of the Democrats sincerely believed, of course, that no wrongdoing would be uncovered anyway, but they voted against continuance of the Special Committee just the same.

The episode will have this consequence: Senate investigations will hereafter be voted on first by the regular committees, and if a majority of the regular committees record themselves as believing that the job could best be done by a special committee, that recommendation will be made to the entire Senate and the regular committee will support the proposal.

This procedure, which has been proposed by Senator Taft for future cases, will soon be voted on by the Senate and it will afford another opportunity to see whether the forces of concealment or exposure are to emerge triumphant.

PITCHING HORSESHOES by Billy Rose

Five of us were sitting around Toots Shor's the other night, too full of talk to go home. Around the seventh cup of coffee, we got to chinning about Damon Runyon and his stories of Manhattan. From Runyon we segued to Paul Gallico, and from Gallico to Ben Hecht. When we got to O. Henry, we closed the book. You don't talk about home-run hitters after you've mentioned the Babe.

Billy Rose

A fellow who makes a sweet dollar with a pencil spoke up. "Did you ever read O. Henry's 'Gift of the Magi'?" he asked. "I think it has the best trick ending of any short story I ever read. When it came to hitting you over the head with the last sentence, O. Henry was the granddaddy of them all."

"With one exception," broke in an old-time police reporter, who never banked more than $60 in any one week.

"Who do you mean?" I piped up, "De Maupassant-"

"No, professor," said the old-timer. "I'm talking about a fellow around this town who uses the pen name of The Law of Averages. Every day he pulls trick endings out of his hat that make O. Henry read like the Congressional Record."

Cites Rocco Case

"As for instance?" asked a Hollywood writer, who had flown East for some life-giving pastrami.

"As for a thousand instances," said the reporter. "Look at the recent Rocco case. A man picks up a girl, hands her what he says is a camera, and tells her to take a picture of his wife. The girl snaps the shutter, and a concealed shotgun tears his wife's leg off. Tricky enough for you?"

Danny Arnstein, the taxi tycoon who opened the Burma Road, took up where the police reporter left off. "A fellow used to hack for me who belongs in somebody's short story," he said. "One night he drove me home in a company cab. At Broadway and 50th, he made turn against the light. A cop stopped him and bawled the bejabbers out of him. 'Let's see your license, wise guy,' he said to the hackie, reaching for his summons book. He looked at the license and then put the book back in his pocket. 'Watch yourself on those turns,' he said politely. 'Lots of careless drivers these days'."

"What's the point?" said the Hollywood genius, spearing a cold cut.

"The name on the license," said Danny, "was Reverend George Luetjen, D.D., Bishop of the Church of Jesus and Watch Mission. He used to drive a taxi four days a week to support his little church in Long Island City."

One of Toots' waiters who believes in free speech chimed in. "Here's one for you," he said. "Years ago I worked down at the Cafe Royale on Second Avenue. It was a radical hang-out. The customers used to sit around, figuring how to get rid of the Czar. All night long, they'd mark up the table tops with plans to capture Moscow. Even the waiters got into the arguments. All except one. He never talked politics. He would just mop the tables with a damp rag and ask, 'More tea, gentlemen-' Serious little geezer. Used to hang his clothes in the locker next to mine. His name was Bronstein."

"Never heard of him," said the Hollywoodsman.

"Yes, you did," said the police reporter. "When he changed his name to Leon Trotsky."

"Point-killer!" grumbled the waiter, and went off to get more coffee.

"Those are pretty good stories," said the writer with the big income tax. "But the finishes don't compare with any of a dozen in O. Henry's 'Four Million.'"

"Kick this one around," said the police reporter. "You all know Arthur and Irving Caesar. When they were boys down on the East Side, they used to hang out at the University Settlement Home. To keep the kids off the streets, the director arranged weekly debates. The subject of one debate was, 'Resolved: The pen is mightier than the sword.' The Brothers Caesar spoke for the sword. Another pair of brothers—the Diamonds — argued the pen was mightier. Well, I guess the Caesars didn't talk as well then as they do now. The Diamond brothers won the debate.

"The Law-of-Averages fellow put a neat switch to this story.

"The boys who upheld the sword have gotten to be pretty well-known for their work with the pen. Arthur won an Academy Award in Hollywood for writing 'Manhattan Melodrama.' Irving has his name on 'Tea for Two,' a dozen good shows, and a music publishing firm.

"Morris and Joe Diamond, the boys who defended the pen, also got to be pretty well known. On May 2, 1925, they were electrocuted for murdering two men while robbing a bank."

"I know one that tops that," said the waiter . . .

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow

We look upon a stream and it seems the same all the time that we are looking at it—but, as a matter of fact, it is never the same. Each foot of flow is new and different. It is much the same in our lives. We live and meet with those we love day by day, and though each of us grows older, and daily changes, others look the same, or quite so, and we do to them, though we are not the same—only in characteristics.

It has ofen been said that people, who live together for long years, grow to look like each other, and to an extent, perhaps this is true. For, somehow, we absorb the thoughts, and mannerisms of others to a greater extent than we know. We know the Southerner, the Yankee, the far Westerner, and those from other localities, largely from their manners and accent of words.

Time doesn't change. We change. Time goes on. It's just Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow with Time. Our minds react to the weather, to those about us, and according to how we feel at the time. But with a certain, well grounded philosophy of life, and with a plan ever before us, and with "one increasing purpose" as our guide, we can be thankful for the privilege of life itself. We can extract its joy, its gaiety, and its problems, and season every disappointment and sorrow with hope and faith.

Too much questioning is never a good thing for the soul. A willing acceptance of all that life affords should keep us on an even keel, and we should, each day of our lives, count over our blessings—one by one We are always far better off than we may think! We can even grow old—gracefully—as we should, for none of us grows younger, except in spirit. And that growth may be the best of all!

Our Yesterdays keep growing richer in memories. Our Todays keep us alive with activities. Our Tomorrows can well be anticipations, clothed in dreams, in hope, and in an unaltered faith. And in these three tenses we may wrap up all that we are, or hope to be.

County Legislators Demand Their Pound Of Flesh

For the first time, as long as can be remembered, the news columns of this publication are to be boycotted by members of the legislative delegation from the county in which this newspaper is published. By that action the constituents of the delegation are to be deprived of information on proposed legislation having a direct bearing on their welfare.

This is all occasioned by the adoption of a resolution by members of the Allegany County delegation to the Maryland General Assembly, and the Senator from this county: "To furnish no more news to the Cumberland papers until such time as they are furnished with a copy or copies of the papers so they may read the same."

It should be pointed out that the Cumberland News, the Cumberland Evening Times and the Cumberland Sunday Times found it necessary, because of the newsprint shortage during the war, to discontinue the practice of furnishing free copies of these newspapers to public officials, and city and county governing bodies. The newsprint shortage is continuing, and the policy regarding free copies of the papers has, as a result, had to be maintained.

It should further be pointed out that that policy has not been applied solely to city and county officials, and departments, but to employes of the Times & Alleganian Company, publishers of the three Cumberland papers, as well, and when either or all of the three newspapers are delivered to the homes of employes they pay the same subscription rate as do their neighbors and other subscribers. We cite this merely to show there has been no attempt by the publishers of the Cumberland papers to discriminate in their policy, and we see no reason why an exception should be made in the case of the Allegany county delegation to the General Assembly.

If the Allegany county delegation could be successful in keeping from the public the nature of bills submitted to them by various officials and departments of government within the county; or those drafted or proposed by the delegates themselves, it is entirely possible that legislation its constituents would neither condone nor desire could be "slipped" through the legislature, to become laws, without the people of the county being given the opportunity to oppose or urge, as the case might be, with the result that the first knowledge they would have that such laws are on the statute books would come when enforcements of them would be attempted.

The people of Allegany county want to know what their delegation, and those holding offices of trust in the county, are proposing in the way of measures to govern them. The people of the county, we feel sure, insist that such matters as come before the delegation be open and above board, and they will expect to be kept informed through the Cumberland newspapers, the action of the Allegany county delegation to the contrary notwithstanding.

We should think the legislators would consider it one of their major desires to keep those they have been elected to serve fully informed on legislation proposed or contemplated, and would appreciate the facilities a newspaper offers, and which are at all times at their disposal, through which such service might be rendered.

But it would appear that the delegation considers the receiving of the newspapers, gratis, paramount to everything else, and being denied this, will endeavor to prevent the newspapers of their home county from securing information of vital import to the people.

It is needless to say we will not submit to the ultimatum by deviating from our policy. At the same time we will make certain our readers are not deprived of news, to which they are rightly entitled, that develops within the delegation at Annapolis. Of this our readers can be assured.

The quaint suggestion that man might have made greater progress if he had not been so well equipped for sitting down is now advanced by an economist.

Movie Reciprocity

Sir Stafford Cripps, the Laborite president of the British Board of Trade, in a speech the other day touched on a subject that is a source of constant irritation to the British. This is the fact that the English market is swamped with motion pictures made in Hollywood, while only a handful of British-made films are shown on this side of the Atlantic. American films drain $100,000,000 from Britain's slim dollar balance, he said.

If Hollywood doesn't send better pictures to the British market and unless British films receive reciprocal distribution in the United States, Sir Stafford warned, Britain may restrict film imports. What innovation British movie houses would adopt to attract customers in that event he didn't reveal.

There are various reasons for the conditions of which Britishers complain which they might as well be frank enough to recognize. If their country is flooded with Hollywood-made films it is because the British public likes these motion pictures and the output of the American film industry is far greater than that of the British studios. Under these circumstances it would hardly be fair to insist that one British film be shown in the United States for every American film imported into England.

Before British films can become popular in American cinema palaces, it will be necessary that the British film industry turn out a product that will appeal to American audiences.

When industry, with the atomic threat in mind, goes underground, will suits be filed for trapdoor to trapdoor pay?

One For The Record

Butter got the spotlight as OPA died last Fall. Prices shot up to a dollar a pound. Alarmed advocates of price-fixing predicted it would go to five dollars.

The prevailing price of butter in Cumberland now is in the neighborhood of 70 cents. The OPA ceiling price was 67 cents plus a 17-cent Government subsidy, a total of 84 cents a pound.

The current price, six months after the end of OPA, is thus about 10 cents less than the OPA ceiling (plus subsidy) and roughly $4.29 less than the alarmists predicted.

And—you can buy butter.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

RESEARCH ON MALARIA REMEDIES

WORLD WAR II focused attention on malaria because many of our soldiers and sailors were sent into highly infested areas. The catastrophe also stimulated research for, while quinine and atabrin control the disease, they are not curative. Thus numerous compounds were produced in an attempt to find a better remedy.

Malaria is transmitted from one individual to another thru the bite of an infected Anopheles mosquite. Its spread, therefore, depends upon two variables—the insect and the patient. Since it is difficult to eradicate the parasite in victims, our best means of fighting the disorder has been thru screening, DDT, and oiling or drying the breeding places of the insect.

Prior to hostilities much had been done along this line but, with the return of our veterans, there was a growing fear that the balance would again be upset, giving the malady a chance to flourish—perhaps worse than before. To counteract the possibility, the medical departments in the armed services made every effort to treat their cases adequately before release. Apparently the plan worked, for there has been no serious outbreak.

Many service men still suffer relapses. They develop headache, diffuse aches and pains, and now and then nausea and abdominal discomfort. Then comes a sudden rise in temperature associated with chills and weakness. By treating each bout with proper doses of quinine and atabrin, discomfort subsides quickly. But in a certain percentage, in spite of everything, another episode within three weeks or months is likely to arise. As time goes by the attacks become less frequent and ultimately the disease burns itself out and cure is established.

There are various types of malaria and some are handled more easily than others. During the last few years several reports have appeared on new preparations to drive the parasites from their hiding places in the body. Of these, pentaquine (SN 13,276) and chloroquine (SN 7,618, are promising.

Most and his colleagues studied the effect of chloroquine, comparing it with atabrin and quinine on a large number of men who had acquired the vivax infection while on duty in the Pacific or Mediterranean theaters. It was discovered that the new preparation acted much more quickly than the old in controlling fever and other symptoms and in causing the parasites to disappear from the blood. The treatment period was shorter, fewer reacations ensued, and there were no disturbing manifestations as frequently followed the administration of the quinine. Relapses did occur, however, but when compared with the other compounds, the proportion was less. Furthermore, a longer interval elapsed. For example, chills and fever reappeared 120 days after the drugs were administered in 85 per cent of the patients taking quinine; in 50 per cent of the atabrin group; but in only 16 per cent of the chloroquine subjects. This is encouraging.

Loeb used pentaquine but found that the substance was toxic and therefore of limited value. When utilized alone, the results were not startling but if combined with quinine, complete elimination of the disease took place in 16 of 17 patients. In addition, there has been no return of symptoms in 35 who received the mixture during their third attack. Whether the chemical will prove practical is not easy to say now inasmuch as reactions are common if employed for a long time. For this reason it cannot be prescribed day after day to prevent the ailment or suppress symptoms.

Research is continuing. It is highly possible that eventually malaria will join the ranks of typhoid, plague, and smallpox as potential rather than actual trouble-makers.

CANNOT BE RESTORED

C. V. writes: What is an irreducible hernia?

REPLY

One which cannot be slipped back because of adhesions caused by pressure or inflammation. A strangulated hernia which can no longer be reduced safely, except by operation, also falls into this category.

IRIS INFECTION

V. W. writes: Can recurrent iritis be cured without vitamins?

REPLY

Probably not, since removal of the cause is the most essential part of the treatment.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

A recent press item says that the movie, "California" depicts the bitter fight waged by that young republic to be admitted as the 31st state of the Union. Actually, it was imperative that California be admitted as quickly as possible. The other states had 2,000,000 buckets filled with smog and needed a place to dump it. (For the benefit of the 47 other states, "smog" is nothing but dew).

They also wanted a territory where they could exile their wild drivers. Then without California, Santa Anita might have ended up just another crap game.

And then the people who were planning on making movies needed a spot near the ocean in case they had to make a getaway. Of course, they had to find a state big enough to house Sydney Greenstreet. California and Texas tossed for it. And Texas won .

And California's a great help to comedians. What would we do without towns like Cucamonga, Azusa and Anaheim?

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22. — Not many of them will admit it, but it was the powerful backstage support given Herman Talmadge by Georgia big business that really boosted him up the steps of the state capitol.

One Georgia businessman franker than the rest is genial Chip Robert, ex-treasurer of the Democratic National Committee and engineer for some of the biggest Army-Navy construction jobs. Chip candidly admits that he pulled all the wires possible to put the cracker dictator on the throne of Georgia.

Chip is not so frank, however, about one hitherto undisclosed brush he had with retiring Gov. Ellis Arnall which may shed light on his love for Talmadge.

Some time ago, Gov. Arnall called at the White House and invited Presdient Truman to visit Georgia, the second home of Franklin Roosevelt. Truman tentatively accepted, though plans were left indefinite.

Shortly thereafter, Chip Robert went to the White House and also invited Truman to come to Georgia. And, unlike Arnall, who had said little to the press, Chip gave out a detailed statement of his plans for entertaining the President of the United States.

Arnall Calls Robert

Back in Atlanta, Gov. Arnall read Chip's ornate entertainment schedule in the morning paper. Immediately he picked up the telephone and called Mr. Robert.

"Chip," said the Governor, "I see you have invited the President to come to Georgia. That's fine. I also note that you've arranged for him to have breakfast at the Driving Club, a luncheon at the City Club, and a reception at the Atlanta Biltmore. That's fine, too. We Georgians are hospitable.

"But I think you should also know that at the same time you're inviting Mr. Truman to breakfast at the Driving Club, I'm inviting him to breakfast at the Governor's mansion. And at the same time you say he's going to be lunching at the City Club, I'm inviting him to lunch with me. And at the time you're inviting him to a reception at the Atlanta Biltmore, I'm inviting him to Warm Springs.

"And" concluded Arnall, "the President is going to have to choose between Chip Robert and the Governor of Georgia."

Mr. Robert immediately dropped his plans for entertaining President Truman. Instead, he began laying plans to put Talmadge in the Governor's mansion.

GOP Pot Vs. Democratic Kettle

If there is one spot in black Republican Pennsylvania that really needs cleaning up, it is Delaware County—run by the notorious McClure machine, a bunch of gamblers, bootleggers, and petty chiselers.

And if there is one spot in Washington that really needs cleaning up, it is the Sergeant-at-Arms office in the House of Representatives, presided over for 15 years by a genial Democratic race-track fan and oil speculator, who left behind a shortage of over $125,000.

Yet of all places, and with the entire USA to pick from, the Republicans went to graft-ridden Delaware County, Pennsylvania (former home of this columnist), to pick the man entrusted with cleaning up the Democratic Sergeant-at-Arms mess.

The new Republican Sergeant-at-Arms, William Russell, was former treasurer of Delaware County, placed in that office by the famous McClure machine. The McClure machine has placed some other interesting people in positions of public trust, and here are some of them:

Wm. J. McClurg, who served nine months in jail for gambling, now sealer of weights and measures of the City of Chester; Hubert J. Ryan, sentenced to one year and a day in a Federal rum conspiracy, now meat inspector of Chester; Albert J. Reading, sentenced to 18 months suspended sentence and three years probation in a rum conspiracy, now deputy sheriff; Harry G. Tillman, sentenced to one year and a day and fined $3,000 in a rum conspiracy, now deputy sheriff.

Then there is John J. McClure himself, boss of the county, who was sentenced to 18 months in jail and fined $10,000 in a rum conspiracy while serving as state senator, but who got his jail sentence dropped when the prohibition act was repealed.

GOP Shortage Trouble

It was as a part of this machine that new Sergeant-at-Arms William Russell served as Delaware County treasurer from 1936 through 1939, later being brought to Washington by Congressman Wolfenden for a minor job in the Sergeant-at-Arms' office.

Having served as a GOP member of the Sergeant-at-Arms office under the Democrats, William Russell, according to that sacred shibboleth, seniority, stood in line to become the new Republican Sergeant-at-Arms. And Pennsylvania Congressmen, ever zealous to garner patronage for their state, hastened to put him in.

In fact they were in such a hurry and so zealous that they hushed up one interesting fact in Mr. Russell's past career—his row with the Aronomink Swimming Pool Club at Drexel Hill, whose books, at the time Russell was treasurer, showed a shortage of $6,000. Feeling against Mr. Russell among other club members was high. They even resorted to a court order to make him bring back their books.

Finally, the club got its money, thanks to Russell's ambition to be Sergeant-at-Arms. For, just 10 days before Congress opened, Congressman Richard Simpson of Huntingdon, Pa., required Russell to get a letter from the club showing that the money had been paid. Incidentally, he admonished Russell to keep the whole matter quiet.

Where Russell suddenly got the $6,000 to pay the club is his secret. In this connection, it is interesting to note that, a few years before, he had lost his house through inability to pay interest on the mortgage. Get the $6,000 he did, however, and is now comfortably ensconced as Sergeant-at-Arms of the new House of Representatives with a salary of $12,000.

Congressmen's Bank

Meanwhile, because the Sergeant-at-Arms office remains closed, many Congressmen are up against it financially. With heavy campaign expenses and low exchequers they had been looking forward to dropping in on the Sergeant-at-Arms for an advance on their first pay check. But his window is closed.

This borrowing from the Sergeant-at-Arms is a time-honored custom and accounts in part for the $125,000 shortage under retired Kenneth Romney. The genial Democrat operated a bank for members of the House of Representatives, in effect, loaning the advance salaries of prosperous Congressmen to the less prosperous.

Romney had notes drawn on the "National Bank of Washington," an institution which never existed, and charged his borrowers an overall interest rate of 14 per cent. It was a bonanza deal and would have netted him more than his $12,000 salary had not some of the checks bounced.

One $10,000 check signed by John H. Smith, ex-Congressman from Florida, was found by probers never to have been presented to a bank. Romney apparently knew it was no good, so never tried to cash it.

Incidentally, the shortages extended back to the Republican days between 1925 and 1930, so Sergeant-at-Arms trouble apparently is an ancient evil enjoyed by both parties. It will now be interesting to see how new incumbent Russell, trained in the malodorous politics of Delaware County, Pa., handles his important office.

"Portal to Portal" Commentary

It is some commentary on the irresponsible action of the majority of the Supreme Court of the United States in the "portal to portal" cases, that their decision has turned the stomachs of fifteen A. F. of L. unions, with 1,600,000 members. Mr. John P. Frey, President of the A. F. of L. A Wallace Example

We have invited ourselves in on the control of the Dardenelles which has been a bone of contention between Russia and the British Empire for two centuries.

We have taken sides with Britain and against Russia, Russia retorts in pleasant tones by demanding the internationalization of the Panama and Suez Canals!

Perhaps this is what ex-Vice President Wallace means when he says Russia wants to meet us halfway! Would we ever agree to remove our own defenses from the Canal which we built and which ties together our Atlantic and Pacific seaboards?

A Federal Court has just ruled that if a member of one union which has a collective bargaining contract prefers another union and asks others to join him, the first union can expel him and the company must fire him from his job. Will he now join in the chorus, when he hears the beautiful words, "Sweet land of Liberty, of thee I sing?"

Republicans Show Solidarity In First Big Test Vote In Senate

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—Considering the narrow majority by which the Republican control the Senate, the roll call by which the Truman-Mead War Investigating Committee was continued was a significant test of Republican solidarity on both sides of the aisle.

With the defection of Senators Morse of Oregon, Aiken of Vermont, Tobey of New Hampshire and Cooper of Kentucky, on the first test vote, the Republicans nevertheless kept the remainder of their number in line while the Democrats held tightly their party following with only one exception—Senator O'Daniel of Texas. Late, on the final vote, and Republican Senators Tobey and Langer voted against their party.

To the outside world it may be surprising to find all the Democrats but one voting against an investigation of what happened to war contracts and war funds and the Republicans, with only a few exceptions, voting to continue the inquiry. But the truth is that both sides, despite what was said in the dabate, felt it was a party matter. The vote puts the Democrats in the position of wanting to conceal and the Republicans in the position of wanting to expose. Politically, the Democrats maneuvered themselves into a very unfortunate position. Usually even political minorities hesitate to vote against investigations of broad public interest.

Public Opinion Important

Under the circumstances, it is nevertheless far more disquieting to the Republicans to find their majority not too secure whereas the minority party will be encouraged that such harmony prevailed.

The incident may have far-reaching repercussions. If the Republicans in the Senate are unable to inquire into what the New Deal did with public money and the Democratic minority is able to squelch any inquiries by getting aid from insurgent Republicans, the job will naturally fall to the House of Representatives, where the Republicans have better control and perhaps better party discipline.

It is true the War Investigating Committee will be continued for only a year and will have to ask the Senate for further authority a year hence, but if the revelations in the next twelve months produce a public opinion which demands continuance of the inquiry there will be less opposition next time than there was this week.

The Democrats, of course, had a good alibi in their vote against continuing the Special Investigating Committee. They argued that they were not against the investigation itself but wanted it done by the regular committee on armed services or else by the regular committee on expenditures.

It so happens that the Republican senators who are most intimate with the work of the Truman-Mead Committee in the past and who have already familiarized themselves with the thread of the testimony would not head up either of the regular committees to which the Democrats wanted the investigation assigned.

Regular Committees Busy

Regular committees are much too busy with routine work. Had the special committee in this instance been voted down, it seems likely that little more would have been heard of the many followed clues which the Special Committee has had in mind pursuing.

When tens of billions of dollars of the public money are spent in war contracts and when large discretionary funds are at the disposal of public officials, it is disheartening to see members of the Senate trying by indirection to sidetrack such an inquiry. Many of the Democrats sincerely believed, of course, that no wrongdoing would be uncovered anyway, but they voted against continuance of the Special Committee just the same.

The episode will have this consequence: Senate investigations will hereafter be voted on first by the regular committees, and if a majority of the regular committees record themselves as believing that the job could best be done by a special committee, that recommendation will be made to the entire Senate and the regular committee will support the proposal.

This procedure, which has been proposed by Senator Taft for future cases, will soon be voted on by the Senate and it will afford another opportunity to see whether the forces of concealment or exposure are to emerge triumphant.

Five of us were sitting around Toots Shor's the other night, too full of talk to go home. Around the seventh cup of coffee, we got to chinning about Damon Runyon and his stories of Manhattan From Runyon we segued to Paul Gallico, and from Gallico to Ben Hecht. When we got to O. Henry, we closed the book. You don't talk about home-run hitters after you've mentioned the Babe.

Billy Rose

A fellow who makes a sweet dollar with a pencil spoke up. "Did you ever read O. Henry's 'Gift of the Magi'?" he asked. "I think it has the best trick ending of any short story I ever read. When it came to hitting you over the head with the last sentence, O. Henry was the granddaddy of them all."

"With one exception," broke in an old-time police reporter, who never banked more than $60 in any one week.

"Who do you mean?" I piped up, "De Maupassant-"

"No, professor," said the old-timer. "I'm talking about a fellow around this town who uses the pen name of The Law of Averages. Every day he pulls trick endings out of his hat that make O. Henry read like the Congressional Record."

Cites Rocco Case

"As for instance?" asked a Hollywood writer, who had flown East for some life-giving pastrami.

"As for a thousand instances," said the reporter. "Look at the recent Rocco case. A man picks up a girl, hands her what he says is a camera, and tells her to take a picture of his wife. The girl snaps the shutter, and a concealed shotgun tears his wife's leg off. Tricky enough for you?"

Danny Arnstein, the taxi tycoon who opened the Burma Road, took up where the police reporter left off. "A fellow used to hack for me who belongs in somebody's short story," he said. "One night he drove me home in a company cab. At Broadway and 50th, he made turn against the light. A cop stopped him and bawled the bejabbers out of him. 'Let's see your license, wise guy,' he said to the hackie, reaching for his summons book. He looked at the license and then put the book back in his pocket. 'Watch yourself on those turns,' he said politely. 'Lots of careless drivers these days'."

"What's the point?" said the Hollywood genius, spearing a cold cut.

"The name on the license," said Danny, "was Reverend George Luetjen, D.D., Bishop of the Church of Jesus and Watch Mission. He used to drive a taxi four days a week to support his little church in Long Island City."

One of Toots' waiters who believes in free speech chimed in. "Here's one for you," he said. "Years ago I worked down at the Cafe Royale on Second Avenue. It was a radical hang-out. The customers used to sit around, figuring how to get rid of the Czar. All night long, they'd mark up the table tops with plans to capture Moscow. Even the waiters got into the arguments. All except one. He never talked politics. He would just mop the tables with a damp rag and ask, 'More tea, gentlemen-' Serious little geezer. Used to hang his clothes in the locker next to mine. His name was Bronstein."

"Never heard of him," said the Hollywoodsman.

"Yes, you did," said the police reporter. "When he changed his name to Leon Trotsky."

"Point-killer!" grumbled the waiter, and went off to get more coffee.

"Those are pretty good stories," said the writer with the big income tax. "But the finishes don't compare with any of a dozen in O. Henry's 'Four Million.'"

"Kick this one around," said the police reporter. "You all know Arthur and Irving Caesar. When they were boys down on the East Side, they used to hang out at the University Settlement Home. To keep the kids off the streets, the director arranged weekly debates. The subject of one debate was, 'Resolved: The pen is mightier than the sword.' The Brothers Caesar spoke for the sword. Another pair of brothers—the Diamonds — argued the pen was mightier. Well, I guess the Caesars didn't talk as well then as they do now. The Diamond brothers won the debate.

"The Law-of-Averages fellow put a neat switch to this story.

"The boys who upheld the sword have gotten to be pretty well-known for their work with the pen. Arthur won an Academy Award in Hollywood for writing 'Manhattan Melodrama.' Irving has his name on 'Tea for Two,' a dozen good shows, and a music publishing firm.

"Morris and Joe Diamond, the boys who defended the pen, also got to be pretty well known. On May 2, 1925, they were electrocuted for murdering two men while robbing a bank."

"I know one that tops that," said the waiter . . .

Today's Talk

Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow

We look upon a stream and it seems the same all the time that we are looking at it—but, as a matter of fact, it is never the same. Each foot of flow is new and different. It is much the same in our lives. We live and meet with those we love day by day, and though each of us grows older, and daily changes, others look the same, or quite so, and we do to them, though we are not the same—only in characteristics.

It has often been said that people, who live together for long years, grow to look like each other, and to an extent, perhaps this is true. For, somehow, we absorb the thoughts, and mannerisms of others to a greater extent than we know. We know the Southerner, the Yankee, the far Westerner, and those from other localities, largely from their manners and accent of words.

Time doesn't change. We change. Time goes on. It's just Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow with Time. Our minds react to the weather, to those about us, and according to how we feel at the time. But with a certain, well grounded philosophy of life, and with a plan ever before us, and with "one increasing purpose" as our guide, we can be thankful for the privilege of life itself. We can extract its joy, its gaiety, and its problems, and season every disappointment and sorrow with hope and faith.

Too much questioning is never a good thing for the soul. A willing acceptance of all that life affords should keep us on an even keel, and we should, each day of our lives, count over our blessings—one by one. We are always far better off than we may think! We can even grow old—gracefully—as we should, for none of us grows younger, except in spirit. And that growth may be the best of all!

Our Yesterdays keep growing richer in memories. Our Todays keep us alive with activities. Our Tomorrows can well be anticipations, clothed in dreams, in hope, and in an unaltered faith. And in these three tenses we may wrap up all that we are, or hope to be.

Public Unaware Of Extent Of Tax Levy On Upper Income Brackets

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 23 — The great majority of Americans are poorly informed about the amount of income tax paid by families in the upper income brackets.

The average American thinks that the man with two children who earns $10,000 a year now pays about $1,000 in income taxes. Actually he pays about $1,700.

As for the $50,000-a-year income bracket, the average American thinks a man with two children in that bracket pays about $9,000 in taxes, whereas he actually pays around $24,000, depending upon what deductions are claimed.

Clearly many Americans especially in the lower inome levels do not realize just how much the other and more prosperous fellow has to pay in taxes. That probably explains why the public, if it were to write the 1947 income tax law, would be very lenient in setting the rates.

When polled on the amount that a family earning $3,000 with two children should be required to pay in income taxes, the public sets the rate at less than half what is is now.

The $10,000-a-year family with two children would also pay about half as much, if the public wrote the tax bill. As for the $50,000-a-year family, its tax bill would be only one-third as much.

In short, the public's idea of "soaking the rich" is far milder than that of the Treasury Department or Congress.

A PICTURE of the public's ideas on taxation was obtained by interviewing voters from coast to coast on the question:

"About how much do you think a married man with two children who earns $60 a week, that is $3,000 a year, should pay in Federal income taxes?"

The same question was asked concerning incomes of $10,000 and $50,000.

The medium average is shown below, together with estimates of the rates actually paid now. The estimates of taxes paid now were calculated with a miniumum of deductions.

	What Public Thinks Tax Should Be	What Tax Is Now (Approx.)
$3,000 income	$ 50	$ 131
$10,000 income	900	1,120
$50,000 income	7,500	24,000

How ill-informed the public is about actual taxe rates can be seen from another poll by the Institute, conducted among a separate but comparable cross section of voters. Each person was asked how much he thinks a man earning $3,000 or $10,000 or $50,000, with two children, now pays in taxes.

From the results it can be seen that people tend to overestimate homewhat the amount paid by a family earning $3,000 and to woefully underestimate the tax on the upper brackets.

	What Public Thinks Tax Is Now	What Tax Is Now (Approx.)
$3,000 income	$ 200	$ 131
$10,000 income	1,000	1,720
$50,000 income	9,000	24,000

THE TENDENCY of the public to set taxes at lower rates than those actually existing in the upper brackets has been found over the past five years. The nation has been polled since 1942 on what it thinks taxes should be. The trend follows:

	What Public Thinks Taxes SHOULD Be $3,000 income	$10,000 income	$50,000 income
1942	$201	$1,640	$13,700
1943	270	2,000	15,000
1944	150	1,000	12,500
TODAY	50	900	7,500

Robert D. Timbrook, Romney, W. Va., enlisted for three years with the Seventh Infantry Division in the Pacific.

Irvin L. Buckley, Romney, W. Va., enlisted for 18 months service.

Shark Is Fooled At Leg Pulling

VICTORIA, Australia—(AP)—Artificial cheesecake was used here to trap a 15-foot white shark the other day. The shark had been swimming up and down outside the women's swimming baths. It was caught when a piece of pork bait was fashioned to look like a woman's leg—at least the zoologist who supervised the catch said it was a woman's leg.

There is no record of these sharks ever having attacked a human being and the zoologist gave no reason for using the strangely shaped bait. But examination of the stomachs of this and other white sharks indicate the scavenger fish have a varied diet.

The shark which bothered the ladies had eaten a large Newfoundland dog. Others caught in Australian waters had eaten among other things, a bulldog, part of a horse, a pig, several sheep, a piece of sacking, a ship's scraper and some whalebone.

Spinning Wheel Solves Berlin's Textile Problem

AP Newsfeatures

BERLIN — Great grandmother's spinning wheel is making a comeback in textile-short Berlin.

Many Berliners and refugees from the east who lost most of their personal belongings in the war are turning the spinning wheel.

In homes, women and girls are learning the art of spinning. The Berlin Museum for Folklore is offering courses in spinning and weaving.

The profession is composed chiefly of women—spinnerinnen—who in the outlying villages go from farm to farm and who also have appeared in Berlin, spinning to earn their daily bread.

An education which is truly liberating touches the heart and the will as well as the mind.

Carole Hill Becomes Bride Of Eligio D. Grande

College Students Wed In Oakland

Mrs. M. J. Regan, 619 Shriver avenue, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Carole Hill, to Eligio D. Grande, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Grande, Albright, W. Va.

The ceremony was solemnized December 27, in the Methodist Church in Oakland, with Rev. Reece Burns, Methodist minister of Mt. Lake Park, officiating.

Miss Nora Ellen Mosser, Mt. Lake Park, was the maid of honor and the bride's only attendant. Kenneth A. Martin, Romney, W. Va., served as Mr. Grande's best man.

The bride was attired in a street length dress of pale pink, with which she wore brown accessories and a corsage of camellias. Her maid of honor wore a gray wool dress with black accessories and a corsage of red roses and baby's breath.

Cast For Allegany Senior Class Play Is Announced

Harold C. Wickard, director, has announced the cast of "Ten Little Indians," to be presented by Allegany High School senior class. The mystery play will be presented in the school auditorium, March 6 and 7.

Frances Allen will play the feminine lead and James Taylor will play opposite her. She will portray Vera Claythorne the secretary of Mr. Owen, who never appears. Taylor takes the part of Captain Philip Lombard.

The "Ten Little Indians," refers to the cluster of statuettes on the mantlepiece of a weird country house on an island off the coast of Devon, and the nursery rhyme embossed above them, telling how each little Indian met his death until there were none.

The scene of the play is Indian Island, off the coast of Devon, England. From it's nearest point of civilization, a fishing village, the Island presents a sinister, almost weird picture, with it's boldly silhouetted rock, faintly resembling a giant Indian's head crowned with a beautiful white house.

Eight assorted guests are invited to this mansion on Indian Island, by a host who fails to appear. Each has something to hide, something to fear. While the guests are assembled for cocktails prior to going to dinner, a voice comes out of the air, accusing everyone present, including the two house servants, each in his turn of murder. While they are exchanging data on themselves one of the 10 little Indians topples off the mantlepiece and immediately the giddy Oxonian chokes to death. The series of events that are set in motion follow unerringly each verse of the childhood rhyme.

State Nurses Hold Annual Meeting

BALTIMORE, Jan. 23 (AP) — Maryland nurses attending the annual meeting of three organizations tonight, heard the modern history of anti-infective drugs traced from the turn of the century through the era of the sulfas and penicillin.

Dr. John C. Krantz, Jr., professor of Pharmacology of the University of Maryland, made the principal address to the first general meeting of the Maryland State Nurses Association, the Maryland State League of Nursing Education and the Maryland State Organization for Public Health Nursing.

Dr. Krantz told the nurses that during the first years of the century, medical science used only iodine, chlorine water, carbolic acid and bichloride of mercury as anti-infective drugs.

He said that since then science had "come through the blood, sweat, toil and tears to discover its finest ally—penicillin."

State Nurses Hold Annual Meeting

BALTIMORE, Jan. 23 (AP) — Maryland nurses attending the annual meeting of three organizations tonight, heard the modern history of anti-infective drugs traced from the turn of the century through the era of the sulfas and penicillin.

Dr. John C. Krantz, Jr., professor of Pharmacology of the University of Maryland, made the principal address to the first general meeting of the Maryland State Nurses Association, the Maryland State League of Nursing Education and the Maryland State Organization for Public Health Nursing.

The organizations will continue their session tomorrow, holding separate business sessions before joining for scientific discussions.

Dr. Krantz told the nurses that during the first years of the century, medical science used only iodine, chlorine water, carbolic acid and bichloride of mercury as anti-infective drugs.

He said that since then science had "come through the blood, sweat, toil and tears to discover its finest ally—penicillin."

Attending from Cumberland are Sister Vincent Marie, Sister Fidelis, Miss Carmela Guarino and Mrs. F. Wyand Doerner from Allegany Hospital and Miss Frances L. Loftus, Memorial Hospital.

However 66 divorce cases are also on file in the Circuit Clerk's office to off set the high marriage mark which is the largest in several years here with 33 recorded in 1943, 34 for 1944 and 56 for 1945.

In divorces the record is also high with 19 in 1943, 24 in 1944 and 36 for 1945. On the docket for the past year, 57 had already been granted, one case dismissed before it reached court and eight are on file for the March term.

Births of the county also show a sharp increase over deaths but with the record running more even. Two hundred and eighty two births were recorded in 1943; 270 for the years of 1944 and 1945, and then 300 for this year. The deaths for the past year were recorded at 111, which is 12 more than last year's with 99. In 1943 there were 101 to 103 for 1944.

There were 680 more hunting and fishing licenses issued during the past year than in 1945 with 2,919 for the past year, and 2,239 previously. However in 1943 there were 2,124 licenses issued and in 1945, only 1,793 which is a decline due to the war.

In non-resident, or tourists' licenses, the increase is high with 107 for last year and only 84 for the year before. Fishing licenses for the none residents alone were listed as 62 for last year and only 36 for the year before.

66 Divorce Cases Filed In 1946 In Tucker County

By HELEN COLLETT

PARSONS, Jan. 23—According to records Tucker County has only one more marriage recorded for the year of 1946 than divorces with 67 marriage licenses issued during that time. However 66 divorce cases are also on file in the Circuit Clerk's office to off set the high marriage mark which is the largest in several years here with 33 recorded in 1943, 34 for 1944 and 56 for 1945.

In divorces the record is also high with 19 in 1943, 24 in 1944 and 36 for 1945. On the docket for the past year, 57 had already been granted, one case dismissed before it reached court and eight are on file for the March term.

Births of the county also show a sharp increase over deaths but with the record running more even. Two hundred and eighty two births were recorded in 1943; 270 for the years of 1944 and 1945, and then 300 for this year. The deaths for the past year were recorded at 111, which is 12 more than last year's with 99. In 1943 there were 101 to 103 for 1944.

There were 680 more hunting and fishing licenses issued during the past year than in 1945 with 2,919 for the past year, and 2,239 previously. However in 1943 there were 2,124 licenses issued and in 1945, only 1,793 which is a decline due to the war.

In non-resident, or tourists licenses, the increase is high with 107 for last year and only 84 for the year before. Fishing licenses for the none residents alone were listed as 62 for last year and only 36 for the year before.

Fees for recordings for 1946 showed $1,853.55 to top the previous year which was $1,665.65. General licenses were also on the jump with $1,775.75 for the past year and $1,382.50 for the year before.

By ELSIE ROBINSON

IS MARRIAGE A CRAP GAME?

She has been—says she to the judge—the victim of a cruel deceiver. He had viciously misled her trusting young heart.

How come?

Well, he'd said he had a home in Miami, a camp in Canada and a cozy little hideaway in Hollywood. Besides, there were those lovely bonds he'd safely cached away and four cars he had in storage to say nothing of a seat on the stock exchange and two million dollars he'd inherited when the old man kicked off.

So naturally she thought he was a gentleman. And because he was so sentimental, she'd worn his mother's engagement ring even though the diamond was so piffling that all her girl friends had snickered openly. But after all one had to put it with a few inconveniences when one copped a millionaire.

And then they were married—and the pay-off camee.

He didn't have any of those things he'd boasted about! Not even one car, much less four, nor those palacial dumps in Miami and Hollywood nor the seat on the stock exchange. And his father had never owned anything but a chicken ranch where his son now expected her to live. But she wouldn't! Never—never—never!

She'd been trapped—that's what she'd been! Tricked by misrepresentation. And she wanted an annulment and heart balm and 300 bucks per week alimony. And quick.

It is this a true story? It is. And you can find its duplicate in any morning paper. Which same I consider a black disgrace on our civilized nation.

This young woman claims she was tricked by misrepresentation. But did she frankly admit to her young man that she was marrying him for that seat on the stock exchange? Did she vow that she'd be true to him "until death do us part" provided he came across with dad's two millions? Did she at any time show herself in her true colors as a ruthless, avaricious little gold digger with a false upper plate, dyed hair and a lifted face, not to mention a little padding here and there where it could do the most good to her shopworn silhouette?

You can bet your last nickle she didn't. She was going to marry him for love and love alone, "for better or for worse" my darling, in which she misrepresented herself by every oily trick a versatile female can devise. And now she yells for alimony and an annulment because her hero got by with a few slick whoppers on his own.

In my opinion she deserves a swift kick by any judge worthy of the name and a binding injunction against any further marital maneuvering.

It's bad enough to ratify such marriages in the beginning. But it's infinitely worse to lend a hand to such female profiteering by giving them official sanction.

Marriage is not a crap game. It's based on love and loyalty, not on the rolling of the dice. And a piker at the altar is no better than a cheap sport at any other game.

IS MARRIAGE A CRAP GAME?

She has been—says she to the judge—the victim of a cruel deceiver. He had viciously misled her trusting young heart.

How come?

Well, he'd said he had a home in Miami, a camp in Canada and a cozy little hideaway in Hollywood. Besides, there were those lovely bonds he'd safely cached away and four cars he had in storage to say nothing of a seat on the stock exchange and two million dollars he'd inherited when the old man kicked off.

So naturally she thought he was a gentleman. And because he was so sentimental, she'd worn his mother's engagement ring even though the diamond was so piffling that all her girl friends had snickered openly. But after all one had to put it with a few inconveniences when one copped a millionaire.

And then they were married—and the pay-off camee.

He didn't have any of those things he'd boasted about! Not even one car, much less four, nor those palacial dumps in Miami and Hollywood nor the seat on the stock exchange. And his father had never owned anything but a chicken ranch where his son now expected her to live. But she wouldn't! Never—never—never!

She'd been trapped—that's what she'd been! Tricked by misrepresentation. And she wanted an annulment and heart balm and 300 bucks per week alimony. And quick.

It is this a true story? It is. And you can find its duplicate in any morning paper. Which same I consider a black disgrace on our civilized nation.

This young woman claims she was tricked by misrepresentation. But did she frankly admit to her young man that she was marrying him for that seat on the stock exchange? Did she vow that she'd be true to him "until death do us part" provided he came across with dad's two millions? Did she at any time show herself in her true colors as a ruthless, avaricious little gold digger with a false upper plate, dyed hair and a lifted face, not to mention a little padding here and there where it could do the most good to her shopworn silhouette?

You can bet your last nickle she didn't. She was going to marry him for love and love alone, "for better or for worse" my darling, in which she misrepresented herself by every oily trick a versatile female can devise. And now she yells for alimony and an annulment because her hero got by with a few slick whoppers on his own.

In my opinion she deserves a swift kick by any judge worthy of the name and a binding injunction against any further marital maneuvering.

It's bad enough to ratify such marriages in the beginning. But it's infinitely worse to lend a hand to such female profiteering by giving them official sanction.

Marriage is not a crap game. It's based on love and loyalty, not on the rolling of the dice. And a piker at the altar is no better than a cheap sport at any other game.

Budget Hike Approved By Episcopal Diocese

BALTIMORE, Jan. 23 (AP) — A budget $18,000 larger than last year's was approved unanimously today by the 163rd convention of the Episcopal Diocese of Maryland with a view of increasing help for reconstruction work overseas.

The budget total—$131,213 — was adopted by 75 Episcopal clergymen, 69 laymen and members of the women's auxiliary meeting in business session at the close of the two-day convention.

Rev. Richard H. Baker, rector of the Church of the Redeemer, who presented the budget, pointed out that the national church has asked a Maryland contribution $60,000 this year compared with a little more than $45,000 in 1945.

Cheer up! It's a common mistake to write 1946 instead of 1947!

College Courses Planned For City

Frostburg State Teachers College will offer second semester extension courses in Cumberland beginning February 3, Miss Lillian C. Compton, college president, announced yesterday.

Persons interested in enrolling are requested to send registrations to the office of Miss Compton by January 30, and it was pointed out that it will not be possible to offer any course to a class of fewer than 10 students.

The following courses are scheduled, at the times and places indicated:

Sociology for Nurses, Tuesday and Thursdays, 2 to 4 p. m., at Memorial Hospital, J. E. Springston, instructor.

Sociology—Tuesdays, 4 to 6 p. m. (three hours credit), at a Cumberland public school convenient to the group, J. E. Springston, instructor. This course will be open to teachers and others with educational background qualifying them for admission.

Geography of Russia — Wednesday, 4 to 6 p. m. (three hours credit), Cumberland Public Library, Ivan C. Diehl, instructor.

The possibility exists that an additional course will be given if sufficient demand is indicated, but the college reserves the right to withdraw any or all courses if an insufficient number of students enroll.

Renewal of certificates may be obtained through the recommendation of the county superintendent, on the basis of extension classes related to the work carried by the teacher, provided that the teacher does not carry a course for which she has previously received credit, according to the State Board of Education.

In 1820 the average age of Americans was 17 years. Today it is about 29 years.

Beall Students Back In Class

Refusal Wednesday of a group of 20 Beall High School students from the Vale Summit section to get off a C. and W. Transit Company bus and walk several hundred yards to the school was cleared up yesterday when the pupils returned to classes.

Arthur W. Taylor, principal, said cold weather caused the ground to become frozen and that all school buses were now hauling students to the school instead of stopping on the highway by the school driveway to discharge them.

As the building of churches is considered "worldly" by the people of the Amish religion, they hold services in one another's homes.

Legal Technicality Holds Up Hearing

Hearing in a case involving the alleged discharging of firearms within the city limits was continued until next Tuesday in Police Court yesterday after counsel for Wilbur Fogle, 23, 216 Piedmont avenue, the defendant, brought up a legal technicality pertaining to the boundary lines of the city limits. Fogle pleaded not guilty.

Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., explained that the ordinance reads that police may go one mile outside the limits to make an arrest, but Morris Baron, Fogle's attorney, said he believes the clause is connected with the "pursuit" of a person.

Bruce ordered the case continued and said City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett would be on hand to give testimony next Tuesday.

Detective Edwin R. Lilya, who preferred the charge, produced a .38 calibre revolver, a .22 rifle and a number of empty shells and slugs as evidence. He said a check showed that Fogle and a 16-year-old youth purchased the shells from a local hardware store January 16.

Police arrested Fogle in connection with damage estimated at $500 to construction equipment being used in the Wills Mountain area by William P. Roeder, 700 Holland Street. Bullet holes were found in the equipment, police reported.

In Louisiana's sugar country, the humidity usually is higher than at any other point in the United States.

Of the 20 most serious fires in this country since 1900, none burned on a Friday the 13th.

Burke Secures Permit For Service Station

Stanley Burke, 10 Fifth street, secured a permit in the city engineer's office Wednesday to build a one-story concrete block office and service building for a gasoline service station, at 500 Virginia avenue. Cost is estimated at $3,500.

Burke's application to operate a gasoline service station at that location was approved December 23 by the Mayor and City Council. Work will be done by George C. Roeder Company, Incorporated, from plans furnished by the American Oil Company.

The building will measure 30 by 46 feet 8 inches, with a concrete block foundation, walls of brick and concrete block, and a built-up roof.

Mrs. Josephine Smith, Flintstone, secured a permit to build a one-story frame accessory building at the rear of 525 Potomac street, at an estimated cost of $125. The building will measure 12 by 20 feet, with a composition roof. Work will be done by the owner.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

WALT: "I don't quite understand what you mean when you say distillers merely process grain during distilling, Judge."

DAVE: "I don't either, Judge. Would you mind explaining?"

OLD JUDGE: "Glad to, fellows. You see, during the distilling process, only the starch is removed from the grain. The part rich in vitamins and proteins is recovered... dried... and returned to the farmers in the form of highly nutritious feed concentrates. Actual tests have shown that these distillers' dried grains are far more nourishing than the grain in its original state."

WALT: "How do the farmers use them, Judge?"

OLD JUDGE: "They mix these premium-quality feed supplements with original grain for feeding their cattle, livestock and poultry. Doing so enables them to save as much as 20% original grain."

DAVE: "I can see now how unfounded those rumors are about distillers wasting grain. Looks to me as if it's just the opposite."

Beall Students Back In Class

Refusal Wednesday of a group of 20 Beall High School students from the Vale Summit section to get off a C. and W. Transit Company bus and walk several hundred yards to the school was cleared up yesterday when the pupils returned to classes.

Arthur W. Taylor, principal, said cold weather caused the ground to become frozen and that all school buses were now hauling students to the school instead of stopping on the highway by the school driveway to discharge them.

Legal Technicality Holds Up Hearing

Hearing in a case involving the alleged discharging of firearms within the city limits was continued until next Tuesday in Police Court yesterday after counsel for Wilbur Fogle, 23, 216 Piedmont avenue, the defendant, brought up a legal technicality pertaining to the boundary lines of the city limits. Fogle pleaded not guilty.

Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., explained that the ordinance reads that police may go one mile outside the limits to make an arrest, but Morris Baron, Fogle's attorney, said he believes the clause is connected with the "pursuit" of a person.

Bruce ordered the case continued and said City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett would be on hand to give testimony next Tuesday.

Detective Edwin R. Lilya, who preferred the charge, produced a .38 calibre revolver, a .22 rifle and a number of empty shells and slugs as evidence. He said a check showed that Fogle and a 16-year-old youth purchased the shells from a local hardware store January 16.

Police arrested Fogle in connection with damage estimated at $500 to construction equipment being used in the Wills Mountain area by William P. Roeder, 700 Holland Street. Bullet holes were found in the equipment, police reported.

In Louisiana's sugar country, the humidity usually is higher than at any other point in the United States.

Burke Secures Permit For Service Station

Stanley Burke, 10 Fifth street, secured a permit in the city engineer's office Wednesday to build a one-story concrete block office and service building for a gasoline service station, at 500 Virginia avenue. Cost is estimated at $3,500.

Burke's application to operate a gasoline service station at that location was approved December 23 by the Mayor and City Council. Work will be done by George C. Roeder Company, Incorporated, from plans furnished by the American Oil Company.

The building will measure 30 by 46 feet 8 inches, with a coficrete block foundation, walls of brick and concrete block, and a built-up roof.

Mrs. Josephine Smith, Flintstone, secured a permit to build a one-story frame accessory building at the rear of 525 Potomac street, at an estimated cost of $125. The building will measure 12 by 20 feet, with a composition roof. Work will be done by the owner.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

WALT: "I don't quite understand what you mean when you say distillers merely process grain during distilling, Judge."

DAVE: "I don't either, Judge. Would you mind explaining?"

OLD JUDGE: "Glad to, fellows. You see, during the distilling process, only the starch is removed from the grain. The part rich in vitamins and proteins is recovered...dried... and returned to the farmers in the form of highly nutritious feed concentrates. Actual tests have shown that these distillers' dried grains are far more nourishing than the grain in its original state."

WALT: "How do the farmers use them, Judge?"

OLD JUDGE: "They mix these premium-quality feed supplements with original grain for feeding their cattle, livestock and poultry. Doing so enables them to save as much as 20% original grain."

DAVE: "I can see now how unfounded those rumors are about distillers wasting grain. Looks to me as if it's just the opposite."

Potomac Park Group Plans To Seek Charter

The Potomac Park Improvement Association plans to submit a bill to the Maryland General Assembly for a charter form of government for the community to enable it to proceed with plans to obtain street lights and other utilities and improvements, according to J. Milton Dick, president of the association.

The group discussed methods of paying for such utilities, and it was finally decided to tax each property owner on the basis of assessable property. The association has been seeking street lights and other utilities for several months and needs some form of responsible government in order to do so, Dick stated.

After the charter proposal is prepared the Potomac Park Association plans to call a special meeting to discuss the measure, Dick added.

The session Tuesday night was attended by a large group of residents of the community at the Evangelical and United Brethren Church.

A group comprised of Robert Lepley, Joseph Stuckey, Harry Martz and Frank McCray, Jr., of the Corriganville community, attended the meeting in order to obtain some ideas on the formation of a similar organization in that section.

Irvin VanMeter Sent To House Correction

Irvin VanMeter, this city, a young veteran, was sentenced in Juvenile Court here to serve six months in the Maryland House of Correction, when convicted on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

The minor involved in the case, a 12-year-old Ridgeley, W. Va., boy, was sent to the Maryland Training School for boys.

Expansion of rural power lines financed under the U. S. REA-loan program is expected to require movements by freight of more than 4,000,000 tons of material.

Route 4 Youth Hurt In Motorcycle Crash

Stanley Walker, 18, Route 4, Mexico Farms, was treated in Memorial Hospital Wednesday night for lacerations on the right knee and abrasions of the knees and arms.

He told attaches he was injured in a motorcycle accident on Oldtown road early last night. State police investigated the accident.

Mrs. Ella Eversole, 57, 511 Shriver avenue, was treated in Allegany Hospital Wednesday afternoon for a left leg injury suffered, she reported, as a result of a fall. Attaches said a cast was applied and that Mrs. Eversole will return today for X-rays.

George House, 14, Cresaptown, was treated in the same hospital Wednesday morning for a left arm injury. He said he was injured while bowling.

There are seven different kinds of fog.

Potomac Park Group Plans To Seek Charter

The Potomac Park Improvement Association plans to submit a bill to the Maryland General Assembly for a charter form of government for the community to enable it to proceed with plans to obtain street lights and other utilities and improvements, according to J. Milton Dick, president of the association.

The group discussed methods of paying for such utilities, and it was finally decided to tax each property owner on the basis of assessable property. The association has been seeking street lights and other utilities for several months and needs some form of responsible government in order to do so, Dick stated.

After the charter proposal is prepared the Potomac Park Association plans to call a special meeting to discuss the measure, Dick added.

The session Tuesday night was attended by a large group of residents of the community at the Evangelical and United Brethren Church.

A group comprised of Robert Lepley, Joseph Stuckey, Harry Martz and Frank McCray, Jr., of the Corriganville community, attended the meeting in order to obtain some ideas on the formation of a similar organization in that section.

Percy Cemetery May Be Improved By City Council

Is Oldest Burial Plot In Frostburg

By RUDOLPH NICKEL

FROSTBURG, Jan. 23 — During recent weeks attention has been called to the state of neglect of Frostburg's oldest cemetery, located in the corporate limits and bounded by First and Standish streets and the small street leading from Main to Centennial.

This spot known as the Percy Cemetery is the resting place for some of Frostburg's most highly esteemed pioneer citizens, among them, Col. Thomas Blair, who was perhaps the first citizen of Frostburg to be buried with military honors, William Calmes, William Wright, the Neffs, George Bruce, members of the Frost, Willison and Beall families and many others, including Robert Tennant, who assisted in organizing Mountain Lodge, No. 99, A. F. and A. M., in 1854 and over whose grave the Masonic fraternity erected a monument in memory of Mr. Tennant who served the lodge as tiler for 50 years.

The cemetery was first on the outskirts of the town, but later was included in the corporate limits and some years ago became the property of the city.

An effort was made the year before World War II started to have the property cleared of debris and the tombstones and fences repaired. The principal part of the work was done by Boy Scouts, with the city donating trucks to have the rubbish hauled away. The city also employed men, according to Mayor Skidmore, to have many of the locust trees cut down.

In recent years the property has been neglected. What were formerly well kept burial plots are now littered with old shoes, tin cans, worn-out tires and rubbish of all kinds, bushes and vines run riot over the sunken graves and fallen tombstones. The fencing is down and in many places there is no fencing at all.

A list of the "Honored Dead" of the Civil War whose graves are in this cemetery, as compiled by a committee of Farrady Post, No. 24, American Legion, is as follows: Jacob Baker, Andrew Baum, John H. Brookings, Enoch Clise, James Cosgrove, John G. Dennison, Conrad Everline, Henry Gerken, William Humberson, Major J. H. Huntley, Charles Johns, William Knoyer, Noah Merril, John Morrison, David H. Plummer, Andrew Rankin, Simeon Rizer, George W. Robinson, John Sloan, James P. Smith, John Smith, John Spates, Samuel Stevens, Alexander Tennant, George W. Tennant, Craddock Thomas, Alfgred Van Swar, Benjamin Williams, John W. Williams and Thomas Williams.

Mayor Skidmore stated today that the city council would welcome suggestions with reference to having this old cemetery improved.

Dr. Rothstein Arrives

Dr. Martin M. Rothstein is spending several weeks here in charge of the practice of Dr. Hilda J. Walters, who is visiting in Florida and who plans a plane trip to Cuba before returning home. A resident of Philadelphia and a physician with six years of active duty in the Army, Dr. Rothstein was attached to the late General Patton's Second Armored Division, which was surrounded three days during the German counter-offensive at the "Belgian Bulge."

Dr. Rothstein completed his premedical course at Temple University and later was graduated from the Hahnemann Medical School in Philadelphia. He interned at McKeesport Hospital, McKeesport, Pa. Dr. Walters will return about February 1.

Springston Appointed

J. Edgar Springston has been appointed instructor of sociology and psychology at Frostburg State Teachers' College. He will serve on a temporary basis to complete the academic year in the position vacated by S. W. Ettelson.

Springston received his M. A. degree from West Virginia University after attending Glenville State College, Glenville, W. Va., and graduating from Marshall College, also in West Virginia.

He will assume his duties February 4 at the beginning of the second semester of the current school year.

Church Elects Officers

The Congregation of St. Paul's Lutheran Church last evening elected the following members to serve on the church council;

James Close, U. B. F. Edwards, Joseph Downey and Earl Blough to serve for three years; John D. Keller, Lawrence Weibrecht, John L. Geis and Everett Lemmert, to serve for two years and Rudolph Nickel, Harry G. Shupe, J. Stanley Hunter and George A. Lemmert to serve for one year. The new council will be installed at the morning service Sunday.

Drive Is Extended

Mrs. Agnes McDonald, chairman of the "Mile of Pennies" drive conducted by the Parent-Teacher Association of Barton High School, announced today that no complete report could be given on the drive recently held due to so many envelopes not being turned in.

The drive was to end January 7, but it was decided to extend it when the returns were not coming in as expected. A complete report by the end of this month is wanted, Mrs. McDonald stated, and urges everyone to turn in envelopes containing 16 pennies or whatever they wish to contribute by that time.

The fund is to be used to sponsor projects in the high school by the P-TA.

To Plan Anniversary

Final plans for the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the Methodist Church will be made at a meeting to be held following regular services Sunday morning, Rev. L. J. Moore, pastor and chairman, announced today.

The celebration will be held Feb. 2 to 9 with special services each evening and former ministers being the speakers, Rev. Moore stated.

W. Va. Sheriffs' Fee System To Be Probed

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 23—(AP)—Although much wrangling and parliamentary maneuvering may still lie ahead, the West Virginia Legislature decided yesterday it would investigate the sheriff's fee system and propose a program of reform.

On a voice vote and without a dissent, the Senate passed the House version of a resolution proposing a 10-member joint committee to study the problem and report back not later than February 10.

With less than three weeks for the study to be carried out, it appeared probable that Speaker Amos, of the House, and President Arnold Vickers, of the Senate, would be ready with their choices for committee personnel when the legislature reconvenes tomorrow at 2 p. m.

Urged To Save Gas

Commercial users of gas were notified Wednesday to save on their usage of gas as much as possible as long as the cold weather persists, by the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company office, Lonaconing.

This warning, that the gas supply is critical, results from the double demand for natural gas due to prolonged cold weather conditions.

They state that if everyone cooperates and follows instructions in use of fuel, that it will help to prevent undue hardships. Complete co-operation is necessary because gas supply and distribution lines, already taxed to capacity, are now overburdened as a result of the present cold wave, with gas pressures in the lines now running dangerously low in this area.

Storm Over W. Va. Name Subsides

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 23 (AP)—The dregs from a legislative teapot-tempest over changing West Virginia's name—since Virginia refused to—were handed over to the House Military Affairs Committee today for decent burial.

The commitment came after a jovial House overwhelmingly approved an amendment by Delegate Ross (D-Mercer) "that the state presently known as West Virginia be hereafter known as Kanawha County Annex." The resolution itself would have established a commission to study a change of name.

Kanawha, in which the state's Capital is located, is the state's largest county, and House Speaker John E. Amos—himself a Kanawha countian—reminded members that a constitutional convention argued for eight months before abandoning that name for the state.

Garrett Countians Plan Sales Tax

ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 23 (AP)—Garrett countians in the General Assembly met today with county commissioners to plan a program for instituting a two per cent consumers sales tax to raise an estimated $200,000 to $300,000 a year.

Senator Fraley (R-Garrett) welcomed commissioners Edward Helbig and Stewart Stahl and their solicitor, Neil C. Fraley, to the conference with the county delegation.

Fraley explained that the money would be used for the county road program and to make more funds avilable for schools.

"Such a tax would eventually relieve real estate property owners of much of their present burden," Senator Fraley said.

He said that attorney Fraley would prepare a bill which would be given to Dr. Horace E. Flack of the Bureau of Legislative Reference for review.

After Dr. Flack finished his study, the bill would be discussed at a public meeting of Garrett County citizens before being introduced in the legislature.

The delegation and visitors also called on Governor Lane, but the sales tax program was not discussed.

Senator Fraley conceded the possibility that the state may consider a consumers sales tax as part of its program to raise funds for tax distribution proposed by the Judge Joseph Sherbow Commission. How this would affect the Garrett County plan was uncertain pending any definite step on the part of the state.

Percy Cemetery May Be Improved By City Council

By RUDOLPH NICKEL

FROSTBURG, Jan. 23 — During recent weeks attention has been called to the state of neglect of Frostburg's oldest cemetery, located in the corporate limits and bounded by First and Standish streets and the small street leading from Main to Centennial.

This spot known as the Percy Cemetery is the resting place for some of Frostburg's most highly esteemed pioneer citizens, among them, Col. Thomas Blair, who was perhaps the first citizen of Frostburg to be buried with military honors, William Calmes, William Wright, the Neffs, George Bruce, members of the Frost, Willison and Beall families and many others, including Robert Tennant, who assisted in organizing Mountain Lodge, No. 99, A. F. and A. M., in 1854 and over whose grave the Masonic fraternity erected a monument in memory of Mr. Tennant who served the lodge as tiler for 50 years.

The cemetery was first on the outskirts of the town, but later was included in the corporate limits and some years ago became the property of the city.

An effort was made the year before World War II started to have the property cleared of debris and the tombstones and fences repaired. The principal part of the work was done by Boy Scouts, with the city donating trucks to have the rubbish hauled away. The city also employed men, according to Mayor Skidmore, to have many of the locust trees cut down.

In recent years the property has been neglected. What were formerly well kept burial plots are now littered with old shoes, tin cans, worn-out tires and rubbish of all kinds, bushes and vines run riot over the sunken graves and fallen tombstones. The fencing is down and in many places there is no fencing at all.

A list of the "Honored Dead" of the Civil War whose graves are in this cemetery, as compiled by a committee of Farrady Post, No. 24, American Legion, is as follows: Jacob Baker, Andrew Baum, John H. Brookings, Enoch Clise, James Cosgrove, John G. Dennison, Conrad Everline, Henry Gerken, William Humberson, Major J. H. Huntley, Charles Johns, William Knoyer, Noah Merril, John Morrison, David H. Plummer, Andrew Rankin, Simeon Rizer, George W. Robinson, John Sloan, James P. Smith, John Smith, John Spates, Samuel Stevens, Alexander Tennant, George W. Tennant, Craddock Thomas, Alfgred Van Lear, Benjamin Williams, John W. Williams and Thomas Williams.

Mayor Skidmore stated today that the city council would welcome suggestions with reference to having this old cemetery improved.

Dr. Rothstein Arrives

Dr. Martin M. Rothstein is spending several weeks here in charge of the practice of Dr. Hilda J. Walters, who is visiting in Florida and who plans a plane trip to Cuba before returning home. A resident of Philadelphia and a physician with six years of active duty in the Army, Dr. Rothstein was attached to the late General Patton's Second Armored Division, which was surrounded three days during the German counter-offensive at the "Belgian Bulge."

Dr. Rothstein completed his premedical course at Temple University and later was graduated from the Hahnemann Medical School in Philadelphia. He interned at McKeesport Hospital, McKeesport, Pa. Dr. Walters will return about February 1.

Springston Appointed

J. Edgar Springston has been appointed instructor of sociology and psychology at Frostburg State Teachers' College. He will serve on a temporary basis to complete the academic year in the position vacated by S. W. Ettelson.

Springston received his M. A. degree from West Virginia University after attending Glenville State College, Glenville, W. Va., and graduating from Marshall College, also in West Virginia.

He will assume his duties February 4 at the beginning of the second semester of the current school year.

Church Elects Officers

The Congregation of St. Paul's Lutheran Church last evening elected the following members to serve on the church council;

James Close, U. B. F. Edwards, Joseph Downey and Earl Blough to serve for three years; John D. Keller, Lawrence Welbrecht, John L. Geis and Everett Lemmert, to serve for two years and Rudolph Nickel, Harry G. Shupe, J. Stanley Hunter and George A. Lemmert to serve for one year. The new council will be installed at the morning service Sunday.

Interment was in Laurel Hill Cemetery, Moscow.

Drive Is Extended

Mrs. Agnes McDonald, chairman of the "Mile of Pennies" drive conducted by the Parent-Teacher Association of Barton High School, announced today that no complete report could be given on the drive recently held due to so many envelopes not being turned in.

The drive was to end January 7, but it was decided to extend it when the returns were not coming in as expected. A complete report by the end of this month is wanted, Mrs. McDonald stated, and urges everyone to turn in envelopes containing 16 pennies or whatever they wish to contribute by that time.

The fund is to be used to sponsor projects in the high school by the P-TA.

To Plan Anniversary

Final plans for the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the Methodist Church will be made at a meeting to be held following regular services Sunday morning, Rev. L. J. Moore, pastor and chairman, announced today.

W. Va. Sheriffs' Fee System To Be Probed

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 23—(AP)—Although much wrangling and parliamentary maneuvering may still lie ahead, the West Virginia Legislature decided yesterday it would investigate the sheriff's fee system and propose a program of reform.

On a voice vote and without a dissent, the Senate passed the House version of a resolution proposing a 10-member joint committee to study the problem and report back not later than February 10.

With less than three weeks for the study to be carried out, it appeared probable that Speaker Amos, of the House, and President Arnold Vickers, of the Senate, would be ready with their choices for committee personnel when the legislature reconvenes tomorrow at 2 p. m.

Urged To Save Gas

Commercial users of gas were notified Wednesday to save on their usage of gas as much as possible as long as the cold weather persists, by the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company office, Lonaconing.

This warning, that the gas supply is critical, results from the double demand for natural gas due to prolonged cold weather conditions.

They state that if everyone cooperates and follows instructions in use of fuel, that it will help to prevent undue hardships. Complete co-operation is necessary because gas supply and distribution lines, already taxed to capacity, are now overburdened as a result of the present cold wave, with gas pressures in the lines now running dangerously low in this area.

Storm Over W. Va. Name Subsides

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 23 (AP)—The dregs from a legislative teapot-tempest over changing West Virginia's name—since Virginia refused to—were handed over to the House Military Affairs Committee today for decent burial.

The commitment came after a jovial House overwhelmingly approved an amendment by Delegate Ross (D-Mercer) "that the state presently known as West Virginia be hereafter known as Kanawha County Annex." The resolution itself would have established a commission to study a change of name.

Kanawha, in which the state's Capital is located, is the state's largest county, and House Speaker John E. Amos—himself a Kanawha countian—reminded members that a constitutional convention argued for eight months before abandoning that name for the state.

Garrett Countians Plan Sales Tax

ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 23 (AP)—Garrett countians in the General Assembly met today with county commissioners to plan a program for instituting a two per cent consumers sales tax to raise an estimated $200,000 to $300,000 a year.

Senator Fraley (R-Garrett) welcomed commissioners Edward Helbig and Stewart Stahl and their solicitor, Neil C. Fraley, to the conference with the county delegation.

Fraley explained that the money would be used for the county road program and to make more funds avilable for schools.

"Such a tax would eventually relieve real estate property owners of much of their present burden," Senator Fraley said.

He said that attorney Fraley would prepare a bill which would be given to Dr. Horace E. Flack of the Bureau of Legislative Reference for review.

After Dr. Flack finished his study, the bill would be discussed at a public meeting of Garrett County citizens before being introduced in the legislature.

The delegation and visitors also called on Governor Lane, but the sales tax program was not discussed.

Senator Fraley conceded the possibility that the state may consider a consumers sales tax as part of its program to raise funds for tax distribution proposed by the Judge Joseph Sherbow Commission. How this would affect the Garrett County plan was uncertain pending any definite step on the part of the state.

School Officials Make Survey For New Buildings

County Delegation Asks Information

The school administration is preparing a survey of facts in regard to the present status of the stymied school building program at the request of the Allegany County delegation to the General Assembly, according to Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools.

As a result of legislation enacted prior to the war, the school administration is mandated to construct new schools at Mt. Savage, Lonaconing and Ellerslie.

When the legislation was passed $800,000 was provided for the work. That sum was considered sufficient in the light of building costs prior to the war, but is inadequate for any postwar building program at present high costs.

The request for the survey was made by the delegation as the result of a conference with the school officials and will serve to thoroughly acquaint the delegates, four of them new members, with the facts in regard to school building in a postwar world.

It was indicated that no recommendations will be made in the survey and that only the facts as they relate to the Allegany county school picture will be reported.

While it is readily agreed that $800,000 would have been sufficient to construct the three proposed buildings prior to the war, construction men have informed Superintendent Kopp that at least two and a half million dollars, and possibly more, would be required at the present time to build three schools that would conform with the school program and meet required needs.

Fort Hill High School was built at a cost of 24 cents a cubic foot—and to compare present costs with costs prior to the war, Kopp points out that construction men inform him it would now cost 75 cents a cubic foot and in some cases as much as $1.25 to erect a serviceable, adequate and fireproof building.

In view of the mandate to build three new buildings, Superintendent Kopp yesterday listed three possibilities. They are:

1—Build one school, instead of three, with the funds available. If done this would necessitate action by the Legislature as the school administration is obligated to build three buildings.

2—Start work on all three schools, "making the garment with the cloth we have," or building only one-third of a building in each case.

Such buildings would not be adequate and would not meet the educational needs of the respective communities, the superintendent said. Such structures would not provide a gymnasium, cafeteria, shops, mechanical department and other features of a modern school program—all needed in addition to classrooms, the superintendent said.

3—Secure additional funds.

In connection with the third possibility, Superintendent Kopp referred to the Sherbow Report now pending before the Legislature which recommends that the state participate in local building programs.

Another angle to the present building situation is the fact that other building needs now exist in the county school system where little work was performed during the war years. In connection with this side of the question, the school administration is preparing another survey on such needs to be submitted to the State Department of Education.

Beauty Shop Appeal Is Held Under Advisement

The Board of Zoning Appeals has taken under advisement the appeal of Mrs. E. E. Broadrup for a permit to use the basement of the two-story brick building at 609 Kent avenue as a beauty shop. The decision will be announced later.

Mrs. Broadrup's application for a permit was denied January 6 by the city engineer because the building is located in a Residential B zoning district.

Guilty Plea Set

State, said they had been picked up by Fuller. They testified he drove at a reasonable and moderate speed, stopped at an intersection and they "felt the brakes grab a couple of times and the car slowed down as they approached the stopped bus." They said the brakes seemed suddenly to give way, and Fuller, seeing the children crossing, went the only way he could, off the road and around the right side of the bus.

All witnesses were in agreement as to details of the accident. The Cook child told the Court she had taken the children across the road and was coming back to get into the bus when Fuller's left front fender knocked her down. She said she was not seriously hurt.

Attorneys Clash

Whiting and Assistant State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher clashed several times during the examination of witnesses. On several occasions the Court ruled out Fletcher's line of questioning and Associate Judge Henderson told him to "refrain from arguing with witnesses."

After the testimony was completed, Whiting said he would submit the case without argument, but Fletcher made a brief statement, saying the car was about 12 years old, had too many people in it and that Fuller had run off the road, hit the girl and knocked over a mail box. He asked for a verdict of guilty.

Whiting told the Court he had only a brief reply. He suggested "if the State's Attorney has completed his testimony, I would like to take just a minute. If the State's Attorney wishes to testify further, I suggest he be sworn as a witness. Everything he says is irrevalent and of no importance."

Then Whiting told the Court the young man driving the car had taken it to a qualified and reliable mechanic the day before and had every reason to believe the brakes were in perfect order. He declared there was no evidence that Fuller had been negligent and that it had been shown he did everything humanly possible to avoid a more serious accident. He used good judgement, Whiting said as he asked for a verdict of not guilty.

After a brief consultation with Judge Henderson, Judge Huster commented upon the responsibility of motorists and the laws governing motorists and school buses. He said "this young man was in a tight place where he had to act quickly, and where he had little time to think."

Used Good Judgement

The Court continued that it seemed Fuller used his best judgement to avoid hitting the children in the road or colliding with the bus. He said there was definite evidence that his brakes had been working just prior to the accident, and he had them relined the day before. He used both hands to swerve the car to the right and as soon as he could, used his left hand to stop the machine with the hand brake. Judge Huster declared there was no evidence of negligence and the Court found the defendant not guilty.

There were numerous witnesses summoned for the case, and considerable interest was evidenced by spectators and attorneys about the Court House.

State Police officers who heard the case told reporters, "it shouldn't have come up in the first place," and several attorneys expressed he same opinion.

organic disease would substantiate this opinion, the witness said.

Dr. Arthur F. Jones, who also examined Logue since his confinement in the County Jail, testified that "Logue should be held accountable for his actions," and said that if the defendant has urges to do unlawful acts, he could control them "if he tries sufficiently hard."

Dr. Jones said Logue informed him he has "hallucinations and falling spells" and "has urges to do certain acts" even when he knows they are wrong.

Should Be Confined

The prosecutor asked the physician if Logue would be better off in a penal institution or a mental hospital. Dr. Jones said, "I think he would fare equally well under any form of regimentation, either the House of Correction or a mental institution."

Dr. Jones told the jury that Logue stated during the examination that he feels more secure when in confinement, and felt more secure while serving a sentence in the penitentiary than while at large.

Harris asked Dr. Jones whether Logue might be faking these conditions described and the physician replied that it is unlikely. He explained that through experience and training, physicians are "taught to look for certain things" along this line.

Robb called several members of Logue's family to the stand including his son Joseph Logue and his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Joseph (Bernice) Logue. They testified as to peculiar actions of the defendant on many occasions. School Officials Make Survey For New Buildings

County Delegation Asks Information

The school administration is preparing a survey of facts in regard to the present status of the stymied school building program at the request of the Allegany County delegation to the General Assembly, according to Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools.

As a result of legislation enacted prior to the war, the school administration is mandated to construct new schools at Mt. Savage, Lonaconing and Ellerslie.

When the legislation was passed $800,000 was provided for the work. That sum was considered sufficient in the light of building costs prior to the war, but is inadequate for any postwar building program at present high costs.

The request for the survey was made by the delegation as the result of a conference with the school officials and will serve to thoroughly acquaint the delegates, four of them new members, with the facts in regard to school building in a postwar world.

It was indicated that no recommendations will be made in the survey and that only the facts as they relate to the Allegany county school picture will be reported.

While it is readily agreed that $800,000 would have been sufficient to construct the three proposed buildings prior to the war, construction men have informed Superintendent Kopp that at least two and a half million dollars, and possibly more, would be required at the present time to build three schools that would conform with the school program and meet required needs.

Fort Hill High School was built at a cost of 24 cents a cubic foot—and to compare present costs with costs prior to the war, Kopp points out that construction men inform him it would now cost 75 cents a cubic foot and in some cases as much as $1.25 to erect a serviceable, adequate and fireproof building.

In view of the mandate to build three new buildings, Superintendent Kopp yesterday listed three possibilities. They are:

1—Build one school, instead of three, with the funds available. If done this would necessitate action by the Legislature as the school administration is obligated to build three buildings.

2—Start work on all three schools, "making the garment with the cloth we have," or building only one-third of a building in each case.

Such buildings would not be adequate and would not meet the educational needs of the respective communities, the superintendent said. Such structures would not provide a gymnasium, cafeteria, shops, mechanical department and other features of a modern school program—all needed in addition to classrooms, the superintendent said.

3—Secure additional funds.

In connection with the third possibility, Superintendent Kopp referred to the Sherbow Report now pending before the Legislature which recommends that the state participate in local building programs.

Another angle to the present building situation is the fact that other building needs now exist in the county school system where little work was performed during the war years. In connection with this side of the question, the school administration is preparing another survey on such needs to be submitted to the State Department of Education.

Beauty Shop Appeal Is Held Under Advisement

The Board of Zoning Appeals has taken under advisement the appeal of Mrs. E. E. Broadrup for a permit to use the basement of the two-story brick building at 608 Kent avenue as a beauty shop. The decision will be announced later.

Mrs. Broadrup's application for a permit was denied January 6 by the city engineer because the building is located in a Residential B zoning district.

State, said they had been picked up by Fuller. They testified he drove at a reasonable and moderate speed, stopped at an intersection and they "felt the brakes grab a couple of times and the car slowed down as they approached the stopped bus." They said the brakes seemed suddenly to give way, and Fuller, seeing the children crossing, went the only way he could, off the road and around the right side of the bus.

All witnesses were in agreement as to details of the accident. The Cook child told the Court she had taken the children across the road and was coming back to get into the bus when Fuller's left front fender knocked her down. She said she was not seriously hurt.

Attorneys Clash

Whiting and Assistant State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher clashed several times during the examination of witnesses. On several occasions the Court ruled out Fletcher's line of questioning and Associate Judge Henderson told him to "refrain from arguing with witnesses."

After the testimony was completed, Whiting said he would submit the case without argument, but Fletcher made a brief statement, saying the car was about 12 years old, had too many people in it and that Fuller had run off the road, hit the girl and knocked over a mail box. He asked for a verdict of guilty.

Whiting told the Court he had only a brief reply. He suggested "if the State's Attorney has completed his testimony, I would like to take just a minute. If the State's Attorney wishes to testify further, I suggest he be sworn as a witness. Everything he says is irrevalent and of no importance."

Then Whiting told the Court the young man driving the car had taken it to a qualified and reliable mechanic the day before and had every reason to believe the brakes were in perfect order. He declared there was no evidence that Fuller had been negligent and that it had been shown he did everything humanly possible to avoid a more serious accident. He used good judgement, Whiting said as he asked for a verdict of not guilty.

After a brief consultation with Judge Henderson, Judge Huster commented upon the responsibility of motorists and the laws governing motorists and school buses. He said "this young man was in a tight place where he had to act quickly, and where he had little time to think."

Used Good Judgement

The Court continued that it seemed Fuller used his best judgement to avoid hitting the children in the road or colliding with the bus. He said there was definite evidence that his brakes had been working just prior to the accident, and he had them relined the day before. He used both hands to swerve the car to the right and as soon as he could, used his left hand to stop the machine with the hand brake. Judge Huster declared there was no evidence of negligence and the Court found the defendant not guilty.

There were numerous witnesses summoned for the case, and considerable interest was evidenced by spectators and attorneys about the Court House.

State Police officers who heard the case told reporters, "it shouldn't have come up in the first place," and several attorneys expressed he same opinion.

Witnesses called included, William R. Mongold, Mrs. Mongold, George Moreland, State Trooper Holsinger, H. D. Fuller, J. W. Cook, Alive Wills, Esther O'Rourke, Virginia Bodkin, Virginia Cook, Robert Mongold, Mrs. Mongold, George King, and Edward Payne.

The prosecutor asked the physician if Logue would be better off in a penal institution or a mental hospital. Dr. Jones said, "I think he would fare equally well under any form of regimentation, either the House of Correction or a mental institution."

Dr. Jones told the jury that Logue stated during the examination that he feels more secure when in confinement, and felt more secure while serving a sentence in the penitentiary than while at large.

Harris asked Dr. Jones whether Logue might be faking these conditions described and the physician replied that it is unlikely. He explained that through experience and training, physicians are "taught to look for certain things" along this line.

Robb called several members of Logue's family to the stand including his son Joseph Logue and his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Joseph (Bernice) Logue. They testified as to peculiar actions of the defendant on many occasions. Deputy Sheriff William Orr testified that Logue attempted to strangle himself after his confinement to the County Jail, and Chief of Police Burza Hanlin, Westernport, testified that he tried to hang himself in the Westernport jail, before being brought to Cumberland.

Accomplice Pleads Guilty

Witnesses called in the case included County Investigator Terrance J. Boyle, Howard Kerns, Mrs. Dawson, William Frantz, Delores Devore, Burza Hanlin, Carl Hawk, William Males, Deputy Sheriff Edward M. Lewis, Dr. Jones, Dr. Jacobson, Joseph Logue, Mrs. Bernice Logue, Mrs. Robert Logue, Sheridan Logue, Mrs. Delma Logue and Deputy Orr.

The jury included Thomas J. Leake, J. Cecil Smith, Charles G. Berkshire, William H. Schafer, William M. Schaffer, Andrew Seiforth, Benjamin L. Moreland, George S. Parsenios, Alvin Haller, Archibald Cook, Conrad Lochner and Albert C. James.

Albert Schimminger, who has entered pleas of guilty to the same robbery, as Logue's accomplice, is awaiting sentence in the County Jail.

Advice To The Lovelorn

Some Girls As Well As Young Men Won't Take "No" For An Answer

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

Everybody knows the young man who won't take "No" for an answer. No matter how often the girl of his choice turns him down, he refuses to be discouraged, but keeps on pursuing her in the hope that eventually he can persuade her to change her mind.

I wonder how many realize, however, that there are girls who won't take "No" for an answer, either. They don't get turned down, usually, in the same way that a man does. Not unless they're the rare ones you hear of every now and then who take advantage of Leap Year, or just a good opportunity, to suggest marriage in so many words to the man who has captured their fancy.

The way in which men say "No" to the girl who pursues them is not in words, but in actions. They fail to call, either in person or on the telephone; they don't answer letters; they make as fast a getaway as possible whenever their path happens to cross that of the pursuer.

And yet, though the "No" of such actions is as plain and unmistakable as the spoken word, the girl often refuses to hear it, but stubbornly keeps on trying to think up ways of changing this negative to a positive. And all she generally succeeds in doing is to make a nuisance of herself.

Somehow it seems to be a law of nature that where a girl is occasionally intrigued by a man who won't take "No" for an answer, and reconsiders, even a suggestion of that same quality in the opposite sex only makes the man run away faster.

A girl who signs her letter "Desperate" seems to be an example of this unfortunate feminine type.

She tells of her experience with a man, "Johnny," for whom she "fell" at first sight, and thereupon wangled an introduction.

"Later on, after getting really acquainted," she writes, "I asked him to go for a ride, as I have my own car. We had a grand time. We went out several times, always enjoying ourselves. Then something happened. I don't know what, but he avoids me. He won't even say 'Hello.' I never did anything but try to please him."

She then goes on to say that while she has had many crushes before, this is different. It is "the real thing," and because the young man's background and her own are similar, and they have many of the same interests, "I know," she declares, "I can fit my life to give him everything."

Another man, who has "plenty of money," is begging her to go out with him, but "his money doesn't interest me. Besides him, other men have asked me. When I graduated, I was termed 'the most popular girl of the class.' But other boys are no longer of interest to me. I want to settle down and get married to Johnny."

So she wants to know what I might suggest as a way to get Johnny interested, "as I don't want to live if I can't have him or a part of him. If we couldn't get along while we were going together, I would try and be satisfied, but I want a chance."

I hate to sound hard-hearted about this, "Desperate," but I am awfully afraid you have already had your "chance." You went out with "Johnny" several times, you say. But in those times the two of you were together, "Johnny" evidently didn't become sufficiently interested to want to make a steady thing of it. And now, through his actions, he is saying "No" to your hints that he should do so.

If you want my advice, it is that you accept the invitations of some of these other boys and leave "Johnny" to himself. You have too much spunk to be one of those girls who won't take "No" for an answer, haven't you?

Is it possible to put FRESH RAW LIVER IN DRY DOG FOOD?

yes! BRESKO

DOG FOOD NOW HAS IT

We have discovered a special new process, by which we cook fresh raw liver into the famous BRESKO, making it even more palatable and more nourishing than ever.

BRESKO is a correct blend of the needed meat meal vitamins and other essentials.

Don't confuse Fresh Raw Liver with Liver Meal. Fresh Raw Liver is vastly better since the valuable liver juices are preserved. Liver is invaluable for body and blood building in certain dietary deficiencies.

To give your dog the benefit of this essential food to the fullest degree, you must give him BRESKO. He'll like it so well that he'll beg you for more.

Man Dashes Into Blazing Home To Rescue Child

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 23 (AP)—The father's heroism in dashing into their burning home at Falling Rock, near Clendenin, was credited today with saving the life of Kenneth Hayes, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Hayes.

The child, seriously burned in the fire which destroyed the dwelling, was brought to a Charleston hospital.

Authorities said Hayes was some distance from the home when a stove exploded. He dashed into the burning structure and brought out the baby. Mrs. Hayes was burned about the face.

The Engineers Club of Cumberland installed officers, elected directors and had a guest speaker at the monthly dinner-meeting held Wednesday night at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

A. W. Keight, of the Celanese Corporation of America, was inducted as president of the club. His staff includes J. S. Thayer, Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, vice president; R. M. Hudak, Kelly, secretary and S. M. Jones, Kelly, treasurer.

The following men were elected to the board of directors, H. C. Givens, Celanese; W. A. Douglas, George F. Hazelwood Company; E. D. Vandegrift, Vandegrift Construction Company; and E. R. Allen, Celanese.

Roger W. Andrews, Wooster, Mass., from the Riley Stoker Corporation, was the guest speaker preceding the business session. He talked on "Modern Steam Generation, Design and Construction of Steam Generating Plants." His talk was illustrated with moving pictures on the same subject.

SALT LAKE CITY — (AP) — Mrs. Josephine Farrell, dressed as a pioneer belle for a costume party, revealed she had five petticoats beneath her taffeta gown. All five had been cut from just one petticoat belonging to her great-grandmother. And great-grandmother wore four of the voluminous jobs.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Relief At Last For Your Cough

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)

WHY GET UP NIGHTS DUE TO KIDNEYS?

FLUSH THEM OUT THIS DOCTOR'S WAY

If you get up nights—have frequent desire to pass your water—but have only scanty passages—yes, and have backache, due to excess acidity in the urine, be glad you're reading this:

Three generations ago Dr. Kilmer, a famous doctor, found hundreds of his patients with this trouble. Painstakingly he made a medicine of 16 herbs, roots, vegetables, balsams—Nature's own way to relief. He called it "Swamp-Root" and millions of grateful men and women have taken it—often with amazing results.

Swamp-Root goes right to work to flush out kidneys . . . increases flow of urine, helping relieve excess acidity . . . so the irritated bladder gets a good flushing out, too. Many report getting a good night's sleep after the first few doses. Caution: take as directed.

For free trial supply, send to Dept. T, Kilmer & Co., Inc., Box 1255, Stamford, Conn. Or—get full-sized bottle of Swamp-Root today at your drugstore.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 23.—So wonderful to see Ernst Lubitsch on the lot at 20th looking so well again. Ernst was so ill for a time that it seemed as if he would never be able to return to making pictures again. That would have been a great loss because he is such a fine sophisticated director.

Now he is starting to get the scripe of "A Lady In Ermine" ready for production. Irene Dunn, originally Ernst's choice will not be available, and Ernst is looking for another beautiful lady with a beautiful voice.

I asked Ernst how long he had been in pictures and he said "thirty four years. I made my debut with Max Reinhart as an actor." When Ernest came to this country to direct Mary Pickford I was the first reporter to interview him. The only English he knew was "yes" and "no." Undoubtedly the latter word has helped him greatly in his contact with producers.

Dorothy Kirsten, who has more than any opera singer who ever warbled a note at the Metropolitan, is casting an eye toward Hollywood. More than an eye—a manager, who arrives here shortly to confer with Harry Cohn.

Harry has always had it in the back of his mind to do a re-make of "One Night Of Love" if he could find the right singer, and Dorothy's the answer to any producer's prayer.

Now just a word about her, she's Grace Moore's protege, and "One Night Of Love" made a movie star of Grace. Another interesting but irrelevant fact is that Miss Kirsten's grandfather was Buffalo Bill's bandleader.

S'help me it seems as if every male star on the screen is a frustrated cowboy. Alan Ladd wants a story where he can ride and whoop it up. Gary Cooper told me before he went to Sun Valley he thought it was about time he had another western.

And now comes John Garfield getting ready to emote in "Listen To The Wagon Wheels," a story of the sage brush which he just bought. Johnny isn't exactly my idea of a guy on the lone prair-eee, but whether I approve or not his next movie following "Body And Soul" is this western by Don Mainwaring, former newspaper man and Press agent. Mainwaring always writes under the name of Geoffrey Holmes.

Paulette Goddard and Evelyn Keyes were off for Mexico—but not for divorces. They go to meet John Huston, Eveyln's bridegroom, who is there trying to find locations for the next picture he is going to make for Warners, "Treasure Of The Sierra Madre."

Burgess Meredith joins them there, and all four come back home together. I told Paulette all she does is say hello and goodbye. She just got back from three months in New York.

"I haven't been to Mexico for so long," she said. "You know how often I used to go there."

But what Paulette didn't tell me is that she's out of Hal Wallis' picture, "Be Still My Love." She told Hal it was too heavily dramatic for her. Whether or not there will be trouble awaiting her at Paramount, I wouldn't be knowing.

Chatter in Hollywood: Dane Clark telephoned to his redhaired wife, who walked out on him just before the holidays, and asked her to come back so they could talk things over and come to a decision one way or another.

"Our trouble wasn't of recent date," he told me. "We haven't been getting along for sometime. She thought a trial separation might help. I think if we are not to stay together, we should make the break final. I want to talk things over with her. The story that I intend to marry Ida Lupino or that she had anything to do with my trouble with my wife is too ridiculous to discuss. There are many things involved, and they have nothing to do with any other woman or man."

Pia Lindstrom, the 7-year-old daughter of Ingrid Bergman and Dr. Peter Lindstrom, is one up on her California playmates, when she visited her famous mother for three weeks in New York, it snowed, just like her mother told her it would do—The first time she has seen snow within her memory.

That should end some of those wild rumors that there's trouble between Ingrid and her husband.

Ralp Staub, who produces the screen snapshots for Columbia is planning a "famous Hollywood Mothers" series in that he hopes to let the world see that we have home life here and mothers who are devoted to their children.

In the two-reel series will be Bebe Daniels with Barbara Bebe and Richard Lyon, her two children. Rosalind Russell with Lance, Ginny Simms, Judy Canova, Eleanor Powell, Nancy Coleman, Georgia Carroll Kyser and others.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random. Ever since Marlene Dietrich left for Paris, Erich Maria Remarque has been seen in company with Natalie Paley (Mrs. John Wilson).

Could be that Virginia Mayo has a new romance. That's what the whisper is around town. Her disappearance could only mean one thing to those who know her. She wanted to break off with Michael O'Shea, else why should she leave town and not tell him.

Bob Stack really had a freak accident. He was jumping up and down just to let off steam. He hit his head against a door and bled so profusely a doctor had to be called.

Groucho Marx is off to New York to huddle with the Shuberts about appearing in the current edition of the Ziegfeld Follies.

H. D. Hover, owner of Ciro's, is bidding for one of the two biggest hotels and casinos in Las Vegas.

Ann Miller and Phil Reed look as if they are really Hollywood's newest heart threat. They were together again at the Mayfair and looking verra verra romantic..

That's all. See you tomorrow.

Irish Poet Dies

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 23.—So wonderful to see Ernst Lubitsch on the lot at 20th looking so well again. Ernst was so ill for a time that it seemed as if he would never be able to return to making pictures again. That would have been a great loss because he is such a fine sophisticated director.

Now he is starting to get the script of "A Lady In Ermine" ready for production. Irene Dunn, originally Ernst's choice will not be available, and Ernst is looking for another beautiful lady with a beautiful voice.

I asked Ernst how long he had been in pictures and he said "thirty four years. I made my debut with Max Reinhart as an actor." When Ernest came to this country to direct Mary Pickford I was the first reporter to interview him. The only English he knew was "yes" and "no." Undoubtedly the latter word has helped him greatly in his contact with producers.

Dorothy Kirsten, who has more than any opera singer who ever warbled a note at the Metropolitan, is casting an eye toward Hollywood. More than an eye—a manager, who arrives here shortly to confer with Harry Cohn.

Harry has always had it in the back of his mind to do a re-make of "One Night Of Love" if he could find the right singer, and Dorothy's the answer to any producer's prayer.

Now just a word about her, she's Grace Moore's protege, and "One Night Of Love" made a movie star of Grace. Another interesting but irrelevant fact is that Miss Kirsten's grandfather was Buffalo Bill's bandleader.

S'help me it seems as if every male star on the screen is a frustrated cowboy. Alan Ladd wants a story where he can ride and whoop it up. Gary Cooper told me before he went to Sun Valley he thought it was about time he had another western.

And now comes John Garfield getting ready to emote in "Listen To The Wagon Wheels," a story of the sage brush which he just bought. Johnny isn't exactly my idea of a guy on the lone prair-eee, but whether I approve or not his next movie following "Body And Soul" is this western by Don Mainwaring, former newspaper man and Press agent. Mainwaring always writes under the name of Geoffrey Holmes.

Paulette Goddard and Evelyn Keyes were off for Mexico—but not for divorces. They go to meet John Huston, Eveyln's bridegroom, who is there trying to find locations for the next picture he is going to make for Warners, "Treasure Of The Sierra Madre."

Burgess Meredith joins them there, and all four come back home together. I told Paulette all she does is say hello and goodbye. She just got back from three months in New York.

"I haven't been to Mexico for so long," she said. "You know how often I used to go there."

But what Paulette didn't tell me is that she's out of Hal Wallis' picture, "Be Still My Love." She told Hal it was too heavily dramatic for her. Whether or not there will be trouble awaiting her at Paramount, I wouldn't be knowing.

Chatter in Hollywood: Dane Clark telephoned to his redhaired wife, who walked out on him just before the holidays, and asked her to come back so they could talk things over and come to a decision one way or another.

"Our trouble wasn't of recent date," he told me. "We haven't been getting along for sometime. She thought a trial separation might help. I think if we are not to stay together, we should make the break final. I want to talk things over with her. The story that I intend to marry Ida Lupino or that she had anything to do with my trouble with my wife is too ridiculous to discuss. There are many things involved, and they have nothing to do with any other woman or man."

Pia Lindstrom, the 7-year-old daughter of Ingrid Bergman and Dr. Peter Lindstrom, is one up on her California playmates, when she visited her famous mother for three weeks in New York, it snowed, just like her mother told her it would do—The first time she has seen snow within her memory.

That should end some of those wild rumors that there's trouble between Ingrid and her husband.

Ralp Staub, who produces the screen snapshots for Columbia is planning a "famous Hollywood Mothers" series in that he hopes to let the world see that we have home life here and mothers who are devoted to their children.

In the two-reel series will be Bebe Daniels with Barbara Bebe and Richard Lyon, her two children. Rosalind Russell with Lance, Ginny Simms, Judy Canova, Eleanor Powell, Nancy Coleman, Georgia Carroll Kyser and others.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random. Ever since Marlene Dietrich left for Paris, Erich Maria Remarque has been seen in company with Natalie Paley (Mrs. John Wilson).

Could be that Virginia Mayo has a new romance. That's what the whisper is around town. Her disappearance could only mean one thing to those who know her. She wanted to break off with Michael O'Shea, else why should she leave town and not tell him.

Bob Stack really had a freak accident. He was jumping up and down just to let off steam. He hit his head against a door and bled so profusely a doctor had to be called.

Groucho Marx is off to New York to huddle with the Shuberts about appearing in the current edition of the Ziegfeld Follies.

H. D. Hover, owner of Ciro's, is bidding for one of the two biggest hotels and casinos in Las Vegas.

Ann Miller and Phil Reed look as if they are really Hollywood's newest heart threat. They were together again at the Mayfair and looking verra verra romantic..

That's all. See you tomorrow.

Irish Poet Dies

West Liberty, Potomac State Clash Tonight

Hahn And Pence Will Handle Keyser Game

The Potomac State Catamounts will go after their third victory in their last four starts tonight when they do battle with the West Liberty Hilltoppers at 8:30 p. m. in the Catamount gymnasium. Doors will open at 6:30 o'clock and a preliminary between the Potomac State Bees and the high flying South End Marketeers will take place at 7 o'clock.

Officials Are Named

Bill Hahn of Shepherd College, the Fort Hill football mentor and Bob Pence of Fairmont State College, the Allegany football skipper, will handle the whistle tooting end of the game.

The starting lineups for the two teams are as follows:

Lefever 24	RF	Healey
Yewcic 25	LF	Harris

Germany, Japan Will Be Banned From Olympics

England, Switzerland Are Hosts Next Year

LONDON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Germany and Japan definitely were banned from participation in the 1948 Olympics today when the organizing committee revealed the two axis nations would not be invited to compete.

Several former enemy countries, including Italy, are expected to receive bids for the fourteenth Olympiad, scheduled to be held in England from July 29 to August 14 of next year. The invitations will be mailed in the near future.

Although Germany was host to the last Olympics in 1936 and Japan had been scheduled as the site for the cancelled 1940 games, their banning came as no surprise.

The final decision was revealed in a 15-page report from the British committee headed by Viscount Portal and Lord Burghley, listing detailed plans for the '48 games.

Housing for more than 5,000 athletes and one million spectators promised to be one of the most important British problems. Committees already are busy on the project and a special government group is examining housing facilities.

Wembley Is Main Scene

Main scene of the games will be the suburban Wembley sporting grounds where there is a stadium seating 80,000 persons and an arena with a capacity ranging from 8,000 to 12,000 fans. However, some events will be contested in other parts of England.

Wembley's greyhound and motorcycle racing tracks will be replaced by a seven-lane cinder oval and special dressing room facilities will be added. Plans also call for a special practice track and an outdoor swimming pool for preliminaries.

At least six of the 17 sports will be contested at Wembley—fencing, boxing, swimming, football, field hockey and track and field.

Shooting will be held at Brisley, 25 miles southwest of London, cycling at Herne Hill in suburban London and rowing and canoeing over the Henley regatta course on the Thames river.

Scenes of the other events—equestrian, yachting, basketball, wrestling and weight lifting, modern pentathlon and gymnastics—will be selected later.

Winter Sports Scheduled

In addition to the sports contests held in England there will be a winter Olympics in Switzerland earlier in the year. As part of the London Olympics there will be arts competition in literature, sculpture, painting and graphic art, architecture and music.

182 Will Tee Off Today In Phoenix Golf Tournament

Dick Metz Is Barred For Alleged Attack

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 23 (AP)—Topped by PGA Champion Ben Hogan and U. S. Open kingpin Lloyd Mangrum, the largest field ever assembled here prepared to tee off tomorrow in the first round of the $10,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament.

The 72-hole par chasing derby, in which Hogan will defend the title he won in a play-off last year, attracted 182 entries and included almost every notable of the professional ranks.

Hogan, high money winner of 1946 and off to a flying start this year with his victory in the Los Angeles Open, is the man to beat now in every tournament in which he starts. Mangrum, another lightweight packing a heavyweight golfing punch, rates as the most consistent rival.

Winds Up Sunday

Big names taking the tour here included Sam Byrd of Detroit, the old New York Yankee baseball man who made pro golf pay high dividends; Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N. C.; Herman Keiser of Akron, O., who lost to Hogan in the 1946 Proenix playoff; and veteran Willie Goggin of White Plains, N. Y.

Black-haired John Palmer, 28-year-old pro from Badin, N. C., who had 27 missions over Japan with the Army Air Force, ranked as a dark horse.

Eighteen hole rounds will be played Friday and Saturday and then a 36-hole windup Sunday.

Dick Metz Is Barred

Metz was barred from the two events last night by the PGA tournament players' committee as the result of a fracas at Carmel, Calif., two weeks ago in which Fred J. Corcoran, PGA tournament bureau manager, charged Metz hit him.

The committee held Metz guilty of conduct likely to injure the reputation and standing of the association or its members."

George Schneiter of Ogden, Utah, head of the players' committee, said the group would meet with the sponsors tonight and explain the suspension order.

Other members of the committee are U. S. Open Champion Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, PGA Champion Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., Jimmy Demaret of Houston, Tex., Jimmy Thomson of Chicopee, Mass., and Ellsworth Vines of Los Angeles, all of whom are here, and Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va., who is in the east.

The committee also announced the suspension of David Clark of Knoxville, Tenn., from the Phoenix Open for "conduct unbecoming to a professional golfer."

Mapleside Ramblers Cop Seventh Straight

Mapleside's Ramblers chalked up their seventh consecutive victory last night when they defeated the LaSalle Reserves on SS. Peter and Paul court by the score of 42 to 27. The game preceded the LaSalle-Moorefield tilt.

Bill Andrews and Tommy O'Toole led the Ramblers' offensive with ten points each while Woods topped LaSalle with eight.

The quarter scores were 7-2, 19-7 and 28-14 with the Ramblers in front at all times. Lineups:

MAPLESIDE RAMBLERS	G.	F.	Pts.
George Martin, f	4	0-2	8
Bill Andrews, f	5	0-3	10
Ray Ruppenkamp, c	4	0-1	8

Maryland Tracks To Spend Millions For Improvements

State Racing Group Gives Bowie $116,975

BALTIMORE, Jan. 23 (AP)—The State Racing Commission today awarded Bowie race track $116,975 in state funds for improvements and outlined a general overhaul program which contemplates the spending of about $4,500,000 at Maryland's four major tracks.

Money collected by the state from mutuel betting pools will make up only part of the total expenditure, but today's allotment to Bowie was the first authorized under the plan.

George P. Mahoney, commission chairman, announced there was $1,380,002 in the fund accumulated by taking one-half of 1 per cent of the betting pools at the tracks the past year.

The commission has earmarked $373,155 for Pimlico, $326,944 for Laurel, $338,507 for Bowie and $341,395 for Havre de Grace.

Under provisions of a law passed early in 1946, tracks may apply for allotments of the fund to reimburse them for improvement projects carried out at their plants.

Allows Certain Items

Mahoney said Bowie has spent $253,382 on improvements since close of the 1946 season and asked reimbursement for the entire amount. The commission allowed such items as a new dining room in the clubhouse, a new manager's office, new paths and walkways, a new parking area, and improvement of the water supply system.

The state improvement fund actually dates back to 1938, when a previous racing commissioner allowed the tracks an extra 1 percent of the mutuel pools.

For years, the money simply was absorbed by the tracks for general use. Mahoney, when he became head of the commission, asked the tracks for an accounting of an estimated $2,000,000 in 1945.

The resulting controversy delayed for an hour the opening of the fall meeting at Pimlico in 1945 and the legislature the following winter put the "improvement fund" under new regulations and took the mutuel "breakage"—odd cents in the betting payoff—away from the tracks.

The long-range overhaul program contemplates the expenditure of half a million dollars at Bowie, including new fireproof barns and improvements to the grandstand and paddock.

Plan To Spend Million

The owners of Havre de Grace have plans for spending a million, mostly for a new grandstand.

Laurel has blueprinted improvements estimated to cost between $700,000 and $800,000, including major grandstand work.

The overall program promises to bring to a head again the 20-year discussion about moving Pimlico from its present site in the outskirts of Baltimore. If the Maryland Jockey Club decides to rebuild "Old Hilltop," an expenditure of $2,000,000 is indicated. If the operators decide to move, it may take $3,000,000.

Brooklyn Signs Pepper Martin

Frisch Also Offered Job As "Field Man"

BROOKLYN, Jan. 23 (AP)—Pepper Martin, the ever-youthful Wild Horse of the Osage, signed a Brooklyn contract today as "field man" in the Dodgers farm organization and Frankie Frisch, another Gas House Gang alumnus, was offered a similar position.

The hawk-faced Oklahoman, whose daring base running and .500 batting average made him the hero of the 1931 world series, thus rejoined his old boss Branch Rickey, who moved east from the St. Louis Cardinals four years ago.

"Pepper Martin has joined the organization as a field man and there is a job waiting for Frank Frisch if he wants it," read the announcement from Rickey through Secretary Harold Parrot.

Frisch, former Cardinal and Pittsburgh manager, is currently between engagements with many irons in the fire. Among others, he is under consideration for the radio broadcasting job with the New York Giants. It is possible that there would not be enough cash involved in the Brooklyn proposition to tempt the old Fordham Flash, one of the four men recently named to the Hall of Fame.

Pirates To Conduct 26 Baseball Schools

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 23 (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates will conduct 26 baseball schools this year, Farm Director Ray Kennedy announced today as the advance guard of the 22 men who'll compose the most extensive scouting system in the club's history arrived for a series of weekend conferences.

The schools will start around April 1 and will be run off at the rate of one a week in every section of the country under the direction of Ted McGrew, new chief scout for the Bucs.

Grid League Acts To Curb Gambling

Bert Bell Is Given Dictatorial Power

CHICAGO, Jan. 23 (AP)—The National Football League today gave Commissioner Bert Bell dictatorial power designed to crush attempted fixing of its games, including life banishment of implicated players.

The 10-member league also studied a membership bid by the San Francisco Clippers of the Pacific Coast Football League, a minor league affiliate in the same town in which the All-America Conference has a major league entry.

League officials, opening a three-day session, unanimously amended its constitution to give Commissioner Bell virtually the same blanket authority regarding gambling that professional baseball extended the late Kenesaw Mountain Landis after the "Black Sox" scandal of 1919.

Spurred by the attempted fix by a New York gambler of its title playoff between the New York Giants and the Chicago Bears last month, the national circuit empowered Bell not only to banish or otherwise punish any of its personnel involved in a fix or attempted fix, but also to bar from league parks any person deemed "detrimental to the best interests of the National Football League and / or professional football."

MARYLAND GAME LAW BILLS ARE AMENDED AT ANNAPOLIS

Deer Possession Limit Cut From 90 To 30 Days

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 23 (AP)—The house committee on agriculture and natural resources thinks more of dogs than rabbits.

State Game Warden Ernest A. Vaughn told the committee Tuesday that a lot of unsuspecting rabbits were dashing recklessly into groundhog dens only to meet an untimely death by a hunter's trap.

So, he had a bill which would require, among other things, that traps be placed at least five feet from such holes.

Chairman Clark (D-Harford) said the committee talked it over and decided that the hunters' dogs then would be in dire peril, and when the bill was reported favorably to the house today, it was amended to strike out the five-foot provision.

Three other bills backed by the Game and Inland Fish Commission also were amended, then reported favorably.

One would have permitted possession of deer 90 days after the close of the season, but the house committee reduced this to 30 days. Another, dealing with wild water fowl, also cut the proposed possession time from 90 to 30 days.

The possession limit of all other game would remain at five days, as under present law.

A third provision, which would have permitted trap shooting on Sunday, was stricken from the bill. Clark said that the committee believed that this did not belong in the game code, and that advocates of Sunday trap shooting should have another bill introduced.

Germany, Japan Will Be Banned From Olympics

England, Switzerland Are Hosts Next Year

LONDON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Germany and Japan definitely were banned from participation in the 1948 Olympics today when the organizing committee revealed the two axis nations would not be invited to compete.

Several former enemy countries, including Italy, are expected to receive bids for the fourteenth Olympiad, scheduled to be held in England from July 29 to August 14 of next year. The invitations will be mailed in the near future.

Although Germany was host to the last Olympics in 1936 and Japan had been scheduled as the site for the cancelled 1940 games, their banning came as no surprise.

The final decision was revealed in a 15-page report from the British committee headed by Viscount Portal and Lord Burghley, listing detailed plans for the '48 games.

Housing for more than 5,000 athletes and one million spectators promised to be one of the most important British problems. Committees already are busy on the project and a special government group is examining housing facilities.

Wembley Is Main Scene

Main scene of the games will be the suburban Wembley sporting grounds where there is a stadium seating 80,000 persons and an arena with a capacity ranging from 8,000 to 12,000 fans. However, some events will be contested in other parts of England.

Wembley's greyhound and motorcycle racing tracks will be replaced by a seven-lane cinder oval and special dressing room facilities will be added. Plans also call for a special practice track and an outdoor swimming pool for preliminaries.

At least six of the 17 sports will be contested at Wembley—fencing, boxing, swimming, football, field hockey and track and field.

Shooting will be held at Brisley, 25 miles southwest of London, cycling at Herne Hill in suburban London and rowing and canoeing over the Henley regatta course on the Thames river.

Scenes of the other events—equestrian, yachting, basketball, wrestling and weight lifting, modern pentathlon and gymnastics—will be selected later.

Winter Sports Scheduled

In addition to the sports contests held in England there will be a winter Olympics in Switzerland earlier in the year. As part of the London Olympics there will be arts competition in literature, sculpture, painting and graphic art, architecture and music.

182 Will Tee Off Today In Phoenix Golf Tournament

Dick Metz Is Barred For Alleged Attack

The 72-hole par chasing derby, in which Hogan will defend the title he won in a play-off last year, attracted 182 entries and included almost every notable of the professional ranks.

Hogan, high money winner of 1946 and off to a flying start this year with his victory in the Los Angeles Open, is the man to beat now in every tournament in which he starts. Mangrum, another lightweight packing a heavyweight golfing punch, rates as the most consistent rival.

Winds Up Sunday

Big names taking the tour here included Sam Byrd of Detroit, the old New York Yankee baseball man who made pro golf pay high dividends; Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N. C.; Herman Keiser of Akron, O., who lost to Hogan in the 1946 Proenix playoff; and veteran Willie Goggin of White Plains, N. Y.

Black-haired John Palmer, 28-year-old pro from Badin, N. C., who had 27 missions over Japan with the Army Air Force, ranked as a dark horse.

Eighteen hole rounds will be played Friday and Saturday and then a 36-hole windup Sunday.

Dick Metz Is Barred

Metz was barred from the two events last night by the PGA tournament players' committee as the result of a fracas at Carmel, Calif., two weeks ago in which Fred J. Corcoran, PGA tournament bureau manager, charged Metz hit him.

The committee held Metz guilty of conduct likely to injure the reputation and standing of the association or its members."

George Schneiter of Ogden, Utah, head of the players' committee, said the group would meet with the sponsors tonight and explain the suspension order.

Other members of the committee are U. S. Open Champion Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, PGA Champion Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., Jimmy Demaret of Houston, Tex., Jimmy Thomson of Chicopee, Mass., and Ellsworth Vines of Los Angeles, all of whom are here, and Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va., who is in the east.

The committee also announced the suspension of David Clark of Knoxville, Tenn., from the Phoenix Open for "conduct unbecoming to a professional golfer."

Mapleside Ramblers Cop Seventh Straight

Mapleside's Ramblers chalked up their seventh consecutive victory last night when they defeated the LaSalle Reserves on SS. Peter and Paul court by the score of 42 to 27. The game preceded the LaSalle-Moorefield tilt.

Bill Andrews and Tommy O'Toole led the Ramblers' offensive with ten points each while Woods topped LaSalle with eight.

The quarter scores were 7-2, 19-7 and 28-14 with the Ramblers in front at all times. Lineups:

Maryland Tracks To Spend Millions For Improvements

State Racing Group Gives Bowie $116,975

BALTIMORE, Jan. 23 (AP)—The State Racing Commission today awarded Bowie race track $116,975 in state funds for improvements and outlined a general overhaul program which contemplates the spending of about $4,500,000 at Maryland's four major tracks.

Money collected by the state from mutuel betting pools will make up only part of the total expenditure, but today's allotment to Bowie was the first authorized under the plan.

George P. Mahoney, commission chairman, announced there was $1,380,002 in the fund accumulated by taking one-half of 1 per cent of the betting pools at the tracks the past year.

The commission has earmarked $373,155 for Pimlico, $326,944 for Laurel, $338,507 for Bowie and $341,395 for Havre de Grace.

Under provisions of a law passed early in 1946, tracks may apply for allotments of the fund to reimburse them for improvement projects carried out at their plants.

Allows Certain Items

Mahoney said Bowie has spent $253,382 on improvements since close of the 1946 season and asked reimbursement for the entire amount. The commission allowed such items as a new dining room in the clubhouse, a new manager's office, new paths and walkways, a new parking area, and improvement of the water supply system.

The state improvement fund actually dates back to 1938, when a previous racing commissioner allowed the tracks an extra 1 percent of the mutuel pools.

For years, the money simply was absorbed by the tracks for general use. Mahoney, when he became head of the commission, asked the tracks for an accounting of an estimated $2,000,000 in 1945.

The resulting controversy delayed for an hour the opening of the fall meeting at Pimlico in 1945 and the legislature the following winter put the "improvement fund" under new regulations and took the mutuel "breakage"—odd cents in the betting payoff—away from the tracks.

The long-range overhaul program contemplates the expenditure of half a million dollars at Bowie, including new fireproof barns and improvements to the grandstand and paddock.

Plan To Spend Million

The owners of Havre de Grace have plans for spending a million, mostly for a new grandstand.

Laurel has blueprinted improvements estimated to cost between $700,000 and $800,000, including major grandstand work.

The overall program promises to bring to a head again the 20-year discussion about moving Pimlico from its present site in the outskirts of Baltimore. If the Maryland Jockey Club decides to rebuild "Old Hilltop," an expenditure of $2,000,000 is indicated. If the operators decide to move, it may take $3,000,000.

Brooklyn Signs Pepper Martin

Frisch Also Offered Job As "Field Man"

BROOKLYN, Jan. 23 (AP)—Pepper Martin, the ever-youthful Wild Horse of the Osage, signed a Brooklyn contract today as "field man" in the Dodgers farm organization and Frankie Frisch, another Gas House Gang alumnus, was offered a similar position.

The hawk-faced Oklahoman, whose daring base running and .500 batting average made him the hero of the 1931 world series, thus rejoined his old boss Branch Rickey, who moved east from the St. Louis Cardinals four years ago.

"Pepper Martin has joined the organization as a field man and there is a job waiting for Frank Frisch if he wants it," read the announcement from Rickey through Secretary Harold Parrot.

Frisch, former Cardinal and Pittsburgh manager, is currently between engagements with many irons in the fire. Among others, he is under consideration for the radio broadcasting job with the New York Giants. It is possible that there would not be enough cash involved in the Brooklyn proposition to tempt the old Fordham Flash, one of the four men recently named to the Hall of Fame.

Pirates To Conduct 26 Baseball Schools

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 23 (AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates will conduct 26 baseball schools this year, Farm Director Ray Kennedy announced today as the advance guard of the 22 men who'll compose the most extensive scouting system in the club's history arrived for a series of weekend conferences.

The schools will start around April 1 and will be run off at the rate of one a week in every section of the country under the direction of Ted McGrew, new chief scout for the Bucs.

Grid League Acts To Curb Gambling

Bert Bell Is Given Dictatorial Power

CHICAGO, Jan. 23 (AP)—The National Football League today gave Commissioner Bert Bell dictatorial power designed to crush attempted fixing of its games, including life banishment of implicated players.

The 10-member league also studied a membership bid by the San Francisco Clippers of the Pacific Coast Football League, a minor league affiliate in the same town in which the All-America Conference has a major league entry.

League officials, opening a three-day session, unanimously amended its constitution to give Commissioner Bell virtually the same blanket authority regarding gambling that professional baseball extended the late Kenesaw Mountain Landis after the "Black Sox" scandal of 1919.

Spurred by the attempted fix by a New York gambler of its title playoff between the New York Giants and the Chicago Bears last month, the national circuit empowered Bell not only to banish or otherwise punish any of its personnel involved in a fix or attempted fix, but also to bar from league parks any person deemed "detrimental to the best interests of the National Football League and / or professional football."

MARYLAND GAME LAW BILLS ARE AMENDED AT ANNAPOLIS

Deer Possession Limit Cut From 90 To 30 Days

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 23 (AP)—The house committee on agriculture and natural resources thinks more of dogs than rabbits.

State Game Warden Ernest A. Vaughn told the committee Tuesday that a lot of unsuspecting rabbits were dashing recklessly into groundhog dens only to meet an untimely death by a hunter's trap.

So, he had a bill which would require, among other things, that traps be placed at least five feet from such holes.

Chairman Clark (D-Harford) said the committee talked it over and decided that the hunters' dogs then would be in dire peril, and when the bill was reported favorably to the house today, it was amended to strike out the five-foot provision.

Three other bills backed by the Game and Inland Fish Commission also were amended, then reported favorably.

One would have permitted possession of deer 90 days after the close of the season, but the house committee reduced this to 30 days. Another, dealing with wild water fowl, also cut the proposed possession time from 90 to 30 days.

The possession limit of all other game would remain at five days, as under present law.

A third provision, which would have permitted trap shooting on Sunday, was stricken from the bill. Clark said that the committee believed that this did not belong in the game code, and that advocates of Sunday trap shooting should have another bill introduced.

Moorefield Edges LaSalle In Extra Period

Regular Game Ends With Score 41-41

Field goals by Dwight Kessel and Wallace Sherman broke a 41-41 deadlock and gave Moorefield High School's Yellow Jackets a 45 to 43 decision over LaSalle High School in an overtime battle last night at SS. Peter and Paul gymnasium.

Karl Muller's fielder and foul goal 15 seconds before the close of the regulation game knotted the score at 41-all and forced the teams to play an extra period of three minutes.

After Kessel and Sherman registered baskets in the overtime session, Bobby Vanderhout heaved in a one hander for LaSalle's final points of the game.

Score Tied Six Times

The game was one of the best staged on the west side floor this season. The score was tied on six occasions — at 3-3, 20-20, 26-26 32-32, 34-34 and finally 41-41 and on no less than eight occasions the lead changed hands.

Moorefield started off by getting a 3-0 lead on Hott's basket and Sherman's foul then Vanderhout scored LaSalle's initial point at the charity stripe. The Explorers held an 11-6 edge at the quarter and were on top 18-15 at the halfway mark. Trailing 6 to 5 in the first quarter, Coach John J. Long's outfit reeled off ten consecutive points to run the score to 15-6 before the Hardy countians came back into the scoring column. It was a hammer and tongs battle throughout the third quarter and at the finish the count was 32-32. Each team marked up nine points in the final quarter of the regular game.

George Hott, Moorefield's classy center, who paced the scorers with 15 points, left the game on personal fouls after one minute of play in the final stanza. Clem Snyder, of LaSalle, also made his exit on personals in the last period.

Cloonan Leads LaSalle

Tommy Cloonan was LaSalle's leading scorer with 15 points on five field goals and five free throws. Don Smith, of Moorefield, garnered 11 points while Karl Muller, of the Explorers, and Wally Sherman, of the Jackets, had nine each. Lineups:

ALL-AMERICAN GOLF TOURNAMENT PURSE IS CUT TO $30,000

CHICAGO, Jan. 23. (AP) — The purse in the All-American golf tournament at Tam O'Shanter course, the game's richest meet, was slashed by one-third to $30,000 today in a move attributed by sponsor George S. May to "lack of cooperation on the part of the Professional Golfers' Association."

May, in a statement, said All-American tourney officials had considered canceling the meet "in view of the numerous cancellations and threats of cancellations of other golf tournaments, due to the possibility of top talent not appearing."

"After several hours deliberation, however, it was decided, at least for the present," May said, "that rather than cancel entirely, the total prize money would be reduced 33⅓ per cent."

In last year's meet, won by Herman Barron, $45,000 was handed out in prizes to 50 professionals. May said $30,000 would be distributed to the same number of places this year.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 23 (AP) — Mayor Joseph Altman announced today some 2,000 high and prep school football coaches would attend a Clark Shaughnessy football clinic scheduled for April 1-3 at Convention Hall.

Altman said Shaughnessy, who recently resigned as head coach at the University of Maryland, would be assisted by Notre Dame's Frank Leahy and Sid Luckman, quarterback for the National Professional League's Chicago Bears.

The clinic was endorsed by the local board of education and the athletic associations of high schools in 15 states, the mayor said.

GREENBERG'S STATEMENTS ANGERED WALTER O. BRIGGS

Paper Says Remarks Resulted In Sale

DETROIT, Jan. 23 (AP)—The Detroit Free Press said tonight Hank Greenberg was sold by the Detroit Tigers to the Pittsburgh Pirates "at the insistence" of Tiger Owner Walter O. Briggs.

The newspaper, in an article by Sports Editor Lyall Smith, said Briggs was "angered and hurt" at statements attributed to the home run slugger and ordered Greenberg's immediate sale.

Smith wrote that three weeks ago Greenberg was quoted in a New York newspaper as saying he would demand $75,000 for the 1947 season and at the same time expressed a desire to play for the New York Yankees.

"Upon reading this story and subsequent ones," Smith wrote, "Briggs called in Billy Evans, new Tiger general manager, and told him he felt that Greenberg was ungrateful, unkind and unfair to Detroit."

Briggs then ordered Evans to "get rid" of Hank, the Free Press sports editor said.

Owner Briggs and associates of the Detroit ball club were not available for comment on the story.

TIGERS PAID HANK $55,000 LAST YEAR

DETROIT, Jan. 23. (AP)—H. G. Salsinger, sports editor of the Detroit News, said today that "it is not likely the Pittsburgh Pirates will offer Hank Greenberg less than $55,000" to play with the National leaguers in 1947.

"Before acquiring Greenberg last week, the Pittsburgh club owners undoubtedly knew what Detroit paid Hank last year," Salsinger said. "Every club in the American league, of course, knew that his salary was $55,000 and, presumably, all clubs in the National League had the information.

"According to published reports from New York, Hank was planning to ask an increase in salary from the Detroit club. He expected a boost of at least $10,000, according to one story.

"In view of this, it is not likely that the Pirates will ask Hank to play for less than he got from Detroit last year."

Meanwhile, the Detroit club announced that a bonus check for $20,000 had been mailed to Greenberg this week, conforming to a stipulation in his last contract calling for a bonus payment of that sum if Hank voluntarily retired or was released, or if his contract was assigned elsewhere.

Including his 1946 salary and the unique bonus, Greenberg thus has received $75,000 from the Tigers in the last 10 months. That falls just $5,000 short of the highest salary Babe Ruth ever received from the New York Yankees.

Sports Editor Bob Murphy of the Detroit Times, writing from New York City where he interviewed Greenberg, quoted Hank today as declaring, "I have at least three more years of good baseball in my system." Described the big home run hitter as "visibly shocked" but "apparently not embittered toward any one" because of his sale to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"You sportswriters should demand to know why I was waived out of the American League; should ask the Tiger management why I was let go," the Times quoted Greenberg.

Buddy Young Expects More Than $90 Monthly

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23 (AP) — Buddy Young, ex-Illinois halfback, arrived by plane today from Chicago and said he was open to "any offer that pays more than $90 a month."

The dusky speed-burner, who makes his professional debut here Sunday in an All-Star game sponsored by Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, grinningly explained that was all he got under the G. I. Bill at Illinois.

Young reiterated that he had received no football contract offers yet, but was hopeful. He added that his decision to turn pro was not a sudden one, explaining:

"My family comes first," said the 21-year-old athlete. "I'll miss not getting into the Olympics, but I'm married and have a son Claude, Jr., 19 months old."

Babe Zaharias Wins Tampa Golf Tourney

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 23. (AP)—Babe Zaharias shot some of her best golf today, breaking course records to win the Tampa women's open golf tournament.

Mrs. Zaharias, national amateur golfing queen, from Denver, blasted the Palma Ceia Course wide open with a two under women's par 73. Her total tournament figure was 306.

Five strokes behind with a 311 was Louise Suggs, of Lithia Springs, Ga., the smooth stroking Georgian turned in an 18-hole score of 77 in the final round.

Oakland Boxer Grabs Spotlight At Penn State

Sheehe Outclasses First Two Opponents

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Jan. 23—A newcomer to college boxing, Jack Sheehe is unbeaten in two starters as Penn State 145-pounder.

The 24-year-old Oakland, Md., welterweight, a veteran of Pacific warfare, is progressing rapidly under the tutelage of the Lion coach, Leo Houck, and was a clean-cut winner in his first two bouts.

In both starts, against Scott Hogue of Miami and Jack Eccles of Western Maryland, the willing Sheehe exhibited a good left hand and this was enough to win both bouts handily.

Outclassed Opponents

He took every round from Hogue and so battered Eccles in last Saturday's Western Maryland match that the referee stepped in and stopped the bout after 1 minute and 31 seconds of the second round.

Houck, who's celebrating his 25th anniversary year as Penn State ring mentor, regards the Oakland, Md., youth highly and has high hopes that his progress will put him in position to seek an Eastern intercollegiate title at season's end.

The annual tournament, back on a prewar basis for the first time, will be held in Penn State's mammoth Recreation Hall on March 7 and 8 with the best college boxers in the East as contenders.

The Nittany Lions, seven times winners of the team title and perennial contenders, broke even in their first two meets, losing to the University of Miami by a one-point margin and topping Western Maryland by a 6-2 count. Dual meets still remain with the University of Virginia, Army, Syracuse, Wisconsin and Michigan State.

Sheehe, winner of an Air Medal with four clusters and six battle stars as a member of the Army Air Forces, trains faithfully and already has achieved excellent physical condition.

Works Hard, Houck Says

"He works hard," Houck says, "and if he stays right with it for a year or two he should be a standout."

This is Sheehe's third semester at Penn State and he will be eligible for at least two more seasons of boxing.

Houck's 1947 team is composed wholly of ex-servicemen, and is captained by Jackie Tighe, crack 165-pounder who was a finalist in the Easterns and also in the National Collegiates prior to the war.

HEIDELBERG, Jan. 23 (AP)—Former heavyweight champion Max Schmeling may test his ability to make a boxing comeback in an exhibition bout with Ten Van Hoff, promising young German heavyweight, here Jan. 31, U. S. Army officers said today.

The officers hope to match Schmeling and Van Hoff in an added attraction to the "March of Dimes" program of amateur soldier fights in Heidelberg's spacious Star Dust Club, a G.I. night spot.

Moorefield Edges LaSalle In Extra Period

Regular Game Ends With Score 41-41

Field goals by Dwight Kessel and Wallace Sherman broke a 41-41 deadlock and gave Moorefield High School's Yellow Jackets a 45 to 43 decision over LaSalle High School in an overtime battle last night at SS. Peter and Paul gymnasium.

Karl Muller's fielder and foul goal 15 seconds before the close of the regulation game knotted the score at 41-all and forced the teams to play an extra period of three minutes.

After Kessel and Sherman registered baskets in the overtime session, Bobby Vanderhout heaved in a one hander for LaSalle's final points of the game.

Score Tied Six Times

The game was one of the best staged on the west side floor this season. The score was tied on six occasions — at 3-3, 20-20, 26-26 32-32, 34-34 and finally 41-41 and on no less than eight occasions the lead changed hands.

Moorefield started off by getting a 3-0 lead on Hott's basket and Sherman's foul then Vanderhout scored LaSalle's initial point at the charity stripe. The Explorers held an 11-6 edge at the quarter and were on top 18-15 at the halfway mark. Trailing 6 to 5 in the first quarter, Coach John J. Long's outfit reeled off ten consecutive points to run the score to 15-6 before the Hardy countians came back into the scoring column. It was a hammer and tongs battle throughout the third quarter and at the finish the count was 32-32. Each team marked up nine points in the final quarter of the regular game.

Cloonan Leads LaSalle

Tommy Cloonan was LaSalle's leading scorer with 15 points on five field goals and five free throws. Don Smith, of Moorefield, garnered 11 points while Karl Muller, of the Explorers, and Wally Sherman, of the Jackets, had nine each. Lineups:

Fort Hill High School and Allegany High School, deadlocked for first place in the W.M.I. League, with four wins and no losses, will clash tonight at 8 o'clock on the Campobello court.

It will be the first meeting of the intra-city rivals and as usual the game will attract a packed house. Van Roby and Ken Gerard will officiate.

Fort Hill, coached by John J. "Bobby" Cavanaugh has won 11 games and lost 3 while Walter Bowers' Campers have a record of six wins and four losses. In the only intra-city game played to date Fort Hill downed LaSalle, 34-22.

In other scholastic games Parsons is host to Coalton, Thomas High School's high flying quintet will engage Tygarts Valley of Mill Creek in Thomas, Capon Bridge is at Romney, Bedford invades Somerset, Pa., Paw Paw will play the Ridgeley Blackhawks on the latter's floor and Howard High of Piedmont will be host to Elk Garden High.

ALL-AMERICAN GOLF TOURNAMENT PURSE IS CUT TO $30,000

CHICAGO, Jan. 23. (AP) — The purse in the All-American golf tournament at Tam O'Shanter course, the game's richest meet, was slashed by one-third to $30,000 today in a move attributed by sponsor George S. May to "lack of cooperation on the part of the Professional Golfers' Association."

May, in a statement, said All-American tourney officials had considered canceling the meet "in view of the numerous cancellations and threats of cancellations of other golf tournaments, due to the possibility of top talent not appearing."

"After several hours deliberation, however, it was decided, at least for the present," May said, "that rather than cancel entirely, the total prize money would be reduced 33⅓ per cent."

In last year's meet, won by Herman Barron, $45,000 was handed out in prizes to 50 professionals. May said $30,000 would be distributed to the same number of places this year.

Shaughnessy, Luckman, Leahy To Hold Clinic

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 23 (AP) — Mayor Joseph Altman announced today some 2,000 high and prep school football coaches would attend a Clark Shaughnessy football clinic scheduled for April 1-3 at Convention Hall.

Altman said Shaughnessy, who recently resigned as head coach at the University of Maryland, would be assisted by Notre Dame's Frank Leahy and Sid Luckman, quarterback for the National Professional League's Chicago Bears.

The clinic was endorsed by the local board of education and the athletic associations of high schools in 15 states, the mayor said.

GREENBERG'S STATEMENTS ANGERED WALTER O. BRIGGS

Paper Says Remarks Resulted In Sale

DETROIT, Jan. 23 (AP)—The Detroit Free Press said tonight Hank Greenberg was sold by the Detroit Tigers to the Pittsburgh Pirates "at the insistence" of Tiger Owner Walter O. Briggs.

The newspaper, in an article by Sports Editor Lyall Smith, said Briggs was "angered and hurt" at statements attributed to the home run slugger and ordered Greenberg's immediate sale.

Smith wrote that three weeks ago Greenberg was quoted in a New York newspaper as saying he would demand $75,000 for the 1947 season and at the same time expressed a desire to play for the New York Yankees.

"Upon reading this story and subsequent ones," Smith wrote, "Briggs called in Billy Evans, new Tiger general manager, and told him he felt that Greenberg was ungrateful, unkind and unfair to Detroit."

Briggs then ordered Evans to "get rid" of Hank, the Free Press sports editor said.

Owner Briggs and associates of the Detroit ball club were not available for comment on the story.

TIGERS PAID HANK $55,000 LAST YEAR

DETROIT, Jan. 23. (AP)—H. G. Salsinger, sports editor of the Detroit News, said today that "it is not likely the Pittsburgh Pirates will offer Hank Greenberg less than $55,000" to play with the National leaguers in 1947.

"Before acquiring Greenberg last week, the Pittsburgh club owners undoubtedly knew what Detroit paid Hank last year," Salsinger said. "Every club in the American league, of course, knew that his salary was $55,000 and, presumably, all clubs in the National League had the information.

"According to published reports from New York, Hank was planning to ask an increase in salary from the Detroit club. He expected a boost of at least $10,000, according to one story.

"In view of this, it is not likely that the Pirates will ask Hank to play for less than he got from Detroit last year."

Meanwhile, the Detroit club announced that a bonus check for $20,000 had been mailed to Greenberg this week, conforming to a stipulation in his last contract calling for a bonus payment of that sum if Hank voluntarily retired or was released, or if his contract was assigned elsewhere.

Including his 1946 salary and the unique bonus, Greenberg thus has received $75,000 from the Tigers in the last 10 months. That falls just $5,000 short of the highest salary Babe Ruth ever received from the New York Yankees.

Sports Editor Bob Murphy of the Detroit Times, writing from New York City where he interviewed Greenberg, quoted Hank today as declaring, "I have at least three more years of good baseball in my system." Described the big home run hitter as "visibly shocked" but "apparently not embittered toward any one" because of his sale to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"You sportswriters should demand to know why I was waived out of the American League; should ask the Tiger management why I was let go," the Times quoted Greenberg.

Buddy Young Expects More Than $90 Monthly

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23 (AP) — Buddy Young, ex-Illinois halfback, arrived by plane today from Chicago and said he was open to "any offer that pays more than $90 a month."

The dusky speed-burner, who makes his professional debut here Sunday in an All-Star game sponsored by Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, grinningly explained that was all he got under the G. I. Bill at Illinois.

Young reiterated that he had received no football contract offers yet, but was hopeful. He added that his decision to turn pro was not a sudden one, explaining:

"My family comes first," said the 21-year-old athlete. "I'll miss not getting into the Olympics, but I'm married and have a son Claude, Jr., 19 months old."

Babe Zaharias Wins Tampa Golf Tourney

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 23. (AP)—Babe Zaharias shot some of her best golf today, breaking course records to win the Tampa women's open golf tournament.

Mrs. Zaharias, national amateur golfing queen, from Denver, blasted the Palma Ceia Course wide open with a two under women's par 73. Her total tournament figure was 306.

Five strokes behind with a 311 was Louise Suggs, of Lithia Springs, Ga., the smooth stroking Georgian turned in an 18-hole score of 77 in the final round.

Oakland Boxer Grabs Spotlight At Penn State

Sheehe Outclasses First Two Opponents

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Jan. 23—A newcomer to college boxing, Jack Sheehe is unbeaten in two starters as Penn State 145-pounder.

The 24-year-old Oakland, Md., welterweight, a veteran of Pacific warfare, is progressing rapidly under the tutelage of the Lion coach, Leo Houck, and was a clean-cut winner in his first two bouts.

Outclassed Opponents

He took every round from Hogue and so battered Eccles in last Saturday's Western Maryland match that the referee stepped in and stopped the bout after 1 minute and 31 seconds of the second round.

Houck, who's celebrating his 25th anniversary year as Penn State ring mentor, regards the Oakland, Md., youth highly and has high hopes that his progress will put him in position to seek an Eastern intercollegiate title at season's end.

The annual tournament, back on a prewar basis for the first time, will be held in Penn State's mammoth Recreation Hall on March 7 and 8 with the best college boxers in the East as contenders.

The Nittany Lions, seven times winners of the team title and perennial contenders, broke even in their first two meets, losing to the University of Miami by a one-point margin and topping Western Maryland by a 6-2 count. Dual meets still remain with the University of Virginia, Army, Syracuse, Wisconsin and Michigan State.

Sheehe, winner of an Air Medal with four clusters and six battle stars as a member of the Army Air Forces, trains faithfully and already has achieved excellent physical condition.

Works Hard, Houck Says

"He works hard," Houck says, "and if he stays right with it for a year or two he should be a standout."

This is Sheehe's third semester at Penn State and he will be eligible for at least two more seasons of boxing.

Houck's 1947 team is composed wholly of ex-servicemen, and is captained by Jackie Tighe, crack 165-pounder who was a finalist in the Easterns and also in the National Collegiates prior to the war.

Batllers Trim D. & E. For Twelfth Victory

PHILIPPI, W. Va., Jan. 23 (AP)—The Alderson-Broaddus Battlers rolled over Davis and Elkins, 90 to 40 in a West Virginia conference basketball meeting here tonight for the 12th victory in 13 starts.

The victory was Broaddus' ninth conference triumph in 10 games and put them out in front in the circuit stadings, two games ahead circuit standings, two games ahead

Darl Wilmoth, the Battlers' sharpshooter, scored 27 points on nine field goals and the same number of fouls, bringing his season's total to 348. Floatz Pelyaez got 19 for the winners and Stenback, Senators' forward, led the losers with nine.

Schmeling May Fight

HEIDELBERG, Jan. 23 (AP)—Former heavyweight champion Max Schmeling may test his ability to make a boxing comeback in an exhibition bout with Ten Van Hoff, promising young German heavyweight, here Jan. 31, U. S. Army officers said today.

The officers hope to match Schmeling and Van Hoff in an added attraction to the "March of Dimes" program of amateur soldier fights in Heidelberg's spacious Star Dust Club, a G.I. night spot.

Sports Broadcasts Will Be Featured On Air Tonight

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Scheduled for Friday night's Meet the Press of MBS is Attorney General Tom C. Clark. The questions from a panel of four newspapermen starting at 10:30 will treat on questions in the public eye at the time of the broadcast.

Box fight broadcasting, running its orderly weekly course, has on its schedule for ABC at 10 a welterweight meeting, rated as a return match for the principals. They are Berbie Kronowitz of Brooklyn and Billy Walker of Seattle. Previously Kronowitz won a close verdict.

More about sports put Rudy Vallee in as gest of Bill Stern's regular 10:30 on NBC.

Kate Smith is to make the second of her two guest appearances in It Pays to Be Ignorant on CBS at 10. She is filled in for the hospitalized Lulu McConnell.

After having some difficulty in settling on what was regarded as the right title, first Love Story theater, then Story theater, later Mutual Playhouse, and then finally back to Story theater, this MBS feature at 8:30 is to tell the story of a hard boiled newspaper reporter in "Beloved Stranger." Jim Ameche, brother of Don, does the leading.

Carole Brent, who hails from New Orleans and sings, gets a chance at net-casting through a guest appearance in Meredith Willson's time on CBS at 7:30. She is just 20 years of age.

Spotlight On America

"Spotlight On America" (Mutual 10 p. m. EST Fridays), a fairly recent arrival, is not my dish but it may be yours. This is sort of a Sunday supplement of the air waves. The program presents actual new stories dressed up in lurid colors and moist with sentiment. Everything is so heavily dramatic on this program that the original participants in the news stories may well have difficulty in recognizing themselves.

John Crosby

A recent program, for example, started out with a story about counterfeiting in which the United States Secret Service finally nabbed "The Counterfeit Killer," a label which I'm sure wasn't fixed on the criminal by the G-men. My acquaintance with both Secret Service men and counterfeiters is limited and I'm pleased to find out they still use phrases like "put a tail on him" and "shovin' the queer." I may be wrong but I could have sworn I heard one of the criminals say: "I didn't cross you, Nick. I didn't tell the dicks nix." Or it's just possible I've been reading "Variety" too often lately.

There are about four of these little vignettes on each program, usually one about crime, one soaked in pathos, one humorous and one which, for lack of any other word, we'll have to call ironic. Each one points a moral and if you can't catch the moral by yourself, George Garson Putnam, one of the more convulsive commentators, is right there to help you figure it out. The editorial stand taken by "Spotlight In America" in these little sermons won't offend anyone. They're opposed to crime and more than once have taken a firm stand in favor of motherhood, particularly aged motherhood.

The night I was around the mother was eighty years old. To keep her from worrying too much during the war, her soldier son wrote her that he was a Colonel on the General Staff, though actually he held the more popular rank of private. After the war he kept up the pretense that he was a Colonel while holding down the job of doorman at a hotel. Well, sir, his mother turned up on a surprise visit one day and the entire hotel staff pitched in to help preserve her illusions. The hotel manager carried in the lady's bags, the bell captain referred to the boy as Colonel and they were put up in the best rooms in the place.

It sounds like pure Damon Runyon but it probably happened. While the hotel managers I've known have been a flint-hearted crew, I don't know one of them who wouldn't come to the rescue of an aging mother's illusions. The nation may be split on tax reduction but our stand on motherhood is bipartisan.

"Spotlight On America" isn't a bad program but it would be a better one if everybody just relaxed. The stories are dramatized to the point of hysteria. Also, whoever arranges the music sounds as if he had been heavily influenced by the musical background of the Movietone News. His style might best be described as tumultuous.

Sports Broadcasts Will Be Featured On Air Tonight

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Scheduled for Friday night's Meet the Press of MBS is Attorney General Tom C. Clark. The questions from a panel of four newspapermen starting at 10:30 will treat on questions in the public eye at the time of the broadcast.

Box fight broadcasting, running its orderly weekly course, has on its schedule for ABC at 10 a welterweight meeting, rated as a return match for the principals. They are Berbie Kronowitz of Brooklyn and Billy Walker of Seattle. Previously Kronowitz won a close verdict.

More about sports put Rudy Vallee in as gest of Bill Stern's regular 10:30 on NBC.

Kate Smith is to make the second of her two guest appearances in It Pays to Be Ignorant on CBS at 10. She is filled in for the hospitalized Lulu McConnell.

After having some difficulty in settling on what was regarded as the right title, first Love Story theater, then Story theater, later Mutual Playhouse, and then finally back to Story theater, this MBS feature at 8:30 is to tell the story of a hard boiled newspaper reporter in "Beloved Stranger." Jim Ameche, brother of Don, does the leading.

Carole Brent, who hails from New Orleans and sings, gets a chance at net-casting through a guest appearance in Meredith Willson's time on CBS at 7:30. She is just 20 years of age.

Bill To Abolish Tax Exemption Powers Proposed

Measure Applies To Manufacturing Firms

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 23 (AP)—Six bills affecting Western Maryland were introduced into the General Assembly today, four by Allegany County Republican Senator Kimble and two by the Garrett County House delegation.

Two of Senator Kimble's proposals would abolish the power of the county and the City of Cumberland to exempt from taxation certain unnamed manufacturing companies.

Both were described as emergency measures which would become effective immediately after passage by a three-fifths vote of both houses and signing by the governor.

Another of Kimble's measures would allow the County Commissioners to pay $10 to their clerk for each day's work in connection with the review of tax assessments.

The fourth would abolish Cumberland's power to exempt from taxation certain land within the city.

The one Garrett County measure would empower the Mayor and City Council of Kitzmiller to issue $15,000 in bonds for improvements and the other provide for registration of city workers.

Another bill introduced by Kimble relates to the compensation, duties, power and removal of the clerk to the County Commissioners.

The present act reads that the clerk is subject to removal from office for any willful neglect of duty or misbehavior in office at any time by the County Commissioners, but the proposed bill substitutes the word malfeasance for misbehavior.

The present law also provides that the clerk is to be paid $1,200 for his services, but the proposal increases this to "not less than $2,400" per year. The clerk now is paid $2,400 yearly, but the proposal was offered in what was said to be a move to assure his compensation remaining at that level. Kimble's bill also would remove from the County Commissioners power to set the clerk's compensation.

Kimble's measure that would allow the County Commissioners to pay $10 to their clerk for each day's work in connection with the review of tax assessments also was seen as a move to assure that compensation to the clerk, inasmuch as he presently receives that sum for each of the twice monthly meetings.

Gottlieb Forster Succumbs Of Self Inflicted Wound

A funeral service for Gottlieb F. Forster, 52, 312 Franklin street, well known local bartender, who died yesterday afternoon at 12:45 o'clock in Allegany Hospital as a result of a head wound suffered late Wednesday night, will be conducted tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the Hafer Funeral Home.

Rev. Frederick D. Oberkircher, pastor of Zion Evangelical and Reformed Church, will officiate and interment will be in Hillcrest Cemetery.

Forster was admitted to the hospital late Wednesday night in an unconscious and critical condition suffering from a bullet wound on the right side of the head. Police said the wound was self inflicted.

Police said Forster shot himself with a .38 caliber revolver at Al Zihlman's Lunch Room, 523 North Mechanic street, where he was employed as a bartender, about 11 p. m. Wednesday.

Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, said a verdict of suicide has been issued in connection with the death.

Hospital attaches said Forster, a former glass worker, was bleeding profusely in the right frontal region of the head when he was taken to the hospital. Powder burns surrounding the wound indicated the weapon was held at close range, police reported.

Relatives were unable to say what prompted the action and reported Forster was in good spirits when he left for work Wednesday.

Mr. Forster's wife, Mrs. Pearl Peebles Forster, died about six months ago. He continued to maintain his home on Franklin street for two daughters, the Misses Katherine and Charlotte Ruth Forster.

Also surviving are two other daughters, Mrs. John K. Mackert, this city, and Mrs. Delbert Smiley, Mt. Savage; a brother, Charles Forster, this city; three sisters, Mrs. Edward Castle, Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. James Somerville, this city, and Mrs. Lawence Lewis, Piedmont, and three grandchildren.

Paper Collection To Begin Monday

Cumberland's monthly paper collection will start next Monday with pickups scheduled that day for Potomac Park, Bowling Green, Bedford Road from Nave's Crossroads to State Line and Baltimore Pike to Miller's Service Station.

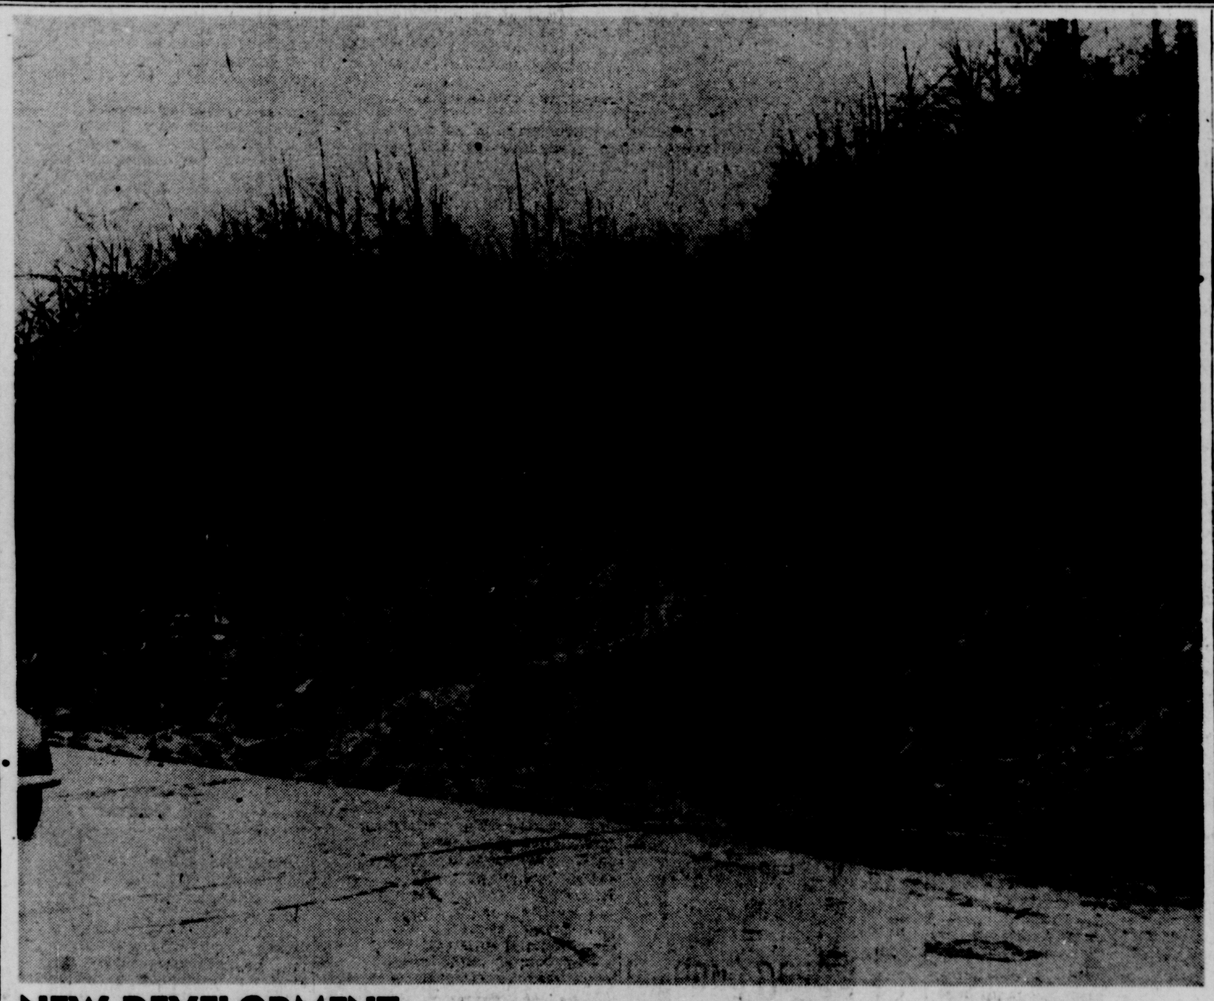
On Tuesday West Side will be covered, while on Wednesday collections will be made east of Wills Creek and north of Baltimore Street and Baltimore Avenue.

The area between Baltimore Street-Avenue and Oldtown Road is on Thursday's pickup schedule, while the drive ends Friday with collections south of Oldtown Road.

Local Child Injured When Car Door Opens

Jerry Barncord, 3½-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Barncord, 516 Marshall street, was admitted to Allegany Hospital last night for observation and treatment of injuries suffered when he fell from the car in which he was riding with his father.

Attaches said they were told the lad fell out when the door of the car came open here. He was treated for a left shoulder injury and brush burns on the face. His condition is reported good.



NEW DEVELOPMENT—Work has started, as shown here, on a new two-lane highway to the top of Wills Mountain, where a housing and resort development is planned by William P. Roeder, well known local contractor. This road, now being built by Roeder's workmen, begins on Piedmont avenue at the intersection of Maplewood Lane, and is expected to provide easy access to a one-time popular and historic site atop the mountain. Roeder said sometime ago that he plans to complete a modern development on the top of Wills Mountain overlooking Cumberland and the Narrows.

Jury Disagrees In Appeal Case On Drunk Driving

Police Identify Wrong Man As Defendant

For the second time in the current term of Circuit Court, a jury failed to agree yesterday, and was discharged with the thanks of the Court and the comment from the bench, "it is the right of all men to disagree."

The case yesterday was a criminal appeal from a decision in Trial Magistrate Court where the defendant, Wilbur L. Cessna, Jr., was fined $100 on a charge of drunken driving. On Tuesday, January 14, a civil jury disagreed in the slander suit of Archibald C. Willis vs. Garland H. Darr and Mrs. Hazel Darr, for $1,000.

Yesterday's case was marked by an unusual piece of strategy, deliberate or otherwise, on the part of Defense Attorney Edward J. Ryan. As the case was called, Ryan entered the Court room accompanied by two young men, and the three of them sat together at the counsel table.

As three City Police officers, Edward R. Lilya, Darrell J. Racey and Charles C. Roby testified, Ryan, in the course of his cross-examination asked the officers to point out to the Court and jury, the defendant. Two of the officers pointed to one of Ryan's companions at the table, and one of them pointed to the other.

After testimony was completed, Ryan asked the two men sitting with him to identify themselves. As they did so, it developed that neither of them was Cessna. Then he asked Cessna to stand and the defendant, who was seated a few feet behind Ryan stood.

The situation caused a mild stir in the Court Room and Assistant State's Attorney called the incident "a cheap trick" in his plea before the jury.

Case Over Two Years Old

Cessna was arrested September 24, 1944 at Park and Baltimore streets, near Central YMCA, by Officer Lilya, after he had broken a wheel on his car and was attempting to get the vehicle in a service station nearby. Lilya testified that "there was a smell of alcohol" evident. Officer Roby, who drove the patrol wagon and Officer Racy did not detect the alcoholic odor, they said, but recalled that the defendant "staggered like a man intoxicated".

Since the time of his arrest and trial before Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., in Trial Magistrate's Court, Cessna has served nearly two years in the Merchant Marine and just recently returned here. This accounts for the more than two-years delay in hearing the appeal case, Court attaches explained.

Jury Called Today

The jury got the case early in the afternoon and deliberated more than two hours before returning to tell the Court that they could not agree. The jury foreman, when asked if there was any chance of reaching an agreement, told the Court, "the last ballot was the same as the first and we can't agree."

The jury included, William Gephart, foreman, Charles B. Hornbrook, Charles G. Berkshire, Joseph S. Bewick, Thomas J. Leake, William H. Beeman, William M. Shaffer, Owen Zimmerly, Alvin Haller, Archibald Cook, Conrad Lochner and George William Jones.

The jury was discharged with instructions to report this morning at 9:15 a. m.

Gas Pressures Increasing Here

Gas pressures have increased with the rising temperature and the danger of gas shortage has passed, the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company reported last night. Service to all small customers has been restored and large industrial users are expected to be back to normal today.

Failure of gas pressure resulted in shutting off heat in homes and halting of gas supplies to industrial users in New York, Pittsburgh and other cities.

Allegany High School's dramatic club, Omicron Kappa Sigma, will provide an evening of entertainment for those theatre-goers who like a humor packed "Whodunnit," with its presentation in the school auditorium of February 6 and 7, at 8:15 p. m., of "Ramshackle Inn," a mystery farce in three acts.

The play, which has been compared by a New York reviewer to "Arsenic and Old Lace," takes place in an ancient shambles of a hotel located somewhere near Glouchester, Mass. Leslie H. Hinkle, Elderly Recluse, Is Found Dead

Authorities Believe Man Suffered Stroke

Leslie Hugo Hinkle, 63, a well known retired construction worker, was found dead late yesterday afternoon at his home in Brashear Hollow, off Williams road, about one mile east of this city.

He was found lying on the floor of the kitchen of his home at 5 p. m. by a neighbor, William Cassidy, who investigated after he noticed there was no smoke coming from the chimney of the cottage.

Neighbors told county authorities that Mr. Hinkle lived alone and that they had been stopping in each day since his health was poor.

Dr. H. V. Deming, who investigated with County Investigator T. J. Boyle and Deputy Sheriff Edgar M. Lewis, said Mr. Hinkle had been suffering from high blood pressure for some time and that death probably resulted from a stroke.

County authorities said the Williams road man apparently collapsed and died some time after he ate his supper Wednesday night.

They added that neighbors had seen Mr. Hinkle in apparent health Wednesday. He was a bachelor and had lived alone at the small Williams road home for about a year. He had been retired for some time, the family reported.

Mr. Hinkle was a native of this city, a son of the late James O. S. Hinkle and Susan Willison Hinkle.

He is survived by one brother, Roy O. Hinkle, 718 Yale street, and five sisters, Mrs. Lester Boward, 610 Maryland avenue; Mrs. Lester Browning and Mrs. Jessie Barkman, both of 413 Pulaski street; Miss Ruth Hinkle, this city, and Mrs. Carrie Loughney, Frostburg. One niece and two nephews also survive.

The body will remain at the George Funeral Home.

Revised Appraisal Procedure On GI Loans Announced

VA In Future Will Select Appraiser

Instructions on revised Veterans Administration appraisal procedure for loans to veterans under the GI Bill were received by 249 lenders in the Maryland area, William A. Burns, officer in charge of the Cumberland VA contact office, announced yesterday.

The new instructions also were sent to the 160 appraisers in Maryland approved by the VA.

Under the revised system, the VA—not the lender—will pick the appraiser to evaluate "reasonable value" for purposes of GI loans, Burns said. During the past 15 months, the procedure has been for the lender to select any appraiser he desired from a panel of local appraisers whose general qualifications had been reviewed and approved by the VA.

No Slowing Up

The mechanics for assigning appraisers has been set up in the Baltimore regional office to handle requests from lenders quickly and efficiently. This process, Burns said, will in noway impede the processing of GI loans.

The newly-adopted procedure was used during the first year of the loan guarantee program, but in 1945 the panel system permitting the lender to pick the appraiser was formulated.

One advantage of the revised system is that it will result in better control and co-ordination of appraisals, Burns said. A copy of each report will be furnished to the local VA loan guarantee office when the original is submitted to the lender. This will provide the office with a complete record of all appraisals whether or not the loan actually is made.

Each appraisal will be reviewed, many by actual site inspections, and the price so established will stand as "reasonable value" for purposes of a guaranteed loan, Burns stated. This will eliminate duplication of appraisals on the same property for different lenders.

Three To Five Required

Burns also said that in the future any development of five or more houses must be appraised by a committee of from three to five appraisers. All interested lenders will subsequently be advised of the price agreed upon and the sale of units in the development may not exceed this appraisal.

The 249 lenders in Maryland include banks, trust companies, building and loan associations and mortgage loan correspondents.

Many Christmas Seal Letters Unanswered

Although over 6,000 envelopes containing sheets of 100 Christmas Seals were mailed from the Cumberland post office by the Allegany County Tuberculosis Association in November, nearly half of the letters have not yet been answered, according to William J. Edwards, chairman of the 1946 Christmas Seal campaign of the county association.

Edwards pointed out that the seals should either be purchased or returned as promptly as possible, to permit the asociation to bring its campaign records up to date. Of the 6,094 letters mailed, only 3,499 have been returned, leaving 2,595 yet unanswered.

"Everyone in the county benefits from the Christmas Seal sale because funds raised in the campaign support a program to combat tuberculosis here," the chairman said. "Anyone who comes across an unanswered Christmas Seal letter should remember that it is not too late to answer it and make his contribution toward the protection of his own health and the health of everyone else in the county."

Guilty Plea Set Aside In School Bus-Auto Case

Court Acquits Fuller After Criminal Appeal

Harrison I. Fuller, Keyser, W. Va., was acquitted in Circuit Court of a charge of failing to stop for a school bus, in a criminal appeal case heard before Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge George Henderson yesterday afternoon.

Represented by F. Brooke Whiting, the Court was told that Fuller was fined $20 and costs in Trial Magistrates Court by Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce when he entered a plea of guilty, but had not intended to enter the plea.

It was brought out at the trial that Fuller's brakes had failed, and that he told the lower court he had passed the bus and struck a child. A plea of guilty was entered, but Fuller was of the opinion that he had not been negligent and filed an appeal to the fine.

The accident occurred January 8, on McMullen Highway at Dawson, witnesses said, when the school bus, driven by George Moreland, stopped to discharge 10 or 12 school children.

Girl Hit By Car

It was shown in court that Virginia Cook, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse W. Cook, Dawson, was struck by Fuller's car as he went around the right side of the bus to avoid hitting the group of children crossing the road. The Cook child was in charge of seeing the other children across the road and had crossed in front of the bus to enter it again to ride on home, when she was hit.

Fuller and other witnesses testified that he was driving at a moderate speed and tried to stop behind the bus as the law required. When he realized his brakes were not working, and saw the children crossing the road in front of him, he decided to try to get around the right side of the bus, off the road. Fuller told the Court he had little time to act and did the only thing he could to avoid hitting the bus or the children on the highway.

Two auto mechanics figured as witnesses at the trial. One Jesse W. Cook, father of the injured child said he looked at the car Fuller was driving and found no brake fluid in the main cylinder. He expressed the view it had "been dry sometime." The other mechanic Robert Mongold testified he had relined the brakes on Fuller's car the day before the accident, had tested the vehicle and found it in proper working order. He also said he rode with Fuller earlier the day of the accident and the car was working properly then.

Mechanics Differ

Both mechanics described the functioning of hydraulic brakes in detail, but Mongold, who was in a motor platoon in the Army and now operates his own auto repair shop, differed with Cook's testimony about the action of the braking system. He declared it was quite possible for the small cylinders to each wheel to leak or become damaged and the fluid would be pumped out quickly. Cook had claimed it would require "some considerable time" to pump the cylinders dry.

Mongold described the damaged cylinder he found on the car after the accident, said it was broken and one of the "rubber cups damaged and leaking. A plunger was also broken," he said.

The young mechanic explained to the Court that this could have happened anytime and quite likely happened as Fuller approached the bus.

Barbers To Seek Additional Funds For State Board

Local 314, Journeymen Barbers International Union, AFL, is co-operating with the Maryland Barbers Association in seeking more effective licensing and inspection of barbers in this state, Fred B. Driscoll, this city, secretary treasurer of the state association, reported yesterday.

Driscoll said the state group will ask the legislature to provide sufficient funds for effective operation of the state board of examiners and for a full time secretary for the group.

The barbers union will also ask legislation providing for annual renewal of licenses, an inspection system with penalties for infractions and a standard examination for barbers.

Officers of the Cumberland local were installed early in January by Ivan C. Brant, former state inspector. They are:

Roy Wilson, president; Charles Keplinger, vice-president; Driscoll, secretary-treasurer; Ray Nine, recorder; Calvin Swain, guide, and Graham Shaffer, guardian.

Members of the finance committee for 1947 will be Nine, chairman, and James Littlefield and John Grayson. The social committee is composed of Ray Wilson, chairman, Abe Furstenberg, Frank Greco and Keplinger.

SPEAKS TONIGHT—William Schulman, Jersey City, N. J., chairman of the national organizing committee of the Legion of Guardsmen, will be the principal speaker at a banquet in Queen City Hotel tonight. The banquet precedes business sessions Saturday when the Department of Maryland, Legion of Guardsmen, will be organized. Algonquin Post No. 2, Cumberland, will be host to delegates from posts in Hagerstown and Crisfield and delegates from Baltimore and Silver Spring. Schulman will preside at the business meetings.

Logue Described As Mentally Ill By Physicians

Jury Acquits Robber Due To His Insanity

Two physicians, one testifying in Circuit Court for the state and the other for the defense yesterday in the case of Robert Logue, charged with armed robbery, declared the man "is a menace to society and should be incarcerated."

Ably defended by John M. Robb, young attorney named by the Court as the defendant's counsel, Logue was acquitted by a jury when he was found "not guilty by reason of insanity," and was returned to the County Jail to await disposition by the Court.

The guilt of the prisoner was not contested by Robb, and State's Attorney Morgan Harris detailed the charges to the jury. He said Logue had participated in an armed robbery at the Norris Grocery on Pennsylvania Avenue where he took $250 from the proprietor, Lloyd E. Norris and $57 from a customer Mrs. Anna Mae Newion. A few days later, December 19, he held up the store of Howard Kerns in Westernport and robbed the grocer of $20. Logue and his companion were arrested a short time after the hold-up by Westernport police, after a chase through the town.

Robb told the court and the jury that these crimes were acknowledged by the defense, but that his client is not responsible for his actions.

Specialists Testify

Dr. Samuel Jacobson, local specialist was called to the stand by Robb. Under examination, Dr. Jacobson declared that in his opinion Logue should not be at large in society but should be in a medical institution.

Dr. Jacobson said he examined Logue Wednesday night and told the jury that "Logue didn't know who the president of the United States was before Truman. He has the mentality of a nine or ten-year old".

The physician said Logue is under the impression "that a voice constantly tells him to do things and keeps on telling him whatever it is until he does it."

The man realizes, Dr. Jacobson continued, "that he should not do these things and after committing some wrongful act he feels he squares himself by some such act as bashing a finger or toe with a hammer."

Say Logue Mentally Ill

In reply to a direct question from Associate Judge George Henderson, Dr. Jacobson declared, "I think he's insane and probably has been mentally sick since childhood."

Asked if he could classify the type of insanity Logue is suffering from, the physician said, "he is probably a paranoid," and explained to the jury that this means an individual who suffers a mental illness sometimes caused by an organic disease and has illusions and delusions." The fact that Logue has a heart condition probably caused by some

Mercury Continues To Rise In Area

Continued general rising temperatures were predicted today after a severe cold wave ended as fast as it began.

Indications of the warmer weather were seen in temperature readings at Thomas, W. Va., and Deal, Pa., at midnight when the mercury registered 40 degrees. The night before at both communities the temperature was but 10 above zero.

In Cumberland last midnight, the mercury hovered at 32 degrees—the freezing point—while the night previous it was down to 20.

Local weather observers predicted, however, that falling weather is in the offing. They said the fact that temperatures at Deal and Thomas were higher than in Cumberland is a sure sign of rain or snow.

State Police reported last night that state roads in this section are practically clear of snow and ice.

Area Men Re-enlist In Naval Reserve

Two area men have re-enlisted in the Naval Reserve V-6 Inactive, for four years each, according to Chief Torpedoman Edgar L. Schrader of the local Navy recruiting station.

Va., who served 29 months with the Seabees and who holds the rating of shipfitter second class.

Hangar Will Be Delivered Soon To Airport Here

Purchase Approved By Port Commission

Delivery of a new metal hangar measuring 40 by 160 feet from Keyser, W. Va., to the Cumberland Municipal Airport is expecte within a few days, according to John A. Chapman, manager of the port for Cumberland Airways, Incorporated.

Chapman told members of the Municipal Airport Commission at a meeting in the office of Mayor Thomas S. Post last night that the total cost of delivery and erection, including a foundation and floor, would amount to between $8,000 and $10,000. The commission approved the proposed purchase.

Ghapman said the hangar could house over a dozen planes, and said he hopes to have 25 training planes at the airport in an expanded program. Six new Cubs are on order, three for February and three for March delivery, and one Supercruiser is expected before the end of the month.

The new hangar will be placed at the western end of a line of 15 hangars, and will be used for Cumberland Airways equipment and to house transient ships as necessary.

Fire Hydrants Recommended

The commission also recommended that Mayor Post take action to arrange for the installation of three fire hydrants, to be placed at the rear of the line of 15 hangars and connected to the water line already installed.

Edmund S. Burke, commission chairman, suggested that he resign to permit another member to serve as chairman during this year. He was requested to continue serving as chairman, however, by unanimous vote.

Burke suggested that T. Donald Shires, commission secretary, communicate with Rep. J. Glenn Beall of the Sixth District, asking him to take any possible action toward expediting the processing of applications made by airlines to the Civil Aeronautics Board for service here.

The members were requested to present nominations at the February meeting regarding the appointment of a successor to Charles Z. Heskett, who resigned last fall to become a member of the State Aviation Commission.

Air Show Planned

Chapman was also requested to bring an audited statement of Cumberland Airway's financial report for 1946, its first year of operation, to the February meeting. He said the firm's books are now being audited in Pittsburgh, headquarters of William J. Graham, president.

Regarding the air show scheduled to be held at the port on June 15, Chapman said that the 1947 show will be much larger than that held last summer, with top-ranking flyers who took part in the recent Cleveland and Miami air shows already under contract to come here.

He said he is planning to prepare a souvenir of the show, which will include pictures of the commission, the Mayor and Council, Cumberland Airways personnel and the field itself, as well as a description of the activities at the port.

G. Wyatt Brenaman said he plans to obtain a detailed map of the airport tract from Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer, and to have photostats made for each commission member. He also noted that there is interest in securing radio facilities for the port.

Prefabricated Homes Planned For Cumberland

A. L. Starliper, field representative for the Adirondak Log Cabin Company, Inc., New York, and Allan Grant, secretary-treasurer of the G and H Corporation, conferred with Mayor Thomas S. Post yesterday in an effort to interest the city in a prefabricated housing project.

Starliper said he intends to contact members of the Veterans Non-Profit Housing Corporation in an effort to interest them in the use of this type of construction here. William B. Orndorff, president of the Veterans Corporation and other officers said last night Starliper has not communicated with them, but if he did so, would be invited to attend the regular meeting of the group at 7:30 tonight or any Friday night at Peoples Bank.

The G. and H. Corporation has been named local distributor for the Adirondak firm and is erected eight prefabricated homes on I Street in Potomac Park. Hazelton said the firm plans to open a Cumberland office soon.

City Interested

Mayor Post informed the group the city is interested in assisting all housing projects to the extent of furnishing water, sewerage and street facilities if at all possible. He explained that the city is not in a position to undertake such a building project on its own.

Starliper said his firm builds what is known as a conventional prefabricated home.

The representative declared the firm is prepared to furnish from four to seven-room homes, either one story or one and one-half stories at moderate costs that do not include land, foundation, plumbing and heating, wiring or erection charges.

60-Day Delivery

He said delivery is possible within 60 days and that the advantage is a saving in overall cost of from 10 to 25 per cent and quick construction. He claimed that after a foundation is in a home can be erected completely with dry inside walls within two weeks.

In addition to being prepared to furnish a number of differently designed homes, Starliper said the company would be interested in building a home to a specified set of specifications if a minimum of 150 homes would be purchased.

The spokesman said the firm operates under an American Federation of Labor contract with its workmen and that the homes more than meet FHA minimum requirements.

Bill To Abolish Tax Exemption Powers Proposed

Measure Applies To Manufacturing Firms

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 23 (AP)—Six bills affecting Western Maryland were introduced into the General Assembly today, four by Allegany County Republican Senator Kimble and two by the Garrett County House delegation.

Two of Senator Kimble's proposals would abolish the power of the county and the City of Cumberland to exempt from taxation certain unnamed manufacturing companies.

Both were described as emergency measures which would become effective immediately after passage by a three-fifths vote of both houses and signing by the governor.

Another of Kimble's measures would allow the County Commissioners to pay $10 to their clerk for each day's work in connection with the review of tax assessments.

The fourth would abolish Cumberland's power to exempt from taxation certain land within the city.

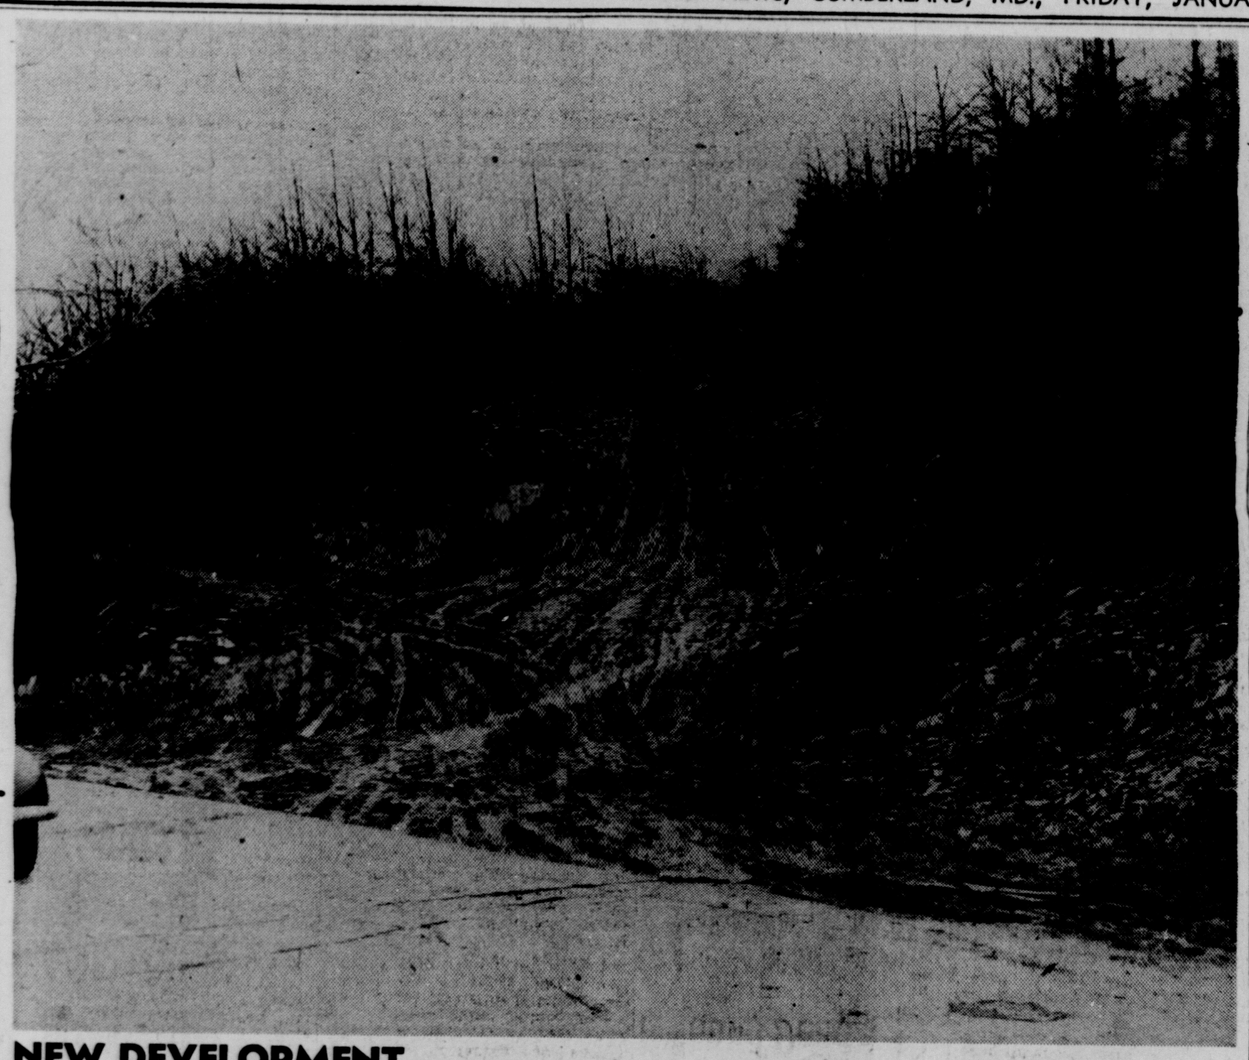
The one Garrett County measure would empower the Mayor and City Council of Kitzmiller to issue $15,000 in bonds for improvements and the other provide for registration of city workers.

Another bill introduced by Kimble relates to the compensation, duties, power and removal of the clerk to the County Commissioners.

The present act reads that the clerk is subject to removal from office for any willful neglect of duty or misbehavior in office at any time by the County Commissioners, but the proposed bill substitutes the word malfeasance for misbehavior.

The present law also provides that the clerk is to be paid $1,200 for his services, but the proposal increases this to "not less than $2,400" per year. The clerk now is paid $2,400 yearly, but the proposal was offered in what was said to be a move to assure his compensation remaining at that level. Kimble's bill also would remove from the County Commissioners power to set the clerk's compensation.

Kimble's measure that would allow the County Commissioners to pay $10 to their clerk for each day's work in connection with the review of tax assessments also was seen as a move to assure that compensation to the clerk, inasmuch as he presently receives that sum for each of the twice monthly meetings.



NEW DEVELOPMENT—Work has started, as shown here, on a new two-lane highway to the top of Wills Mountain, where a housing and resort development is planned by William P. Roeder, well known local contractor. This road, now being built by Roeder's workmen, begins on Piedmont avenue at the intersection of Maplewood Lane, and is expected to provide easy access to a one-time popular and historic site atop the mountain. Roeder said sometime ago that he plans to complete a modern development on the top of Wills Mountain overlooking Cumberland and the Narrows.

Gottlieb Forster Succumbs Of Self Inflicted Wound

A funeral service for Gottlieb F. Forster, 52, 312 Franklin street, well known local bartender, who died yesterday afternoon at 12:45 o'clock in Allegany Hospital as a result of a head wound suffered late Wednesday night, will be conducted tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the Hafer Funeral Home.

Rev. Frederick D. Oberkircher, pastor of Zion Evangelical and Reformed Church, will officiate and interment will be in Hillcrest Cemetery.

Forster was admitted to the hospital late Wednesday night in an unconscious and critical condition suffering from a bullet wound on the right side of the head. Police said the wound was self inflicted.

Police said Forster shot himself with a .38 caliber revolver at Al Zihlman's Lunch Room, 523 North Mechanic street, where he was employed as a bartender, about 11 p. m. Wednesday.

Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, said a verdict of suicide has been issued in connection with the death.

Hospital attaches said Forster, a former glass worker, was bleeding profusely in the right frontal region of the head when he was taken to the hospital. Powder burns surrounding the wound indicated the weapon was held at close range, police reported.

Relatives were unable to say what prompted the action and reported Forster was in good spirits when he left for work Wednesday.

Mr. Forster's wife, Mrs. Pearl Peebles Forster, died about six months ago. He continued to maintain his home on Franklin street for two daughters, the Misses Katherine and Charlotte Ruth Forster.

Also surviving are two other daughters, Mrs. John K. Mackert, this city, and Mrs. Delbert Smiley, Mt. Savage; a brother, Charles Forster, this city; three sisters, Mrs. Edward Castle, Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. James Somerville, this city, and Mrs. Lawence Lewis, Piedmont, and three grandchildren.

Paper Collection To Begin Monday

Cumberland's monthly paper collection will start next Monday with pickups scheduled that day for Potomac Park, Bowling Green, Bedford Road from Nave's Crossroads to State Line and Baltimore Pike to Miller's Service Station.

On Tuesday West Side will be covered, while on Wednesday collections will be made east of Wills Creek and north of Baltimore Street and Baltimore Avenue.

The area between Baltimore Street-Avenue and Oldtown Road is on Thursday's pickup schedule, while the drive ends Friday with collections south of Oldtown Road.

Local Child Injured When Car Door Opens

Jerry Barncord, 3½-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Barncord, 516 Marshall street, was admitted to Allegany Hospital last night for observation and treatment of injuries suffered when he fell from the car in which he was riding with his father.

Attaches said they were told the lad fell out when the door of the car came open here. He was treated for a left shoulder injury and brush burns on the face. His condition is reported good.

Jury Disagrees In Appeal Case On Drunk Driving

Police Identify Wrong Man As Defendant

For the second time in the current term of Circuit Court, a jury failed to agree yesterday, and was discharged with the thanks of the Court and the comment from the bench, "it is the right of all men to disagree."

The case yesterday was a criminal appeal from a decision in Trial Magistrate Court where the defendant, Wilbur L. Cessna, Jr., was fined $100 on a charge of drunken driving. On Tuesday, January 14, a civil jury disagreed in the slander suit of Archibald C. Willis vs. Garland H. Darr and Mrs. Hazel Darr, for $1,000.

Yesterday's case was marked by an unusual piece of strategy, deliberate or otherwise, on the part of Defense Attorney Edward J. Ryan. As the case was called, Ryan entered the Court room accompanied by two young men, and the three of them sat together at the counsel table.

As three City Police officers, Edward R. Lilya, Darrell J. Racey and Charles C. Roby testified, Ryan, in the course of his cross-examination asked the officers to point out to the Court and jury, the defendant. Two of the officers pointed to one of Ryan's companions at the table, and one of them pointed to the other.

After testimony was completed, Ryan asked the two men sitting with him to identify themselves. As they did so, it developed that neither of them was Cessna. Then he asked Cessna to stand and the defendant, who was seated a few feet behind Ryan stood.

The situation caused a mild stir in the Court Room and Assistant State's Attorney called the incident "a cheap trick" in his plea before the jury.

Case Over Two Years Old

Cessna was arrested September 24, 1944 at Park and Baltimore streets, near Central YMCA, by Officer Lilya, after he had broken a wheel on his car and was attempting to get the vehicle in a service station nearby. Lilya testified that "there was a smell of alcohol" evident. Officer Roby, who drove the patrol wagon and Officer Racy did not detect the alcoholic odor, they said, but recalled that the defendant "staggered like a man intoxicated".

Since the time of his arrest and trial before Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., in Trial Magistrate's Court, Cessna has served nearly two years in the Merchant Marine and just recently returned here. This accounts for the more than two-years delay in hearing the appeal case, Court attaches explained.

Jury Called Today

The jury got the case early in the afternoon and deliberated more than two hours before returning to tell the Court that they could not agree. The jury foreman, when asked if there was any chance of reaching an agreement, told the Court, "the last ballot was the same as the first and we can't agree."

The jury included, William Gephart, foreman, Charles B. Hornbrook, Charles G. Berkshire, Joseph S. Bewick, Thomas J. Leake, William H. Beeman, William M. Shaffer, Owen Zimmerly, Alvin Haller, Archibald Cook, Conrad Lochner and George William Jones.

The jury was discharged with instructions to report this morning at 9:15 a. m.

Gas Pressures Increasing Here

Gas pressures have increased with the rising temperature and the danger of gas shortage has passed, the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company reported last night. Service to all small customers has been restored and large industrial users are expected to be back to normal today.

Failure of gas pressure resulted in shutting off heat in homes and halting of gas supplies to industrial users in New York, Pittsburgh and other cities.

Leslie H. Hinkle, Elderly Recluse, Is Found Dead

Authorities Believe Man Suffered Stroke

Leslie Hugo Hinkle, 63, a well known retired construction worker, was found dead late yesterday afternoon at his home in Brashear Hollow, off Williams road, about one mile east of this city.

He was found lying on the floor of the kitchen of his home at 5 p. m. by a neighbor, William Cassidy, who investigated after he noticed there was no smoke coming from the chimney of the cottage.

Neighbors told county authorities that Mr. Hinkle lived alone and that they had been stopping in each day since his health was poor.

Dr. H. V. Deming, who investigated with County Investigator T. J. Boyle and Deputy Sheriff Edgar M. Lewis, said Mr. Hinkle had been suffering from high blood pressure for some time and that death probably resulted from a stroke.

County authorities said the Williams road man apparently collapsed and died some time after he ate his supper Wednesday night.

They added that neighbors had seen Mr. Hinkle in apparent health Wednesday. He was a bachelor and had lived alone at the small Williams road home for about a year. He had been retired for some time, the family reported.

Mr. Hinkle was a native of this city, a son of the late James O. S. Hinkle and Susan Willison Hinkle.

He is survived by one brother, Roy O. Hinkle, 718 Yale street, and five sisters, Mrs. Lester Boward, 610 Maryland avenue; Mrs. Lester Browning and Mrs. Jessie Barkman, both of 413 Pulaski street; Miss Ruth Hinkle, this city, and Mrs. Carrie Loughney, Frostburg. One niece and two nephews also survive.

The body will remain at the George Funeral Home.

Revised Appraisal Procedure On GI Loans Announced

VA In Future Will Select Appraiser

Instructions on revised Veterans Administration appraisal procedure for loans to veterans under the GI Bill were received by 249 lenders in the Maryland area, William A. Burns, officer in charge of the Cumberland VA contact office, announced yesterday.

The new instructions also were sent to the 160 appraisers in Maryland approved by the VA.

Under the revised system, the VA—not the lender—will pick the appraiser to evaluate "reasonable value" for purposes of GI loans, Burns said. During the past 15 months, the procedure has been for the lender to select any appraiser he desired from a panel of local appraisers whose general qualifications had been reviewed and approved by the VA.

No Slowing Up

The mechanics for assigning appraisers has been set up in the Baltimore regional office to handle requests from lenders quickly and efficiently. This process, Burns said, will in noway impede the processing of GI loans.

The newly-adopted procedure was used during the first year of the loan guarantee program, but in 1945 the panel system permitting the lender to pick the appraiser was formulated.

One advantage of the revised system is that it will result in better control and co-ordination of appraisals, Burns said. A copy of each report will be furnished to the local VA loan guarantee office when the original is submitted to the lender. This will provide the office with a complete record of all appraisals whether or not the loan actually is made.

Each appraisal will be reviewed, many by actual site inspections, and the price so established will stand as "reasonable value" for purposes of a guaranteed loan, Burns stated. This will eliminate duplication of appraisals on the same property for different lenders.

Three To Five Required

Burns also said that in the future any development of five or more houses must be appraised by a committee of from three to five appraisers. All interested lenders will subsequently be advised of the price agreed upon and the sale of units in the development may not exceed this appraisal.

The 249 lenders in Maryland include banks, trust companies, building and loan associations and mortgage loan correspondents.

Many Christmas Seal Letters Unanswered

Although over 6,000 envelopes containing sheets of 100 Christmas Seals were mailed from the Cumberland post office by the Allegany County Tuberculosis Asociation in November, nearly half of the letters have not yet been answered, according to William J. Edwards, chairman of the 1946 Christmas Seal campaign of the county association.

Edwards pointed out that the seals should either be purchased or returned as promptly as possible, to permit the asociation to bring its campaign records up to date. Of the 6,094 letters mailed, only 3,499 have been returned, leaving 2,595 yet unanswered.

"Everyone in the county benefits from the Christmas Seal sale because funds raised in the campaign support a program to combat tuberculosis here," the chairman said. "Anyone who comes across an unanswered Christmas Seal letter should remember that it is not too late to answer it and make his contribution toward the protection of his own health and the health of everyone else in the county."

Guilty Plea Set Aside In School Bus-Auto Case

Court Acquits Fuller After Criminal Appeal

Harrison I. Fuller, Keyser, W. Va., was acquitted in Circuit Court of a charge of failing to stop for a school bus, in a criminal appeal case heard before Chief Judge William A. Huster and Associate Judge George Henderson yesterday afternoon.

Represented by F. Brooke Whiting, the Court was told that Fuller was fined $20 and costs in Trial Magistrates Court by Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce when he entered a plea of guilty, but had not intended to enter the plea.

It was brought out at the trial that Fuller's brakes had failed, and that he told the lower court he had passed the bus and struck a child. A plea of guilty was entered, but Fuller was of the opinion that he had not been negligent and filed an appeal to the fine.

The accident occurred January 8, on McMullen Highway at Dawson, witnesses said, when the school bus, driven by George Moreland, stopped to discharge 10 or 12 school children.

Girl Hit By Car

It was shown in court that Virginia Cook, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse W. Cook, Dawson, was struck by Fuller's car as he went around the right side of the bus to avoid hitting the group of children crossing the road. The Cook child was in charge of seeing the other children across the road and had crossed in front of the bus to enter it again to ride on home, when she was hit.

Fuller and other witnesses testified that he was driving at a moderate speed and tried to stop behind the bus as the law required. When he realized his brakes were not working, and saw the children crossing the road in front of him, he decided to try to get around the right side of the bus, off the road. Fuller told the Court he had little time to act and did the only thing he could to avoid hitting the bus or the children on the highway.

Two auto mechanics figured as witnesses at the trial. One Jesse W. Cook, father of the injured child said he looked at the car Fuller was driving and found no brake fluid in the main cylinder. He expressed the view it had "been dry sometime." The other mechanic Robert Mongold testified he had relined the brakes on Fuller's car the day before the accident, had tested the vehicle and found it in proper working order. He also said he rode with Fuller earlier the day of the accident and the car was working properly then.

Mechanics Differ

Both mechanics described the functioning of hydraulic brakes in detail, but Mongold, who was in a motor platoon in the Army and now operates his own auto repair shop, differed with Cook's testimony about the action of the braking system. He declared it was quite possible for the small cylinders to each wheel to leak or become damaged and the fluid would be pumped out quickly. Cook had claimed it would require "some considerable time" to pump the cylinders dry.

Mongold described the damaged cylinder he found on the car after the accident, said it was broken and one of the "rubber cups damaged and leaking. A plunger was also broken," he said.

The young mechanic explained to the Court that this could have happened anytime and quite likely happened as Fuller approached the bus.

Barbers To Seek Additional Funds For State Board

Local 314, Journeymen Barbers International Union, AFL, is co-operating with the Maryland Barbers Association in seeking more effective licensing and inspection of barbers in this state, Fred B. Driscoll, this city, secretary treasurer of the state association, reported yesterday.

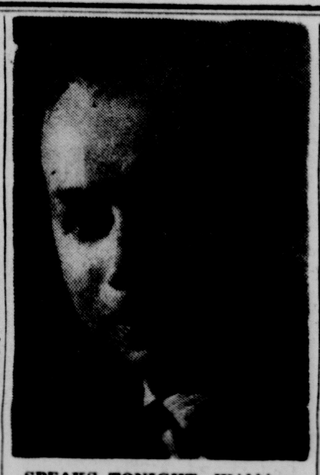
Driscoll said the state group will ask the legislature to provide sufficient funds for effective operation of the state board of examiners and for a full time secretary for the group.

The barbers union will also ask legislation providing for annual renewal of licenses, an inspection system with penalties for infractions and a standard examination for barbers.

Officers of the Cumberland local were installed early in January by Ivan C. Brant, former state inspector. They are:

Roy Wilson, president; Charles Keplinger, vice-president; Driscoll, secretary-treasurer; Ray Nine, recorder; Calvin Swain, guide, and Graham Shaffer, guardian.

Members of the finance committee for 1947 will be Nine, chairman, and James Littlefield and John Grayson. The social committee is composed of Ray Wilson, chairman, Abe Furstenberg, Frank Greco and Keplinger.



SPEAKS TONIGHT—William Schulman, Jersey City, N. J., chairman of the national organizing committee of the Legion of Guardsmen, will be the principal speaker at a banquet in Queen City Hotel tonight. Logue Described As Mentally Ill By Physicians

Jury Acquits Robber Due To His Insanity

Two physicians, one testifying in Circuit Court for the state and the other for the defense yesterday in the case of Robert Logue, charged with armed robbery, declared the man "is a menace to society and should be incarcerated."

Ably defended by John M. Robb, young attorney named by the Court as the defendant's counsel, Logue was acquitted by a jury when he was found "not guilty by reason of insanity," and was returned to the County Jail to await disposition by the Court.

The guilt of the prisoner was not contested by Robb, and State's Attorney Morgan Harris detailed the charges to the jury. He said Logue had participated in an armed robbery at the Norris Grocery on Pennsylvania Avenue where he took $250 from the proprietor, Lloyd E. Norris and $57 from a customer Mrs. Anna Mae Newion. A few days later, December 19, he held up the store of Howard Kerns in Westernport and robbed the grocer of $20. Logue and his companion were arrested a short time after the holdup by Westernport police, after a chase through the town.

Robb told the court and the jury that these crimes were acknowledged by the defense, but that his client is not responsible for his actions.

Specialists Testify

Dr. Samuel Jacobson, local specialist was called to the stand by Robb. Under examination, Dr. Jacobson declared that in his opinion Logue should not be at large in society but should be in a medical institution.

Dr. Jacobson said he examined Logue Wednesday night and told the jury that "Logue didn't know who the president of the United States was before Truman. He has the mentality of a nine or ten-year old".

The physician said Logue is under the impression "that a voice constantly tells him to do things and keeps on telling him whatever it is until he does it."

The man realizes, Dr. Jacobson continued, "that he should not do these things and after committing some wrongful act he feels he squares himself by some such act as bashing a finger or toe with a hammer."

Say Logue Mentally Ill

In reply to a direct question from Associate Judge George Henderson, Dr. Jacobson declared, "I think he's insane and probably has been mentally sick since childhood."

Asked if he could classify the type of insanity Logue is suffering from, the physician said, "he is probably a paranoid," and explained to the jury that this means an individual who suffers a mental illness sometimes caused by an organic disease and has illusions and delusions." The fact that Logue has a heart condition probably caused by some

Continued general rising temperatures were predicted today after a severe cold wave ended as fast as it began.

Indications of the warmer weather were seen in temperature readings at Thomas, W. Va., and Deal, Pa., at midnight when the mercury registered 40 degrees. The night before at both communities the temperature was but 10 above zero.

In Cumberland last midnight, the mercury hovered at 32 degrees—the freezing point—while the night previous it was down to 20.

Local weather observers predicted, however, that falling weather is in the offing. They said the fact that temperatures at Deal and Thomas were higher than in Cumberland is a sure sign of rain or snow.

State Police reported last night that state roads in this section are practically clear of snow and ice.

Area Men Re-enlist In Naval Reserve

Two area men have re-enlisted in the Naval Reserve V-6 Inactive, for four years each, according to Chief Torpedoman Edgar L. Schrader of the local Navy recruiting station.

They are Edgar Joseph Young, 508 Woodside avenue, city, a veteran of 39 months' previous Navy service, with duty in the European-African theater, who holds the rating of pharmacist's mate second class; and Lionel Woodrow Wiseman, Piedmont, W. Va., who served 29 months with the Seabees and who holds the rating of shipfitter second class.

Hangar Will Be Delivered Soon To Airport Here

Purchase Approved By Port Commission

Delivery of a new metal hangar measuring 40 by 160 feet from Keyser, W. Va., to the Cumberland Municipal Airport is expected within a few days, according to John A. Chapman, manager of the port for Cumberland Airways, Incorporated.

Chapman told members of the Municipal Airport Commission at a meeting in the office of Mayor Thomas S. Post last night that the total cost of delivery and erection, including a foundation and floor, would amount to between $8,000 and $10,000. The commission approved the proposed purchase.

Chapman said the hangar could house over a dozen planes, and said he hopes to have 25 training planes at the airport in an expanded program. Six new Cubs are on order, three for February and three for March delivery, and one Supercruiser is expected before the end of the month.

The new hangar will be placed at the western end of a line of 15 hangars, and will be used for Cumberland Airways equipment and to house transient ships as necessary.

Fire Hydrants Recommended

The commission also recommended that Mayor Post take action to arrange for the installation of three fire hydrants, to be placed at the rear of the line of 15 hangars and connected to the water line already installed.

Edmund S. Burke, commission chairman, suggested that he resign to permit another member to serve as chairman during this year. He was requested to continue serving as chairman, however, by unanimous vote.

Burke suggested that T. Donald Shires, commission secretary, communicate with Rep. J. Glenn Beall of the Sixth District, asking him to take any possible action toward expediting the processing of applications made by airlines to the Civil Aeronautics Board for service here.

The members were requested to present nominations at the February meeting regarding the appointment of a successor to Charles Z. Heskett, who resigned last fall to become a member of the State Aviation Commission.

Air Show Planned

Chapman was also requested to bring an audited statement of Cumberland Airway's financial report for 1946, its first year of operation, to the February meeting. He said the firm's books are now being audited in Pittsburgh, headquarters of William J. Graham, president.

Regarding the air show scheduled to be held at the port on June 15, Chapman said that the 1947 show will be much larger than that held last summer, with top-ranking flyers who took part in the recent Cleveland and Miami air shows already under contract to come here.

He said he is planning to prepare a souvenir of the show, which will include pictures of the commission, the Mayor and Council, Cumberland Airways personnel and the field itself, as well as a description of the activities at the port.

G. Wyatt Brenaman said he plans to obtain a detailed map of the airport tract from Ralph L. Rizer, city engineer, and to have photostats made for each commission member. He also noted that there is interest in securing radio facilities for the port.

Prefabricated Homes Planned For Cumberland

A. L. Starliper, field representative for the Adirondak Log Cabin Company, Inc., New York, and Allan Grant, secretary-treasurer of the G and H Corporation, conferred with Mayor Thomas S. Post yesterday in an effort to interest the city in a prefabricated housing project.

Starliper said he intends to contact members of the Veterans Non-Profit Housing Corporation in an effort to interest them in the use of this type of construction here. William B. Orndorff, president of the Veterans Corporation and other officers said last night Starliper has not communicated with them, but if he did so, would be invited to attend the regular meeting of the group at 7:30 tonight or any Friday night at Peoples Bank.

The G. and H. Corporation has been named local distributor for the Adirondak firm and is erected eight prefabricated homes on I Street in Potomac Park. Hazelton said the firm plans to open a Cumberland office soon.

City Interested

Mayor Post informed the group the city is interested in assisting all housing projects to the extent of furnishing water, sewerage and street facilities if at all possible. He explained that the city is not in a position to undertake such a building project on its own.

Starliper said his firm builds what is known as a conventional prefabricated home.

The representative declared the firm is prepared to furnish from four to seven-room homes, either one story or one and one-half stories at moderate costs that do not include land, foundation, plumbing and heating, wiring or erection charges.

60-Day Delivery

He said delivery is possible within 60 days and that the advantage is a saving in overall cost of from 10 to 25 per cent and quick construction. He claimed that after a foundation is in a home can be erected completely with dry inside walls within two weeks.

In addition to being prepared to furnish a number of differently designed homes, Starliper said the company would be interested in building a home to a specified set of specifications if a minimum of 150 homes would be purchased.

The spokesman said the firm operates under an American Federation of Labor contract with its workmen and that the homes more than meet FHA minimum requirements.
